Big Business and Politics.
New Campaign Debate.
No Truth Without Fear?
Dry News From Missouri.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

THE theory that big business men put big business ahead of everything seems unsound. Mr. Raskob dropped one of the biggest jobs in the country, the chairmanship of General Motors' financial board, to manage Gov. Smith's campaign.

Now it is announced that Pierre S. DuPont, chairman of General Motors board of directors and biggest owner of the world's biggest industrial corporation, will also resign to work for Gov. Smith.

IF Gov. Smith believed in crests, and family mottoes, which he does not, he might select for his, "Nemo me impune lacessit."

Whoever wants a fight with him, or an answer, can get it.

DR. STRATON from his pulpit in Calvery Baptist Church, New York, called Gov. Smith "the deadliest foe in America today" and "the foe of moral progress and true political wisdom."

Immediately Gov. Smith demands an opportunity to answer Dr. Straton from the same pulpit. And that he will do, rejecting the clergyman's suggestion that they hire Madison Square Garden for a bigger crowd.

It will be an interesting debate, something entirely new in a National campaign. Some of Dr. Straton's congregation feel that their church should not be used for policital attacks, and that may start another row.

A LADY in Alabama is accused of killing her husband. In fact, as he lay dying, he said she killed him.

The lady's ingenious lawyer says, "The dying man was an unbeliever, next door to an atheist, did not even believe in hell. You can't take his testimony, because such a man would lie as readily, at death's door, as any other time."

Very interesting point to be settled by an Alabama judge. Some men might conceivably tell the truth, especially in such a delicate matter, even without the fear of hell. In any case, the learned judge will probably look up the United States Constitution, which has something to say about religion.

WETS will be amazed at news of a dry victory in Missouri. Charles M. Hay running far ahead, for United States Senator, as a bone-dry candidate, appears to be nominated by the Democrats.

This is no test of Senator Reed's personal strength, although he opposed Hay. Reed retires from the Senate, after 18 years' service, and much to the regret of his constituents.

But the Missouri vote is important, as it affects the national campaign, theoretically. Republicans profess to be greatly pleased with the result.

GERMANS seem to have perfected a plane for ocean flight. The giant machine, all metal, weighing 36,000 pounds, rose easily from the water, with only 250 yards start, flew upward at a sharp angle, was easily handled, and responded to tests, landing on rough water.

This dydro-airplane, intended for passenger flights from Germany to South America, is a most important step toward real flying.

EIGHT oarsmen from California beat eight from Canada, in the Olympic games yesterday. On the previous day, when Miss Wills, of California, wiped out a few competitors, with ease, nine California players were included among 14 that survived the tests.

There must be some advantage in the California climate that lets you grow, in sunlight, twelve months in the year.

J. RAMSAY MACDONALD says Britain and other nations should recognize Russia's government, "to promote peace in Europe."

He is right. The way to make Russia peaceful is to let her get RICH. A man on his way to the bank, with a big roll of money, does not pick quarrels.

It would be hard for them to believe it, but let the Bolshevists, all but a few, OWN something, and their view of capitalistic government would change. Sad, but that is how men are made.

UNCLE SAM found various interesting things, including poisoned whisky that would kill in a few hours, in his raids on New York's "select" cabarets.

His agents paid $23 a quart for "champagne," described as "cider with gas in it."

They found little ladies dancing in economical clothing, plenty of men drunk and "hostesses" directing "bouncers."

The bootleg business has opened up a new world, different from the "Harry Hill's" and "Billy McGlory's," of ancient New York days.

BIG railroad unions refuse to indorse either Smith or Hoover, letting each local take whatever action it pleases. The workers made an exception in indosing the re-election of Judge Florence E. Allen, of Ohio, the only woman that ever sat on the Supreme Court bench.

With the seventh death attributed to the prolonged heat wave, the temperature mounted higher today, with indications that the maximum would exceed 90 degrees.

The humidity is breaking, and with a fresh breeze the heat would be more endurable, according to Forecaster W. S. Brotzman, who held out the hope that the sweltering weather was about over for the present. Thundershowers are predicted for tomorrow.

The seventh victim in the heat wave was claimed today when Mrs. Eliza J. Sanforth, 80, was found dead in her home, 213 Fourth avenue Homestead. Her body was discovered by neighbors. Dr. R. A. Campbell said her death was due to heat apoplexy.

TWO STILL OWNERS GIVEN JAIL SENTENCES

Charged with violating the liquor laws, Joe Capanzore and Mike Angelone, of Franklin township, were sentenced each to six months in the workhouse and to pay $100 fine by Judge Thomas D. Carnahan, in Criminal court today. They pleaded guilty to possessing a 200-gallon still seized in a raid July 2.

FLORIDA HURRICANE TOLL $5,000,000

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 9.—A West Indian hurricane, whose careless strokes have raked costly furrows across Central Florida for 48 hours, swept into the Gulf of Mexico today after stripping part of the rich citrus belt, unroofing houses by the thousands, and snapping power and communication lines with monotonous fury.

After cutting a swath almost due west from Vero Beach and Fort Pierce on the east coast to Winter Haven and Haines City in the rich citrus belt, the hurricane abruptly turned northwest after it had almost reached the outskirts of Tampa.

The storm apparently was blowing itself out as it quit the peninsula, leaving diminishing damage in its wake.

Opinion was expressed by Western Union officials that it would require at least three days to repair damage on the east coast and reestablish full communication with Miami and points on the northern side of the storm. The wires were down some distance north of Miami, which suffered no damage.

Coupled with the astonishing news that no lives had been reported lost were fragmentary calculations of millions of dollars in damage from West Palm Beach to Melbourne on the East Coast, and across almost to Tampa on the west.

These three points formed extremities of a storm-torn square, the other sides of which remained to be determined by the westward course of the storm, which apparently was diminishing in intensity. Storm warnings were raised as far west as Mobile, indicating that the disturbance was bound for the Apalachicola curve of the Gulf Coast line.

Out of the 23 cities and towns in the zone of winds ranging from 40 to 110 miles an hour in velocity, came fitful dribblings of information that gave almost identical accounts of devastation. This held true for all except the Lake Okeechobee district, where flood waters were threatening crops and small communities as tributaries rose under the impetus of 18 inches of rainfall

2 Hold Up, Slug Store Manager

Wielding blackjacks and revolvers, two men escaped with the contents of the cash register in the P. H. Butler branch store, 316 Grant avenue, Millvale, early today after knocking the manager unconscious and chasing a would-be rescuer from the premises.

Running some distance to a side street the robbers disappeared in an automobile.

F. W. Rome, manager of the store, had just opened the building and was alone when the men entered and asked for two pounds of prunes. They tendered a dollar bill in payment. When he opened the cash register for change, one of the men struck him on the head with a blackjack.

Rome fell to the floor but quickly recovered. The contents of the cash drawer, consisting of checks and about $10 or $15 in currency, were taken. The robbers fled.

Rome's shouts for help were heard by Anthony Vecenni, driver of an ice wagon, who hastened to his aid. Vecenni encountered the robbers on the doorstep. Both drew revolvers and pressed them against Vecenni's ribs, compelling him to retreat. Escaping in an alley they ran to a side street where the roar of their automobile was heard as they fled from the town.

COMICS IN COLOR EASIER ON EYES, OCULISTS SAY

Prominent Pittsburgh physicians who specialize in care of the eyes have approved the color comic section issued each weekday free with the evening Sun-Telegraph.

Knowing that children study the comics even more closely than do their elders, several of the city's best known oculists give unqualified testimony that the comics printed in colors cause less eye strain than those reproduced in black on white paper.

Dr. Joseph T. Hunter, 6331 Frankstown avenue, said:

"Colored pictures undoubtedly cause less eye strain than those printed in plain black on white paper. Yellow and blue are known as the most restful colors for tired eyes, and these major colors and the shades evolved from mixing them, I believe predominate in the colored comic pages."

The Sun-Telegraph's innovation in producing its comic section in colors and separate from the rest of the paper, has been hailed as a real boon by adult readers in general and by the kiddies in particular. The separate section makes it very easy for the reader in a street car or other public conveyance to slip the "funnies" from the bulk of his favorite evening newspaper and scan the pages in comfort and ease.

Call Officer Bootleg Pilot

POLICEMAN BRANDED GUIDE OF RUNNERS

With his wife in a motorcycle sidecar as a "blind," Tom Denick, special policeman of Snowden township, piloted bootleggers through the township, it was testified in court today when Denick's reappointment was opposed.

Cyril Ocetek, one of two commissioners opposing Denick's reappointment, testified before Judge Elder W. Marshall that "it is common knowledge that Denick, with his wife in a sidecar, rode ahead of trucks transporting liquor, to give them safe conduct through the township."

Ocetek also testified that Denick "split" costs with Justice of the Peace P. J. Burke, of Snowden township, and settled with auto violators on the highway.

Denick, on the stand, made a general denial of the charges. He testified a mass meeting of 150 residents, this week, had demanded his reappointment. South Park had increased traffic to such an extent that a special policeman was needed, he said.

Justice of the Peace Burke testified that he did not include constable's fees in cases of arrests made by Denick, and that when Denick became dissatisfied, Burke agreed to give part of the costs received by him.

Judge Marshall held that there was no necessity for a special policeman at this time and held up the appointment, pending the opening of the school term, to determine if an officer were needed to protect the children.

Baby Jane closed her eyes and feigned total indiffirence at her new home, 7 Hollenden place. Her "daddy" is Harry Bannister, actor.

POLITICS IN SHAKEUP, MAYOR ADMITS

Mayor Charles H. Kline today admitted politics had something to do with the shake-up in the police bureau last week when, in a statement breaking the silence he had maintained since the upheaval, he declared "the insinuation that politics ALONE is responsible for these charges is not well founded."

The Mayor expressed his views of the changes in a formal statement. He declined to amplify it or to discuss rumors that additional changes in the police and fire bureaus are being considered.

His statement follows:

"While I was not here when the recent changes were made I approve them in their entirety.

"Everybody knows that every corporation finds it necessary to make changes in its personnel from time to time to keep abreast of conditions. This is equally true in a public corporation like the city of Pittsburgh.

"The responsibility for the police administration rests on the shoulders of Director Clark, Superintendent Walsh and myself. We are satisfied to be judged by the results of these changes in the way of improved service to the people and more rigid preservation of law and order.

"The insinuation that politics alone is responsible for these changes is not well founded. We who are familiar with the records and ability of the men involved know this to be untrue. Several of the men retired or demoted were seeking a change themselves due to age or dissatisfaction with conditions. The men appointed, particularly to the major commissions, won their advancement by merit and are the equal in intelligence and experience of any in any police department in America."

SAY DU PONT MAY QUIT G. M. TO HELP SMITH

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Reports that Pierre S. Du Pont, chairman of the board of both the General Motors Corporation and the gigantic E. I. Du Pont De Nemours Company, would actively support the presidential candidacy of Gov. Alfred E. Smith were current in financial circles and at Democratic national headquarters today as the directors of General Motors assembled for their regular quarterly meeting.

Du Pont one of the wealthiest men in the United States announced he would have an important statement to make at the conclusion of the board's session.

Reports in the financial district were that he would temporarily relinquish his place on the General Motors directorate in order to be free to devote himself to the Smith campaign.

The board is expected also to act upon the resignation of John J. Raskob as chairman of the finance committee, submitted some weeks ago when he began actual service as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Du Pont heretofore always has been identified with Republican politics, but never has held office. His cousin, Coleman Du Pont, onetime president of the great powder company, is now Republican Senator from the Du Pont's native Delaware. In 1924, he was a member of the arrangements committee for the Cleveland Republican Convention.

Pierre Du Pont has long been an intimate friend of Raskob. It was he who discovered Raskob and guided him in his struggle to the finance chairmanship of one of America's greatest corporations.

DO GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES? ANITA SAYS SO

One of the most discussed modern books, because it represents a phase of American life that had been hitherto neglected, is "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," by Anita Loos. It is a diary of a modern "gold digger." It was so popular that purchasers had to form lines to buy it.

And next Sunday, in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, it will become one of the series of notable stories, complete and free with each Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

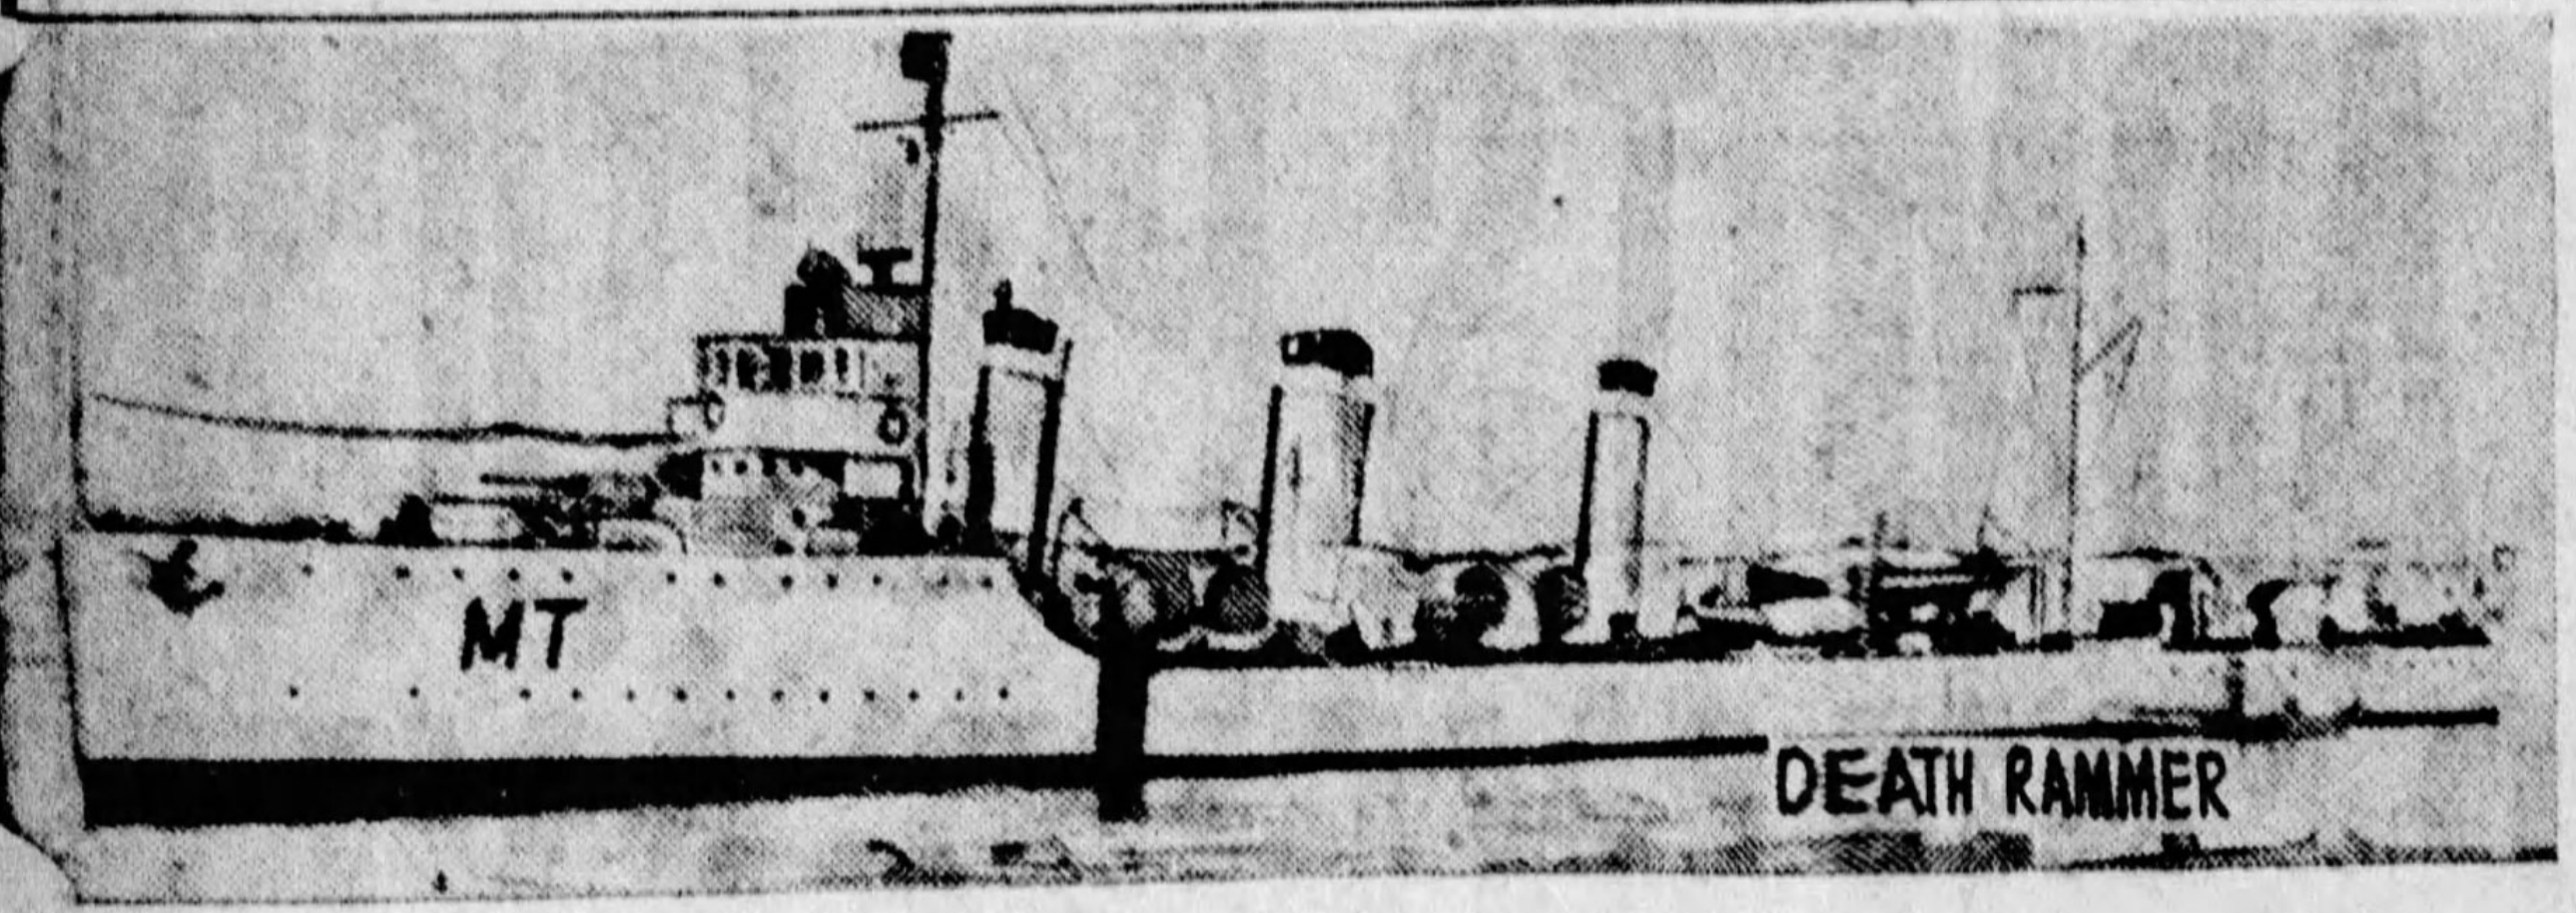
Brief, smart, blase, this diary became the laugh-provoker of American writings. It is typically American—perhaps the most typically American book in a long and illustrious list. Its humor is the kind that Americans peculiarly enjoy. In a word, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" is a WOW!

Lorelei and Dorothy are the principal characters. Their journey through Europe, aided by a group of American and English gentlemen often called "saps," is told by Lorelei in her own language—which gramatically is not so correct, but which produces the desired effect.

For 10 cents—the price of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph—one of the humorous bits of all times is yours.

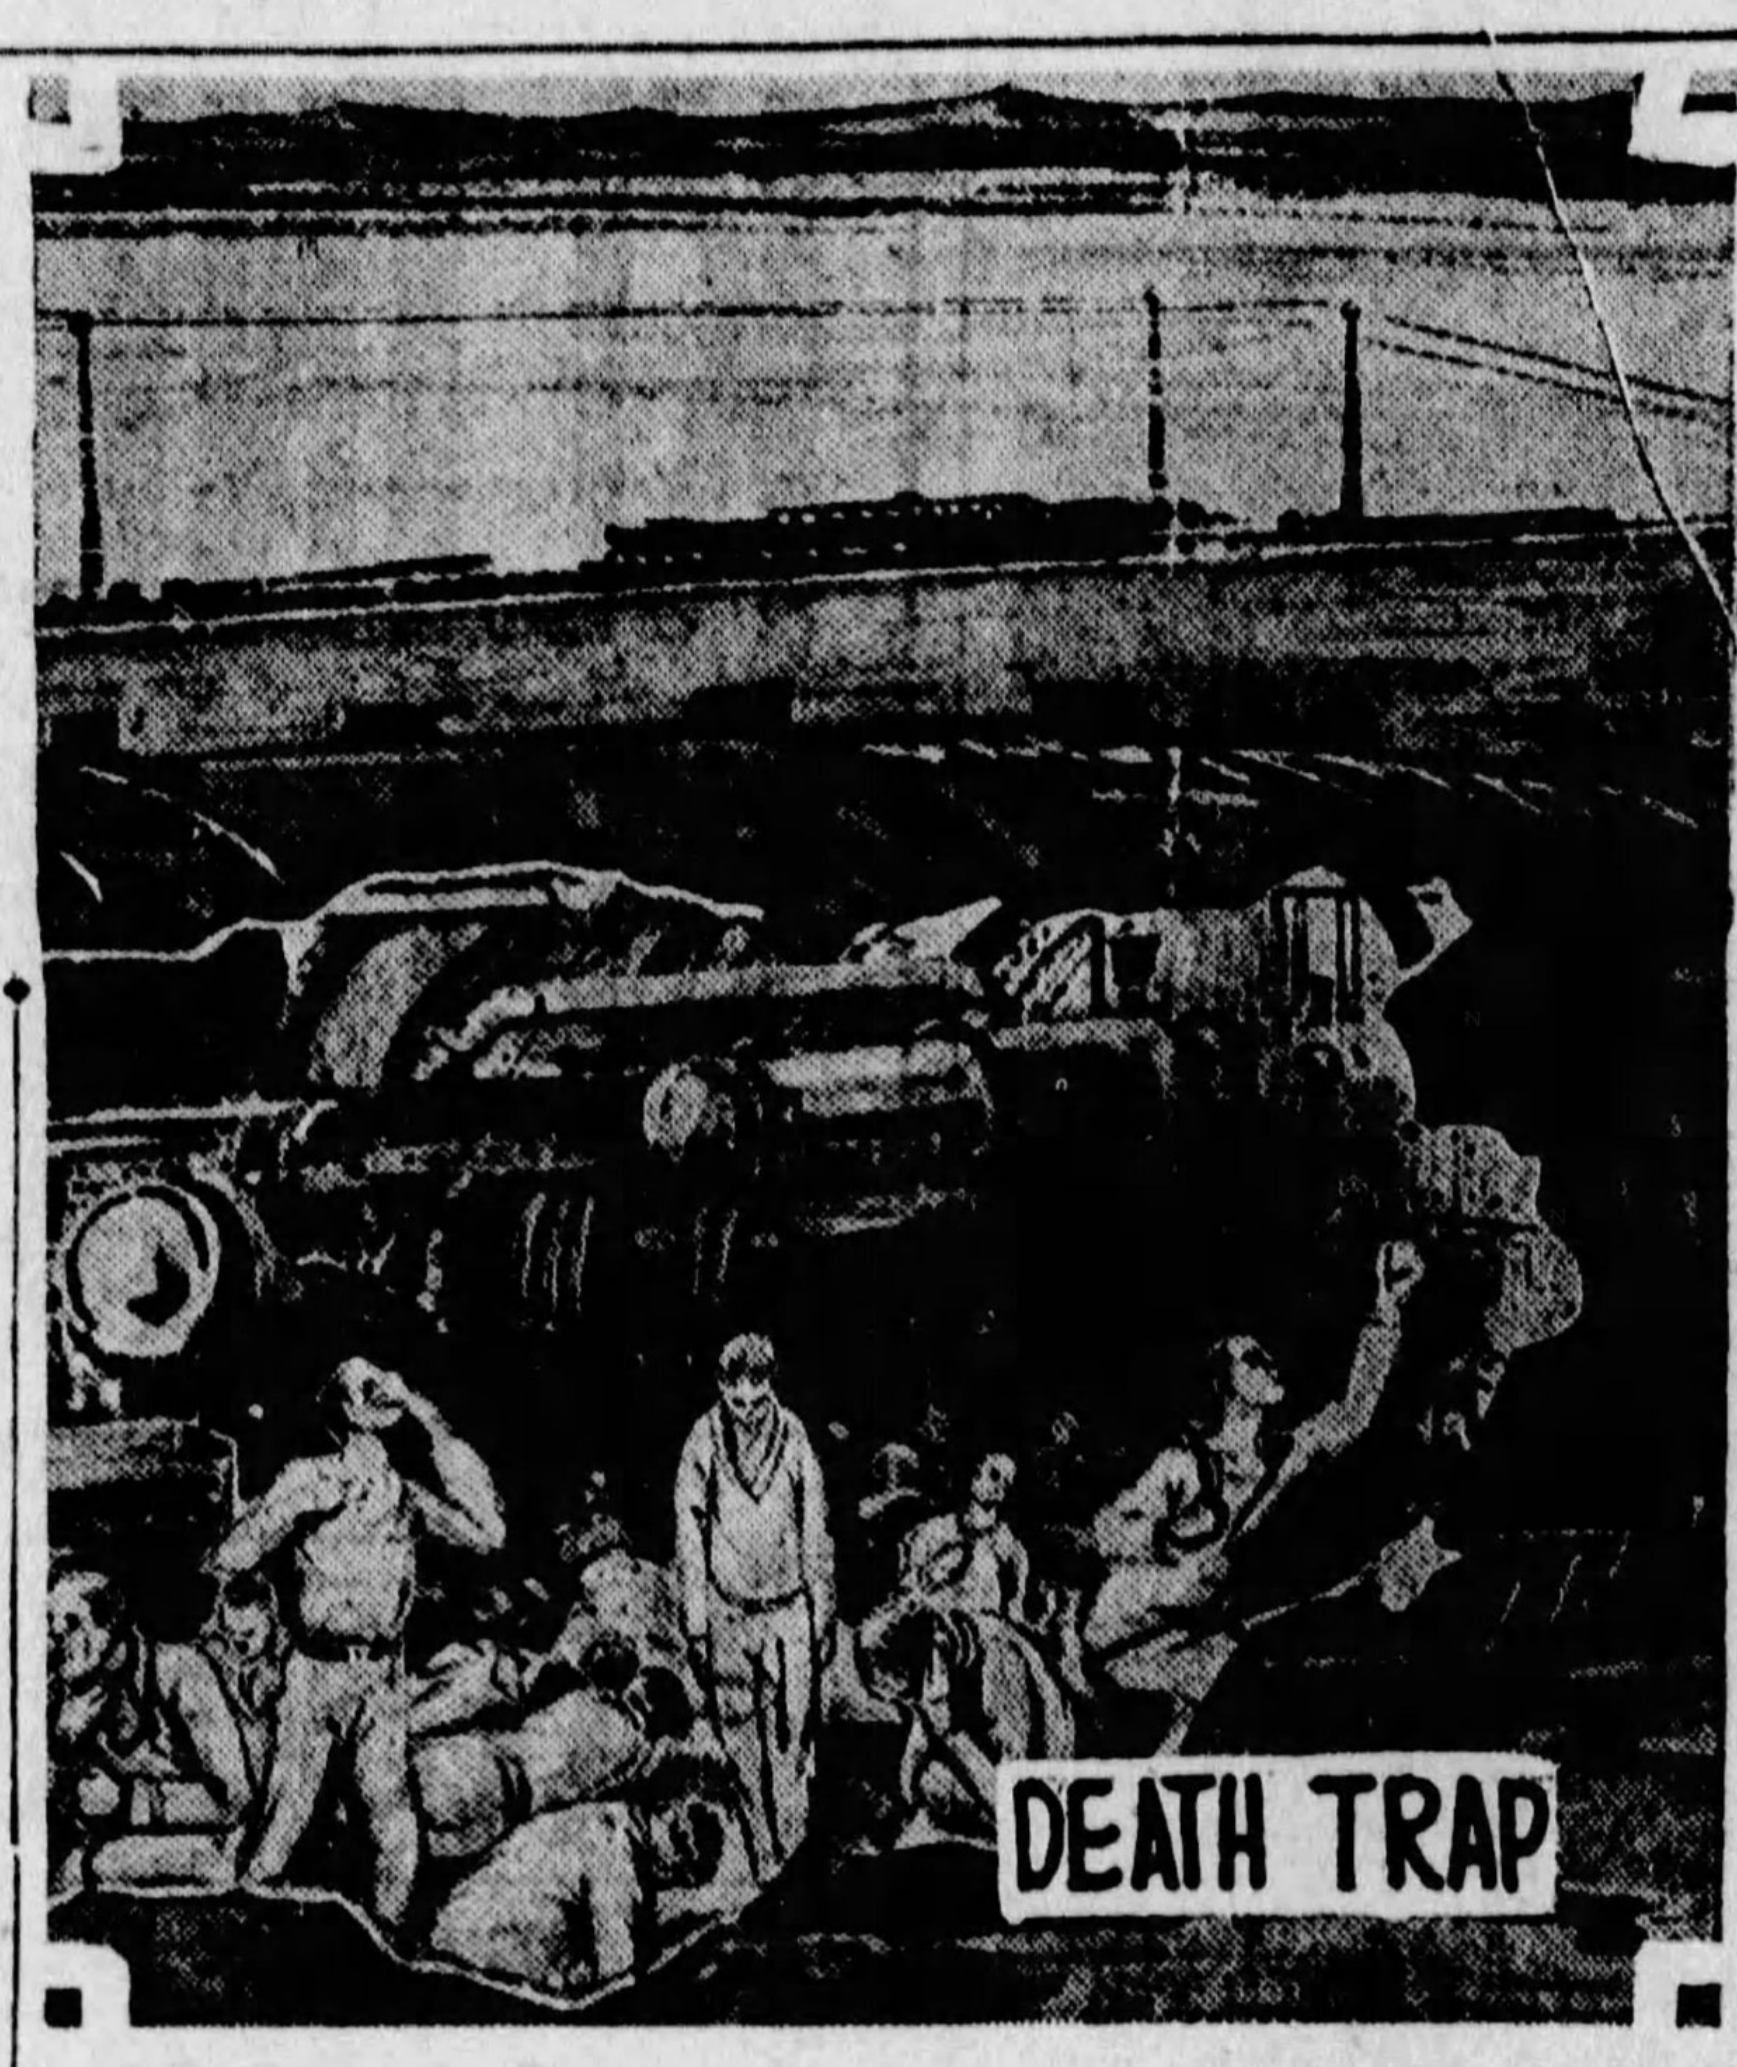
JUGOSLAVIA NIPS "RED" REVOLT PLOT

Submarine Rammed -:- As Italy Mourns Deaths of 31 Sailors -:- Pictorial Story



MOURNS

Today all Italy mourns the deaths of its 31 naval men, lost when the Italian submarine F-14 sank in more than 125 feet of water after it was rammed by the Italian destroyer Guiseppe Missori. The Missori's type is that above. For a short time, the men in the submarine lived and rescuers worked frantically to raise the vessel.



SIGNALS

For a while after the submarine sank, rescuers heard bold signals rapped out from within the vessel and until the boat was raised hope was not gone that the crew lived. Here, the artist illustrates the possible horror of the last moments as the oxygen supply gave out and brought deaths to all.

BOTTOM

This is the F-14, which went to the bottom of Pola harbor. The crash occurred during naval maneuvers. Although heavy seas hampered rescue work, men on the task performed superhuman work in raising the boat so quickly. The tapping signals were continued until a very few hours before the vessel was raised to the surface.

JUGOSLAVIA NIPS 'RED' REVOLT CONSPIRACY

International News Service.

AGRAM, Croatia (Jugoslavia), Aug. 9.—The Jugoslav political situation, which has been brought to a crisis by the death of Deputy Stefan Raditch, leader of the Croatian peasant party, and by the movement for Croatian autonomy, has been further complicated by the discovery of a Red plot here today.

According to the police, the Communists planned to attempt a revolution in the event political disorders opened the way for a revolutionary movement.

A number of Communist leaders were arrested and large quantities of rifles, pistols, bombs and munitions were seized. Communist headquarters were raided and a great amount of Red literature confiscated.

MOURN RADITCH

This was a city of mourning today for the passing of Deputy Raditch—the most powerful figure in Croatia. He was shot and wounded by an assassin in Parliament Building in Belgrade six weeks ago when two other members of Parliament were killed. Deputy Raditch might have recovered from his wound, but he was suffering from a kidney ailment in an advanced stage.

Raditch's authority, especially with the Croatian peasants, was described as similar to that of an uncrowned king. Shops and amusement places were closed, black bunting decorated the fronts of many buildings and flags were at half mast. Church bells tolled at intervals throughout the day.

Large crowds gathered before Raditch's home.

Chief interest centered upon the "political testament," which the statesman is believed to have left. This testament contained his policies and the program he wished his party to carry out.

Events in Jugoslavia may cause a flare up which would shake the whole Balkans and involve Italy in the situation. Ever since the World War there has been growing hostility between Italy and Jugoslavia. This was intensified by Italy's action in gaining a foothold in Albania. Belgrade politicians claim that Italy virtually dominates the Albanian government.

The Nettuno treaty (an Italian-Jugoslav pact) was under discussion in the Jugoslav parliament at the time of the assassinations. The Belgrade government wanted it approved; the Croatians opposed it.

Later the Croatians along with the Slovenes, Mohammedans and Dalmatians, set up an independent parliament here.

Discovery of a Red plot was the first intimation that Moscow was getting active in this kingdom. It is understood there were about 20 arrests.

4 Floors In Bldg. For P. O.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Postoffice Department officials have completed plans for their section of the new $6,425,000 Federal building authorized for Pittsburgh and the drawings have already been forwarded to the Treasury Department for final action, it was learned here today.

Before a call is issued for bids on the structure, however, important additions will have to be made to the plans for housing other federal activities in the city. Work on this part of the drawings will be started at the Treasury immediately, it was stated.

OCCUPIES 4 FLOORS

According to Frank E. McMillin, superintendent of the division of postoffice quarters and engineering under Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett, the postoffice end of the new Pittsburgh building will embrace the first four floors. Space for other federal activities to be housed in the same structure will be provided for in additional stories.

In drawing plans for the building Mr. McMillin said that postoffice officials called in some of the most noted architects of the country for consultation. He added that the facilities which are planned will fill Pittsburgh's postal requirements for a good many years. The building will be erected on the Grant street lot already acquired by the department.

TUNNEY AND HEIRESS TO WED IN FALL

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight pugilistic champion of the world, and Miss Mary Josephine Rowland Lauder, of Greenwich, Conn., are to be married in the late autumn or winter.

This information was contained in a formal statement issued at South Bristol, Me., by Mrs. George Lauder, of Greenwich, Conn., and New York, confirming reports circulated in the last few days of the engagement of Tunney and Miss Lauder.

Miss Lauder is a daughter of George Lauder, Jr., a nephew of Andrew Carnegie, and her family, formerly of Pittsburgh, long has been in leading circles of society. Lauder inherited millions from his father, an associate of Carnegie's in the steel industry, who greatly increased that fortune before his death. He was a prominent yachtsman. Tunney, himself, is believed to have saved nearly $2,000,000 from his ring activities.

Miss Lauder's mother was Katherine M. Rowland before her marriage. Miss Lauder is 21 years old and is a graduate of the Finch School for Girls in New York and of the Lenox School of New York. Tunney is 30.

Just when Tunney and Miss Lauder first met has not been disclosed, but it is known that for more than a year he has been making frequent trips to Greenwich, where he has a marine corps buddy in the person of Samuel Pryor, Jr. It is believed Tunney met Miss Lauder through Pryor.

A confidential friend of Tunney's disclosed today that the engagement existed for several months before the Tunney-Heeney fight. Tunney is a Roman Catholic and his fiancee an Episcopalian.

Close friends of Tunney today denied a rumor that Tunney planned to change his religion prior to his marriage. They pointed out the easy manner in which religious differences could be surmounted under the rules of the church and also of Tunney's faithful attendance at the church of his choice.

The marriage will not alter Tunney's plans for a tour of Europe, he having already booked passage for August 16. Arriving abroad, Tunney plans a walking trip with Thornton Wilder, author of "The Bridge of San Luis Rey."

Tunney now is a guest at the Lauder home in Greenwich, but refused to make any comment on the announcement of his engagement.

Boy Killed, Mother Faints

Harry Ellis, 3, of 814 West Diamond street, North Side, was fatally injured at noon when he was struck by an automobile driven by Charles Smathers, 18, of 1846 Wynhurst street.

The boy's mother was prostrated by the shock and is in a serious condition at the Presbyterian Hospital, where the victim died a few minutes after the accident.

Ellis was in the street in front of his home when he was run down by the car.

Smathers was arrested and held by the North Side police for action by the coroner.

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 9.—Beauty and the spector of Death were at odds here yesterday. Death won when Jacob Perry Watson, 57, rural mail carrier, died while "Miss Waynesburg," his daughter Mary, hustled to deliver his mail, her daily task since he fell ill, so that she could compete in the "Miss Greene County" bathing beauty contest at Carmichaels Fair. CANOE UPSETS, BOY MISSING

Convinced that her son, Joseph, 21, was drowned when his canoe capsized near Twelve-Mile Island in the Allegheny River early yesterday morning, Mrs. Bertha Clifford, 837 Anaheim street, refuses to be consoled by neighbors venturing the hope that the missing boy will return home.

Young Clifford had gone with Agnes Theis, 20, of Heidelberg, to visit a camp on the island. When his canoe upset another camper rushed to the rescue, but was unable to find any trace of Clifford.

15 MORE DEATHS LAID TO MID-WEST HEAT

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Oppressive heat and lightning claimed five victims in Chicago yesterday during a blanket heat wave which directly or indirectly caused 15 deaths in the Middle West.

Lightning during an electrical storm struck a rock pile on a South Side beach and killed William Kilpatrick, 35. While the mercury hung between 87 and 92 in various parts of the city, three deaths were attributed to the heat, and there was one drowning.

No relief was indicated by forecasts. Continued warm weather today and tomorrow was predicted for the Middle West generally, with possible showers Friday.

St. Paul had three deaths from the heat, and Milwaukee's drownings totaled five. At Benton Harbor, Mich., one man died after collapsing from the heat, and another drowned in Indiana Harbor.

Corn crops in Iowa and Northern Illinois, flourishing in the heat, were described in crop reports as being two weeks ahead of last year.

International News Service.

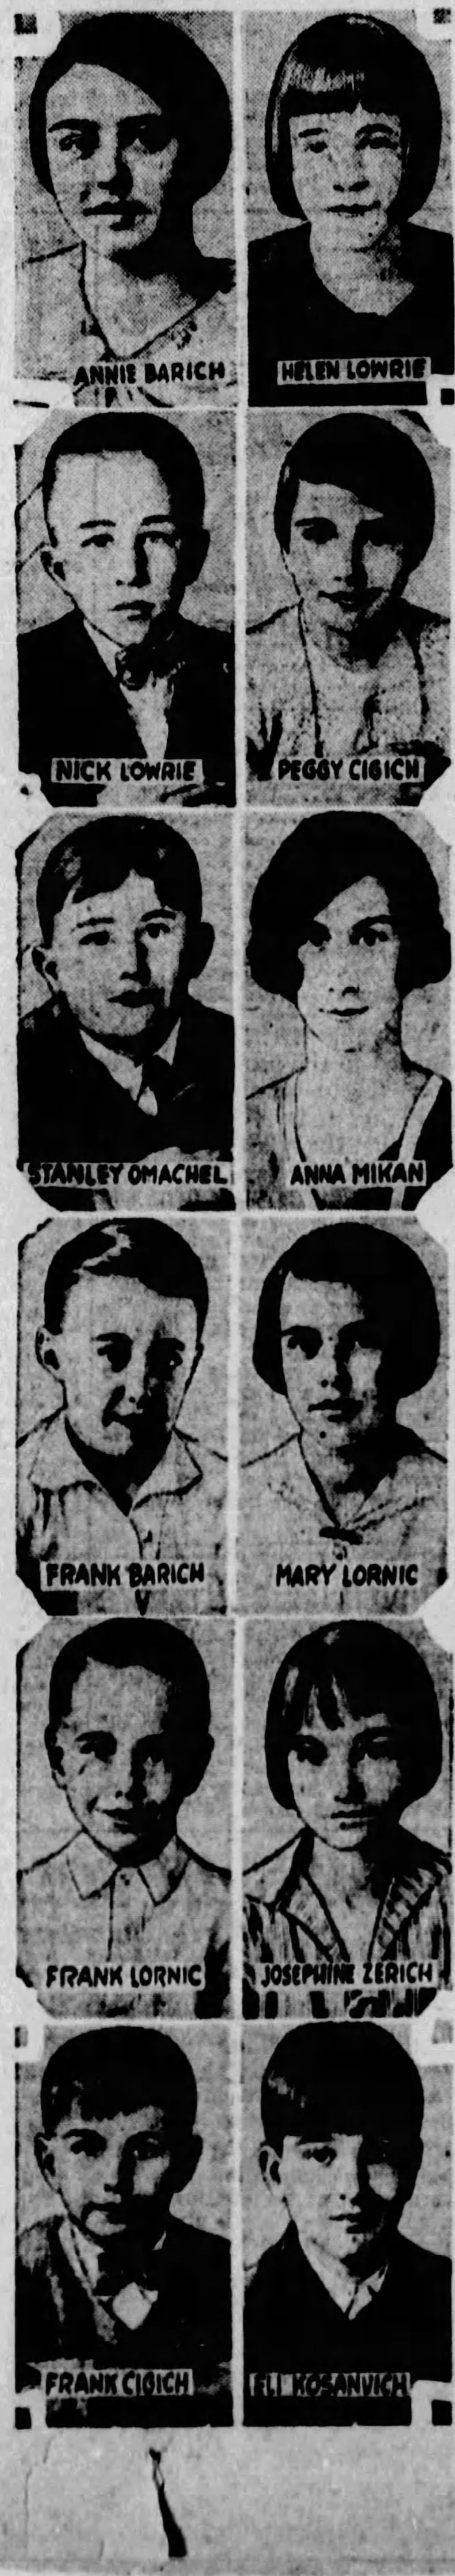
LANCASTER, Pa., Aug. 8.—One man was dead today and two others were in a serious condition at a hospital here as the result of the heat wave that settled over this district yesterday. Christian C. Young, of Washington borough, was found dead in bed. Patrick Munday, 67, of Manheim, and Benjamin Finnefrock, of this city, were in a hospital, having been stricken while walking along the street.

Bootleg Victims, 'Though They Drank Only Water

HAVE Trafford City bootleggers poisoned these 12 youngsters, now suffering typhoid fever in various stages?

Moonshine mash discarded through a leaky sewer is blamed for the typhoid fever epidemic which already has stricken 12 children and one adult and threatens to spread even further. The children, heated in their play, drank from a Seventh avenue hillside spring, polluted by the leaking sewage. The borough has closed the spring and the board of health and Red Cross nurses are fighting the disease. All of those down with fever live in Seventh and Eighth avenues, Trafford City.

Dr. Harold B. Wood, officially investigating for the board of health, summarized the case thiswise: "Ten typhoid cases, probably originating when the victims drank water from a spring coming from a leaking sewer in which discarded moonshine mash was found."



WINDS TOLL $5,000,000

in 24 hours. The lake had risen two feet.

Heading inland at the Palm Beaches on Tuesday, where minor damage occurred, the storm hit Jupiter, unroofing houses at will and snapping power lines on every hand. Much of the East Coast spent Tuesday and last night in darkness, to be joined in this plight last night by towns of the central area.

$5,000,000 DAMAGE

Then the storm raked ruthlessly over Fort Pierce, Vero Beach and Stuart, where collective damage estimates ranged as high as $5,000,000.

Next the disturbance dug into the sparsely settled East Central lake country, where St. Cloud was menaced for a time. By late afternoon yesterday cities of the central citrus belt began to feel the gale.

Alread the coast citrus area in spots resembled a winter scene, with orcahrds stripped of leaves and green fruit. Myriad snowballs of young oranges, representing fortunes, littered the ground beneath the bare trees.

In the central belt, meager reports of damage indicated that the same conditions obtained as the storm passed in the night, and communication and power lines began snapping as fast as they were repaired. The depressions were somewhat protected, but the higher levels faced the storm without armor.

Several towns and cities of the central belt were cut off in the midst of their efforts to give the outside world an idea of what was going on. Winter Haven was reporting that afternoon gales were approaching 75-mile velocity when the line sputtered out. A later meager report indicated damage similar to that in other cities of the battered section. Lake Wales and Bartow reported a 60-mile hurricane, with the usual quota of unroofed homes and bashed-in store fronts. Haines City was practically isolated, although one telephone conversation around midnight indicated that power lines were gone and highways blocked.

TRAVEL BLOCKED

From Orlando came first reports of highway damage, clearly indicating that travel was difficult if not impossible through much of Central Florida. Several highway bridges near that city had been bowled over and telephone poles and power lines littered the roads like scattered matches and twine on an aisle carpet.

Meanwhile a check of radio stations indicated that heavy shipping of the East coast was proceeding normally today after weathering with minor damage the worst of the hurricane. The Algonquin, Mallory line steamer, was safe and undamaged after a night of anxiety. She was proceeding to New York with 300 passengers and four men who were picked up in a small boat during the storm.

The "Havana Special" southbound east coast train, New York to Miami, reached its destination many hours late, after spending a night of anxiety in the storm area. Meanwhile, coming out of the Caribbean sea with increasing intensity was a moderate tropical disturbance whose course had not been determined, although it was headed generally in the direction of the hurricane now spending itself over Florida.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB

My first impressions of Pittsburgh—flame and smoke and noise—always will linger in my memory. I soon found that these elements of industrial energy were necessary in the spectacular drama staged in Pittsburgh by men whose names stand first among American leaders of finance and commerce. To some extent I became one of those players myself, and our number was legion. We were there to support the great stars who had founded the iron and steel and transportation industry in the earlier scenes of that drama, and right well do I remember those splendid fellows with me in Homestead, Duquesne, Braddock and Pittsburgh.

Now much is changed. You have new scenes, new players, new situations; but the motives are the same. Pittsburgh is moving toward its destiny, assured of the supreme place among great world centers guaranteed by God's blessing and man's accomplishment.

POLES TELL OF MOTOR DYING IN AIR

By MAJ. LOUIS IDZIKOWSKI,

Commander and Pilot of the Airplane Marszalek Pilsudski on Her Attempted Trans-Atlantic Flight.

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

[This is a continuation of Maj. Idzikowski's own story of the attempted flight and rescue, which began in yesterday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.]

OPORTO, Portugal, Aug. 9.—On the way to the Azores we found the wind against us. We knew we might easily miss the islands in the fog, and that even if we did find them that it would be very difficult to effect a landing.

We realized that we must as soon as possible, reach the western winds north of the Azores, so Kubala laid our course toward the northwest. We felt sure we would find the western winds due to low pressure north of the islands, and using them we could head over steamship lanes for the coast of Spain.

I concentrated my efforts on piloting and watching the oil pressure gauge, which was steadily moving to the left. Kubala was kept busy with observations to keep us from slipping off our course. Night was fast drawing upon us, but the visibility became better because the sky was clearing.

Our sextant, the new Fave-Le Petite type, enabled Kubala to fix our position with the utmost accuracy. We were flying just above a 500-meter thick blanket of fog. The sextant permitted Kubala to make several observations in the space of a minute without removing his eye from the instrument.

Particularly by night can exact observations be made, for then the Polar star can be used as a base in computing longitude and latitude. From the point of 41.30 north 34 west we had south and later west winds aiding us.

THROWN OFF COURSE

When we reached 42 north 24.8 west at 2:40 our speed was 200 kilometers. Then we nosed into an area of low clouds and thick fog. We were again thrown badly off our course for several hours.

Whenever we sighted ships, we circled them to get our bearings, with which we checked our compass. At about 6:40 we were able to adjust our course by new observations. We were then at 45 north 18 west.

After we met the steamships Aztec and Amakary, we felt that the oil pressure was sufficient to justify our going on. The motor was running with smooth precision and the temperature of the oil and water was normal. This gave us hope that we might yet save our ship by landing it on the European shore.

Soon we found ourselves entering the low-pressure area between the Azores and England. First there was a southwest wind. Then there was a period of calm, followed by the western wind we had hoped for. We were now flying at between 135 and 140 kilometers an hour, in perfect weather and a sea as calm as plate glass.

We were nearing Spain, and our hopes arose. At 8:40 we were at 43 north and 18 west and had but 700 kilometers to go. Kubala was scanning the horizon as though he already expected to see land. Shadows and clouds were often mistaken for land by us both, though we knew we were still far from land.

OIL GUAGE FAILS

Then we saw morning mists, and day was upon us again. Our excitement grew when our oil guage registered a rapidly falling pressure with land but 100 kilometers away. Then we realized that our motor might die at any moment, and began to make preparations.

Kubala prepared our rubber boat and started to get some of his clothes, advising me to do the same.

Then at 11:30 we got an intense breath of burning oil fumes, and we knew that the end was near. By this time we were on a ship lane and soon we sighted two vessels. We dropped a note to one of them telling them we were about to land alongside.

The message was in a can, which was picked up by the vessel and a lifeboat was immediately lowered. There was just enough life left in our motor to head us up to the wind. We landed with the motor already dead.

I made the landing successfully. The plane's tail touched the water first. Our lower wing broke. Then it seemed only a moment before we were in the lifeboat.

PLANE DAMAGED

Our ship was floating easily on the smooth water. The captain of the vessel agreed to pull it aboard, but the hoists were weak, and due to its immense weight, the plane was badly damaged as it was pulled up. The hull was injured and the wings broken.

This, it will be realized, was a terrible blow to us. Our main consideration when we found we could not reach our objective, was to save the ship for our government.

The point where we landed was 43.9 North 10.7 West. We were but 60 kilometers off Cape Finisterre. The time was 11:40 a. m.

The next morning we were greeted with warmth at Oporto. The authorities personally welcomed us and we began receiving cables of joy that we had not lost our lives.

But there is still sorrow in our hearts. We are sad at the thought of failing to accomplish what we had planned for so long, and for which we had worked so hard.

Vare Jokes, Recovery Forecast

International News Service.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 9.—Senator-elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, has passed the border line and has every prospect of recovering, it was announced early today in a bulletin issued by Dr. Ellwood R. Kirby, of Philadelphia, chief of the physicians attending Vare.

Vare was stricken with a paralytic stroke in the left side last Wednesday night. He now is at his home in Chelsea, near here.

Dr. Kirby said that Vare joked with him last night. Vare said he now is qualified to be president of a new club, "the organization of don'ts, not permitted, and we won't allow it," and that he is going to enlist all sick persons in the country in the club.

GOV. SMITH CONTINUES SARATOGA POLICING

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—State police in civilian clothes today continued their work of policing Saratoga Springs, under direct orders from Gov. Smith. Their continuance at the Spa now at the height of the August horse racing season was for the purpose of checking up on promise made yesterday to the Governor by Saratoga county and city law enforcement officials that they would "clean up" all alleged gambling and vice conditions, complaints of which had stirred the Governor to action.

The promise was announced by the Governor after he had had a conference with District Attorney John B. Smith and Sheriff William N. Cromie, of Saratoga county, and Commissioner of Public Safety Edward S. Sweeney, of Saratoga Springs.

STRAW VOTE WILL SHOW HOW RURAL U. S. LEANS

How will the ruralite vote in the presidential election?

This is one of the perplexing questions which will be answered by the poll being conducted by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph through out this district.

The straw vote will also indicate how the suburbanite will vote and how the city dweller will cast his ballot in November.

In connection with Hearst newspapers throughout the entire country, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph has under way the most extensive, honest and popular straw poll ever conducted in America, with hundreds of thousands of registered voters in every section being asked to express their presidential preference.

Most other forms of straw votes, with the possible exception of the personal canvass, which is slow and laborious as compared with a postal canvass, are unreliable and offer opportunities for repeating and duplication.

Then, too, the present style of straw vote reaches the byways and remote places, where there are citizens who will do their part in electing candidates as well as the city citizen.

In order to make the straw balloting as fair as possible, women are being canvassed in equal proportion to the men, for it is believed the femine vote will exert large influence in November.

There is no obligation on the part of the voter in this canvass, no names are requested and there is no check on the individual to whom a card is sent. The double postal cards are so arranged that by tearing off the return section and merely marking it, the vote is registered but the voter is not known.

Figures in the straw vote will be announced Sunday throughout the country. The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph having reports from all other sections of the country to show the way the wind is blowing from Maine to Mexico and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf.

It's the talk of the town—the 4-Page Color Comic Section published every week day as a big part of the Evening Sun-Telegraph.

SHOOTING STARS WON'T BE VISIBLE TO CITY FOLK

"Shooting stars" will make their annual display in the early hours of Sunday morning, when the earth passes through a trail of meteoric dust in the constellation of Perseus. While people everywhere, intent on watching the phenomena of the sky, will be on the lookout for the shower of trailing lights, astronomers do not hold out the promise of a brilliant spectacle.

Heber D. Curtis, director of the Allegheny Observatory, today declared that Pittsburghers who get up and watch for the display are likely to be disappointed. The lights of a great city, he said, dwarf the tiny flames in the sky.

"The term 'shooting star' is rather unfortunate," said Mr. Curtis, "because they are not stars at all, but small particles of matter averaging about the size of the head of a pin. These little particles are in many cases known to be the debris of disintegrated comets, and the average speed with which they strike the earth's atmosphere is 26 miles per second. They vaporize almost instantly and in effect 'burn up' in the high upper layers of our atmosphere.

"Once in a long while, a larger lump of such matter comes along, too big to be entirely burned up, and what is left hits the earth's surface. Many such meteorites have been collected and some examples can be seen in the Carnegie Museum. It is stated that in the world's recorded history only one man and three mules have been killed by being struck by the larger variety of meteor. At least 8,000,000 meteors strike the atmosphere of the earth every 24 hours."

LETTERS "DISCOURAGED"

MARGARET HINISH

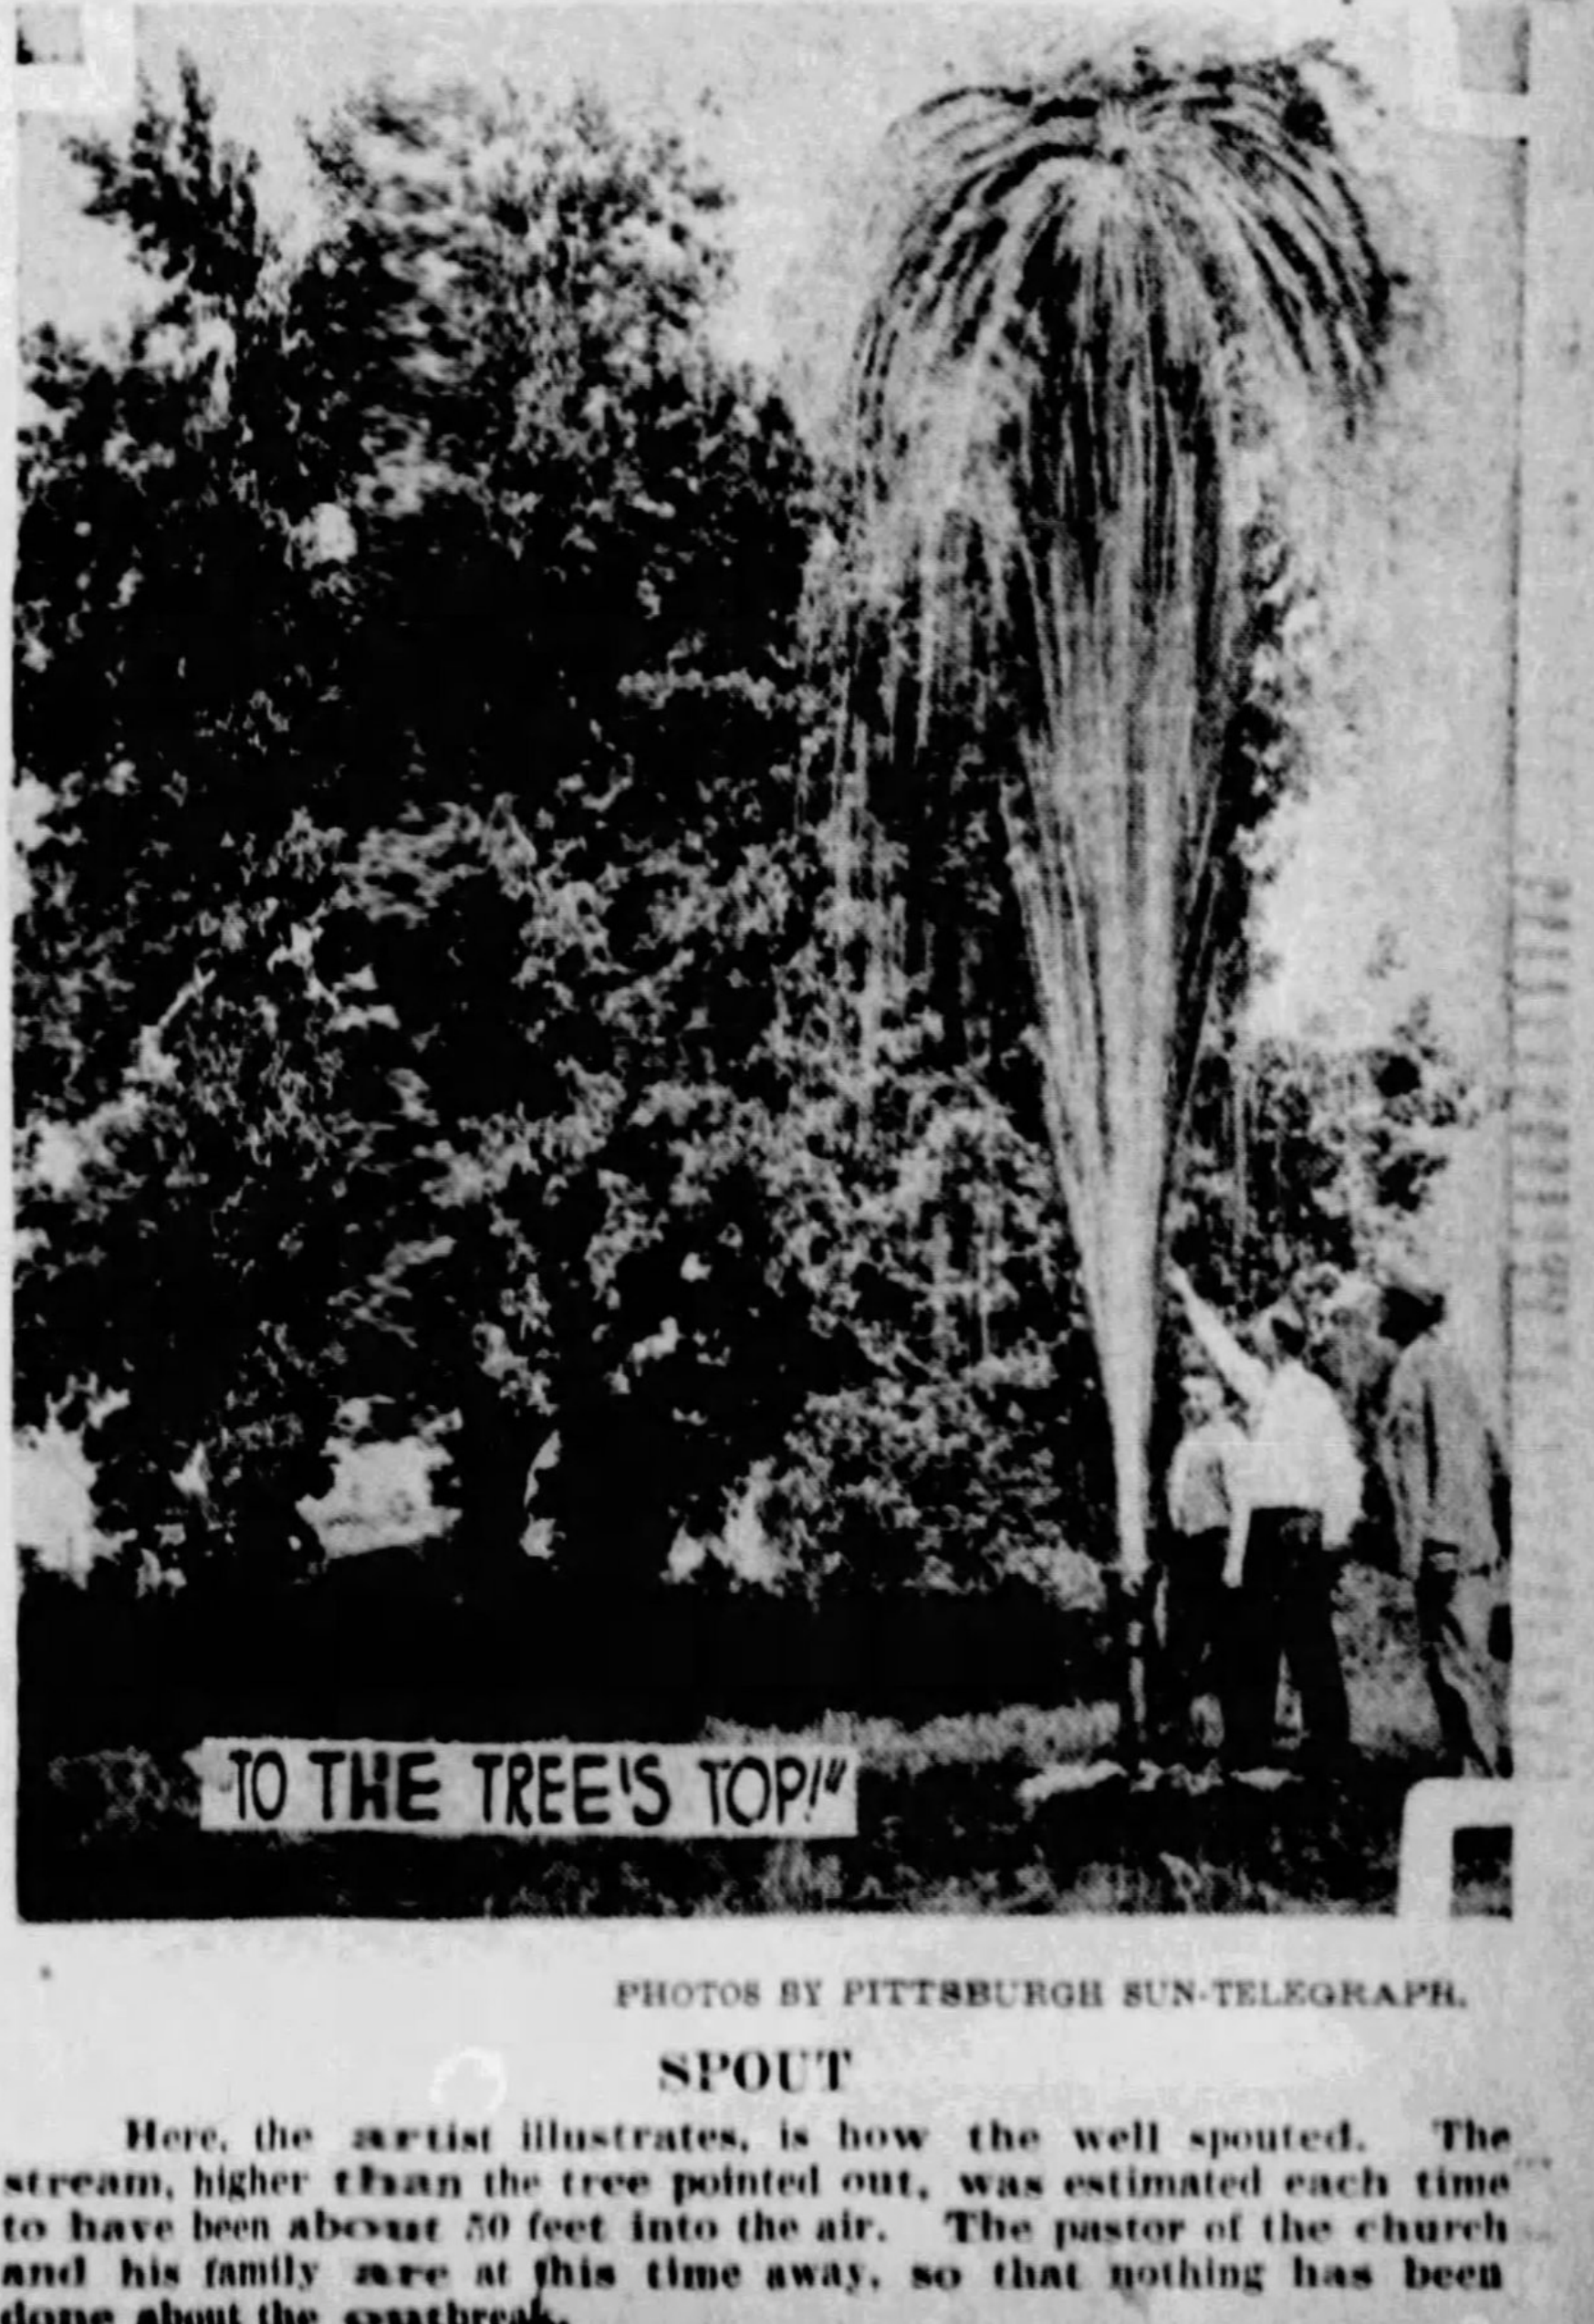
When J. L. Hinish, of 25 Clifton Park, found a packet of letters written by a boy friend, it was testified in Morals Court, he abused his daughter, Margaret, 19. Magistrate A. D. Brandon discharged the father, but gave him a severe reprimand, declaring that Margaret's correspondence with a young man did not warrant such severe parental disapproval.

Oil Well Casing -:- "Shoots" 50 Feet -:- "Dead" 35 Years

SILENT 35 YEARS

"MAN, SHE ROARED!"

ON CHURCH LAWN



"TO THE TREE'S TOP!"

DORMANT

Dormant for 35 years and now only a single string of five-inch casing ending just above the ground, this old oil well in Waynesburg "let go."

CHURCH

The well is located in the churchyard of Mt. Morris Methodist Episcopal Church, where it was drilled in 1888. Five years after it was drilled it was considered done, though it had been a good producer for a short time. A large quantity of gas was also produced from the well during its short life, old Waynesburg residents tell.

TWICE

On two occasions within several minutes the well spouted oil—oil! In the Mt. Morris village, when the oil spouted, residents were frightened, it is reported, and many attributed the streams to a volcanic condition. Oil men in the area, a rich field years ago, are puzzled by the actions. Pressure of new gas formed, however, is thought the cause.

SPOUT

Here, the artist illustrates, is how the well spouted. The stream, higher than the tree pointed out, was estimated each time to have been about 50 feet into the air. The pastor of the church and his family are at this time away, so that nothing has been done about the outbreak.

PGH. FLIER HURT

PLANE CRASHES; DIVE KILLS SOLDIER

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., Aug. 9.—F. A. Depoe, of 2441 Wedgemere avenue, Pittsburgh, suffered a fractured jaw and internal injuries when an airplane in which he was a passenger took a nose dive at the local airport late yesterday. He is in a hospital here. Adam Rudzinski, pilot, was cut on the hands and face. The men had ascended about 100 feet when the plane crashed.

SOLDIER KILLED

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Aug. 8.—(AP.)—Sergt. Sidney Hawkins, of Broadnax, Va., was killed and Lieut. James F. Walsh, of Farmer City, Ill., was probably fatally hurt when their Vought plane, of the Air Corps tactical school, Langley Field, crashed yesterday near Williamsburg.

Lieut. Walsh was taken to the post hospital at Fort Eustis. He had been at Langley Field as a member of the Second Bombardment Group since last October.

Sergt. Hawkins was graduated from the Air Corps technical school at Rantoul, Ill., last spring.

TOO OLD TO SLAP, BOY, 19, FLEES; MOTHER COLLAPSES

Elmer J. Peters, of 646A Middle avenue, Wilmerding, thinks when one has reached the age of 19 he is too old to be cuffed as a parental reprimand for misbehavior.

Slapped by his mother when he did something she disapproved, the offended young man ran away from home, Mrs. Peters told police, tears streaming down her face.

The saddened mother is nearly prostrated with grief over his absence, and almost collapsed as she told her story at the City Police Bureau of Missing Persons yesterday.

"Elmer meant so much to me," she grieved. "He has always been such a big help, and I'll do anything if he will only come back!"

The boy is described as being 5 feet 6 inches tall, with medium brown hair, and weighing about 140 pounds. He was wearing a blue suit with white pin stripe and a turn-down soft hat. He is a graduate of Union High School, Wilmerding, and always wears his class pin on the breast pocket of his coat, according to the mother.

He is a licensed moving picture machine operator, the mother said, and probably will seek employment in that occupation.

COUNTY ASSESSORS HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

The assessors of Allegheny county held their second annual outing and basket picnic in Hill Grove, South County Park, yesterday. Novelties, coffee, lemonade and sandwiches were distributed free. Assisting G. Harry Harrison, general chairman of the outing, were the following committee chairmen: Reception, Richard Burke; entertainment, Frank Alpert; dancing, Joseph Kilkeary; prizes, Fred Wolfe; sports, John F. Thompson; finance, Arthur Kennedy; refreshments, Harry R. Zoller; grounds and parking, John Black, and publicity, Vincent R. Boylan.

PITTSBURGHERS GO 200 HOURS; SHARE CASH

CRYSTAL BEACH, Ont., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Ending a grind that had been going more than 200 hours, the Provincial Government has stopped a dance marathon in Crystal Beach pavilion promoted by Milton D. Crandall of Pittsburgh.

Four Crystal Beach police officers yesterday ordered the promoter to stop the dance under a clause of the Provincial criminal code which regards as nuisances a contest tending to endanger the health of the public or individuals. The order was issued by Attorney General Price.

Three couples were still on the floor, shuffling wearily. They had rest periods of 15 minutes each hour since the dance began on the evening of July 30 with 12 entrants, who sought prize money totalling $2,000. After the first few nights, when interest lagged, crowds packed the hall, cheering their favorites and jeering the others.

Of the three teams left, William Downing of Los Angeles, Cal., bewhiskered "bunioneer," who participated in C. C. Pyle's cross-country marathon, and his partner, Leta Mentz, were favored to win.

The other two teams were Jimmy Malone of Pittsburgh and Etta Simmer of Buffalo, and Bernice and Florence Cames, sisters, of Erie, Pa. Rumor had it that Malone and his partner had not spoken to each other for days.

Two of the teams, Malone and Simmer, and the Cames sisters, who were tied for the lead, will share in the prize money. With his team's share of the prize money, Malone said their earnings would total $1,000 for the nine days of the marathon. Additional money came from sprint prizes and those put up by spectators and the promoter.

METROPOLITAN PLANS ADVANTAGES RELATED

FEDERATION PLAN DRAWN FOR POLITICAL SCIENTISTS

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Aug. 8.—Before an assembly of senator, governors, university professors and other experts in political science, gathered here for the second annual institute of public affairs, Joseph T. Miller, of Edgewood, Pa., yesterday painted a picture of a federated Pittsburgh which will become a reality if Allegheny county's so-called metropolitan plan is adopted.

Paraphrasing Victor Hugo's aphorism that "nothing is so powerful as an idea whose time has come," Mr. Miller declared that the day is close at hand when the mighty industrial area of Greater Pittsburgh will enter into a new epoch of greater co-operation, "with each separate and distinct unit throbbing mightily with a spirit pulsing in unison with the whole."

COVERS VAST INTERESTS

The speaker prefaced his description of the metropolitan plan with an account of the vastness of Greater Pittsburgh's population, wealth and industry, and of the geographic and geologic advantages which have helped to make the district a great industrial Titan.

"Carved from primeval wilderness by undauted effort, tireless energy and continuous labor, Greater Pittsburgh stands today as the sum total of the generation past," Mr. Miller declared. "Built upon a background of Scotch-Irish integrity and industry, it contains still the spirit of the pioneer, the genius of the inventor, the power of the organizer, the courage of the promoter, and the determination and thrift of a people who fear no labor. The whole community is financially co-ordinated, industrially integrated, commercially co-operative.

"We of today believe it is now time for a new vision of greater co-operation: We believe this vision can be made real by creative thought, by scientific political adjustment, by a very real mobilization of the brains and hearts of a devoted citizenship, all united with a purpose to construct a federated ideal and a federated vision with a God-given determination to serve our day and age as we should. We suburban men want our rights respected, but we want the whole area brought to accomplishment, to a grander progress, to a finer development for all our people."

The speaker traced the history of the metropolitan idea from 1906, when the "municipal tragedy" of Allegheny's forcible annexation took place, through a long period characterized by bitter antagonism between the "annexationists" of Pittsburgh and the "anti-annexationists" of the boroughs and townships, and up to the present stage of the Greater Pittsburgh movement, which he said is marked by a spirit of close co-operation between the borough men and the forces of Pittsburgh proper, both sides working hand in hand with a common purpose and for the common good.

YEARS OF STUDY

He told how the Metropolitan Plan, as it now stands, was evolved through years of discussion, study and debate, and declared that the plan is the most feasible and equitable solution to Pittsburgh's acute metropolitan problem that could be devised.

He said:

"It is thought that plan represents history in the making; that its main principle of federalized government has been fully justified by our nation's history; that it creates no super-governments, but takes an existing government, that of our country, and gives it new aims, new desires, new ideas and new power in possibly a re-shaped form.

"With a wider horizon, the old county government will become the federated metropolitan government, and will be supreme in all those matters affecting the general progress, happiness, health and future of the co-ordinated units. The plan retains in the local governments their supremacy in their own local and particular affairs. They keep their own officers, their own names, their own boundaries. This is the meat of the amendment which we offer to our people. We ask them to believe it, to think in its term, to vote for it, to work for it, to fight for it."

COMMISSION OPEN-MINDED

He stressed the point that the Metropolitan Plan Commission, which will be charged with the responsibility of writing the metropolitan charter, is most open-minded and has no intention or desire to put into operation anything to which there can be reasonable and proper objection.

In closing, Mr. Miller said:

"The Commission has nothing but sympathy and commendation for the public officials who work under our existing law and order, who operate shackled by antiquated methods. We have many most devoted officials who are curbed by legislation, centuries old, which would strangle any private business. We believe it is time for efficient, worthwhile procedure and the application of thorough knowledge. It is our purpose, if allowed, to help our leaders to bring about really great accomplishments."

JUVENILE HOME 'UNFIT,' ASKS NEW SITE

The present Juvenile Court detention home, Oakland, is "filthy, dirty and not fit for children to live in," Attorney John Laughlin, chairman of board of directors of the home, told county commissioners yesterday.

Attorney Laughlin asked permission to secure a new site and erect a group of four modern buildings to house the children in the future. The new plans call for a building for courts, court officers and employes, one for dependent girls, another for dependent boys and the fourth for an administration, hospital and isolation building. The new buildings would cost approximately $275,000.

"The sanitary condition of the present home is unspeakable," said Laughlin. "As many as seven children have been sick at one time with contagious diseases and the home has been under quarantine three times during the past year."

Commissioners agreed that new quarters should be secured. They instructed Mr. Laughlin to look for a new site and have plans drawn up for new buildings.

COUNTY SHIFTS FUNDS

A temporary loan of $68,000 from the general fund was authorized yesterday by County Commissioners. The money will be used for engineering expenses in making surveys, plans and estimates on major improvement projects passed in the Peoples' Bond issue.

The Commissioners stipulated that when $4,003,000 worth of the bonds are sold, the loan is to be returned to the general fund.

Temporary loans amounting to $1,300,000 were authorized returned to the funds from which the money was taken. It was used in making improvements last year.

Elenes for the new season, many of them labeled copies of Paris models, reproduce features brought out at the recent openings, namely:

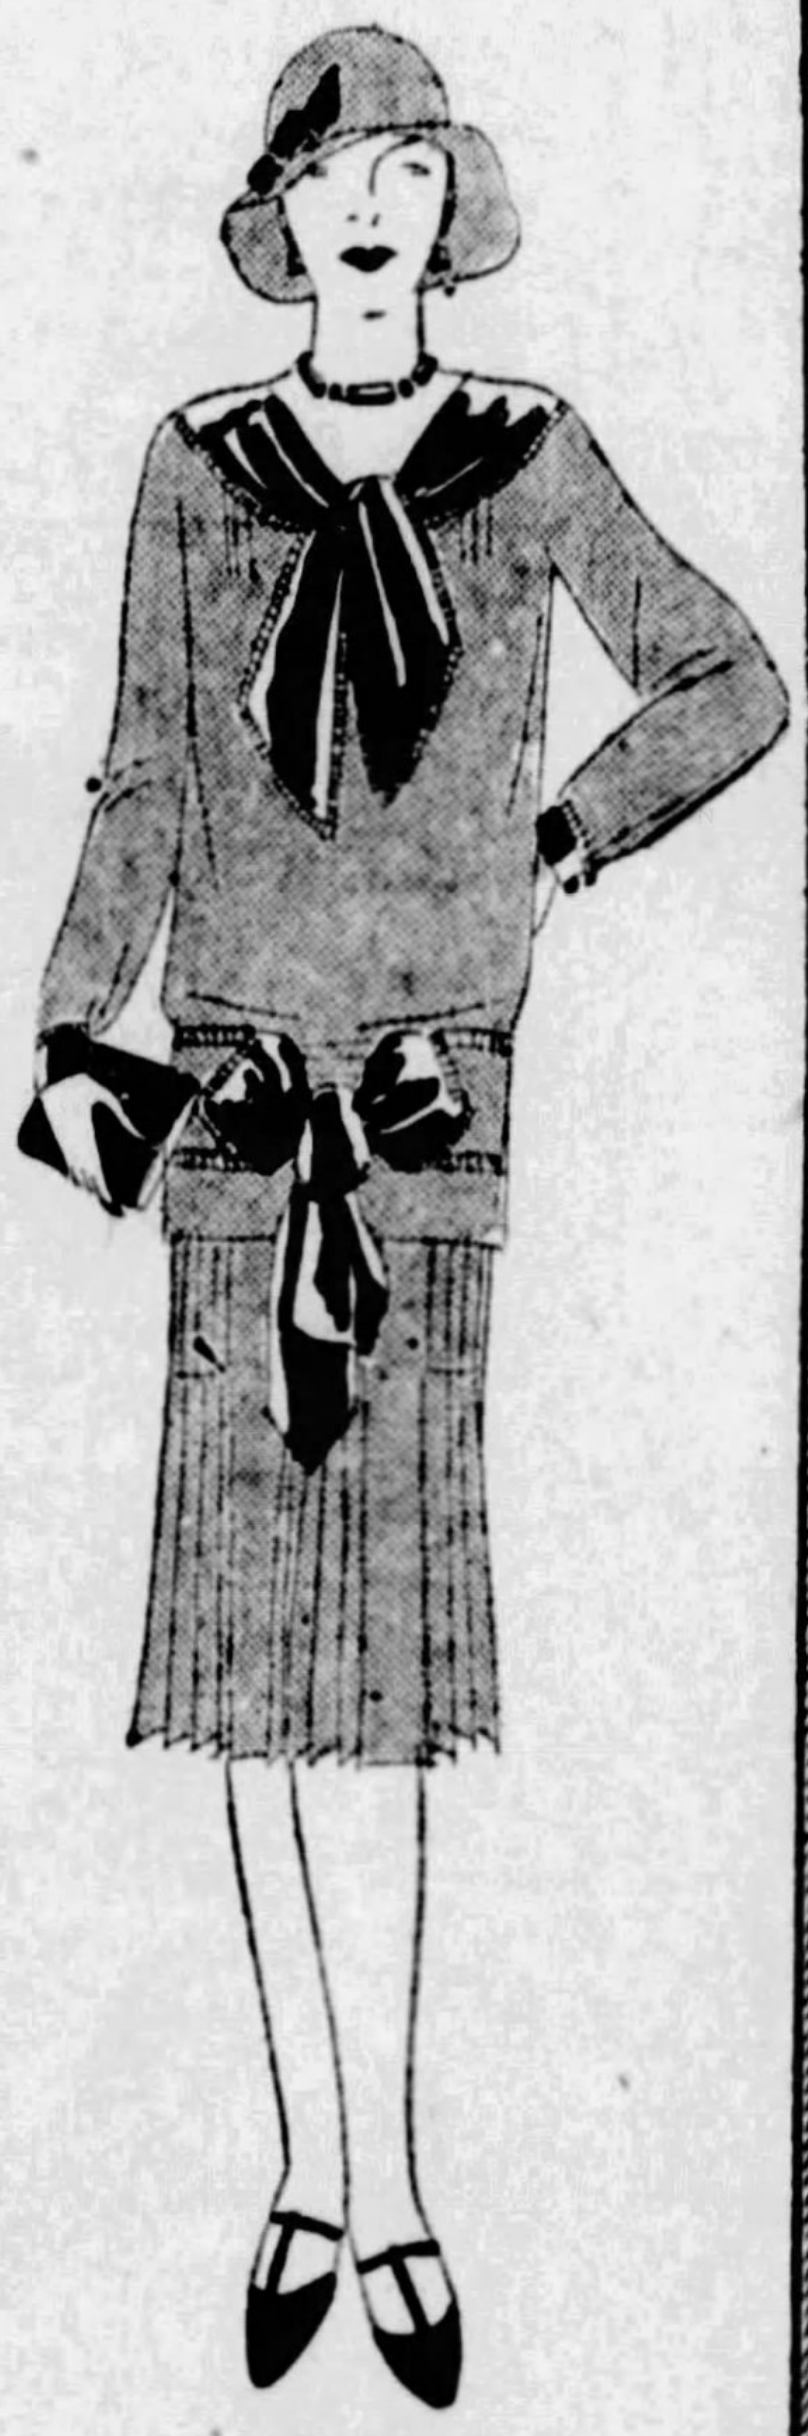
A Deft Touch of Velvet



Gives Chic to Frocks of Crepe

Applications of velvet in patterned effect, velvet used as yokes, as inset bowknots, as flounces, as seven-eighths of a skirt, or as a mere banding at neckline and wrists—these are touches which enrich fine new afternoon dresses of crepe Madelon or crepe Elizabeth, or the heavier Canton and flat crepes.

These are dresses which women may wear immediately, and which announce that one knows what is what for autumn.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

New Bills in Theaters Announced Along With News of Current Attractions and Notes About Film World

Leatrice Joy Works on Film, Signs for Stage and Takes Voice Tests Here and There

By REGINA CREWE

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 9.

BUSY days for Leatrice Joy. Besides starring in "Tropic Madness," she has signed for a stage play and has been taking "scream" tests for the "Squeakies" at Metro and elsewhere. Leatrice, a consistently fine trouper, was called to save the production schedule when Anna Q. Nilsson's recent injuries failed to mend in time for "Tropic Madness." Then came a plea to play the governess role with Edward Everett Horton in "Clarence," which opens just as Leatrice completes the picture. It is understood that she is one of the few who have taken "talkie" tests without the executives "viewing with alarm" the caliber of screen voices.

Jean Hersholt is busy on an all-talker two-reeler for Universal. It has been cast in the feminine lead. is called "Lullaby," and Mary Nolan

Jean is not without stage experience, but it has been many years since he trod the boards.

Although vehemently denied, the rumor that all bets are off between Tom Mix and his wife, "Vicky," has again come to life in the cinema city. The story runs that Mrs. Mix will return from Paris free from matrimonial bonds. The financial settlement is said to be one of those "cool" millions, and "Vicky" will have the custody of little Thomasina. Meantime the amazingly popular cowboy hero occupies his usual table at the "Momart" and not infrequently it is graced by Molly O'Day.

News comes that Gilda Gray will make a picture in England without even revisiting Holloywood to give the home grounds the once over. It would seem that with Gilda's voice, her stage training and her screen experience she would be an ideal bet for a sound film.

How many of the boys and girls were film fans back in the days when Florence Lawrence was greater than Mary Pickford? On the "Outcast" set at First National I spied the once famous star working as an extra girl. She was resting between shots, and, spying a reporter hid her face behind a magazine. On its cover was the word "Life."

The days of big money in movies seem relegated to the past. Eva Plentzner Scharnek, of whom you read as Eva Von Berne, has signed a long term contract with a sliding salary scale calling for from $50 to $500 a week. No more movie millions, nor movie millionaires.

Hollywood is saying "Joe Kennedy'll get ye ef ye don't watch out." For the new Mussolini of the movies, who holds the reins of three producing concerns with all the skill of a Roman rider, is stretching out his hand to graps the best man-material in filmdom. Just before he left for New York, Mr. Kennedy signed Benjamin Glazer, former newspaperman, and more lately associated with Paramount, to act as his advisor and to take charge of all sound production.

Until very recently Mr. Kennedy has been something of a mythical figure. Everyone knew of him, but few knew him. A new crop of stories has sprung up regarding his visits to the various studios he controls. He strolled about the various lots unrecognized, heard himself discussed, looked in on surreptitious dice games, and generally learned what was going on at first hand. One gag that has reached Hollywood from New York refers to one of the Kennedy-controlled theaters. "Has this theater got a ventilation system," one chap asks. And the answer is: "Sure, Kennedy's giving everyone the air!"

Monte Blue is receiving congrautlations on "White Shadows in the South Seas." But the concensus is that the picture would be better minus much of the sound synchronization. One thing seems pretty well demonstrated. It is not going to prove satisfactory to fit sound into a film after it has been taken. But "noisy" or silent, put "White Shadows" on your "must" list. Don't miss it when it comes to your theater.

A fallen star rendered a sermon in a sentence the other day when he defined gin as "what we used to buy while Ruth Roland was purchasing real estate." Ruth Roland is now quite fabulously wealthy, and will be still more so as her extensive properties continue to appreciate in value.

Patsy Ruth Miller and Malcolm MacGregor will be co-featured in a jungle thriller to be directed by Elmer Clifton for Tiffany. Sound will be introduced in sequences portraying life in the forest fastnesses of New Guinea. Clifton visited this mysterious country last year and procured many fascinating sequences which will be interpolated in the screen story.

WILL BE PRESENTED -:- IN COMING PROGRAMS -:- FILM AND FOOTLIGHT

Gus Forbes, of the George Sharp Players, will have the leading role in "Lightnin'," next week in Pitt.

Colleen Moore is the star of "Lilac Time," film with sound effects coming to Stanley screen.

John Gilbert is featured in "Four Walls," photoplay attraction scheduled for the Penn bill.

Sally Phipps carries the feminine interest in "The News Parade," film booked for Grand.

Howard Freeman, of the Nixon Players, whose next Nixon play is to be "Little Miss Bluebeard."

STOCK FROLIC HAS SONGS

Marguerite Merrill, the new leading woman with the Nixon Players, will sing four songs in "Little Miss Bluebeard," which the Nixon Players will present in the Nixon next week. The seats are on sale today.

Andrew Taylor, popular member of the Syria Players, will make his first professional appearance on the stage at the Pitt Theater next week, in the role of the Judge in the George Sharp Players' presentation of "Lightnin'."

John Gilbert, playing the role of a New York gangster leader, comes back as star of the Penn screen next week in a drama titled, "Four Walls." Joan Crawford plays the feminine lead. On the stage "Harem-Scarem" will present an Oriental atmosphere.

Colleen Moore's latest picture, "Lilac Time," will have its initial showing in the Stanley Monday. On the same date, New York will have its first view of the picture in the Globe Theater.

"The News Parade," with a cast headed by Sally Phipps and Nick Stuart, is announced for the Grand screen next week.

Milt Bronson and company of funmakers, singing and dancers will top the vaudeville in the Harris the last half of this week. On the screen will be Ricardo Cortez in "Ladies of the Night Club."

Billy Maine and Company, will head the vaudeville in the Sheridan Square the last half of the week in a skit, "You Oughta See Phil." Percey Marmont in "San Francisco Nights" will be the screen feature.

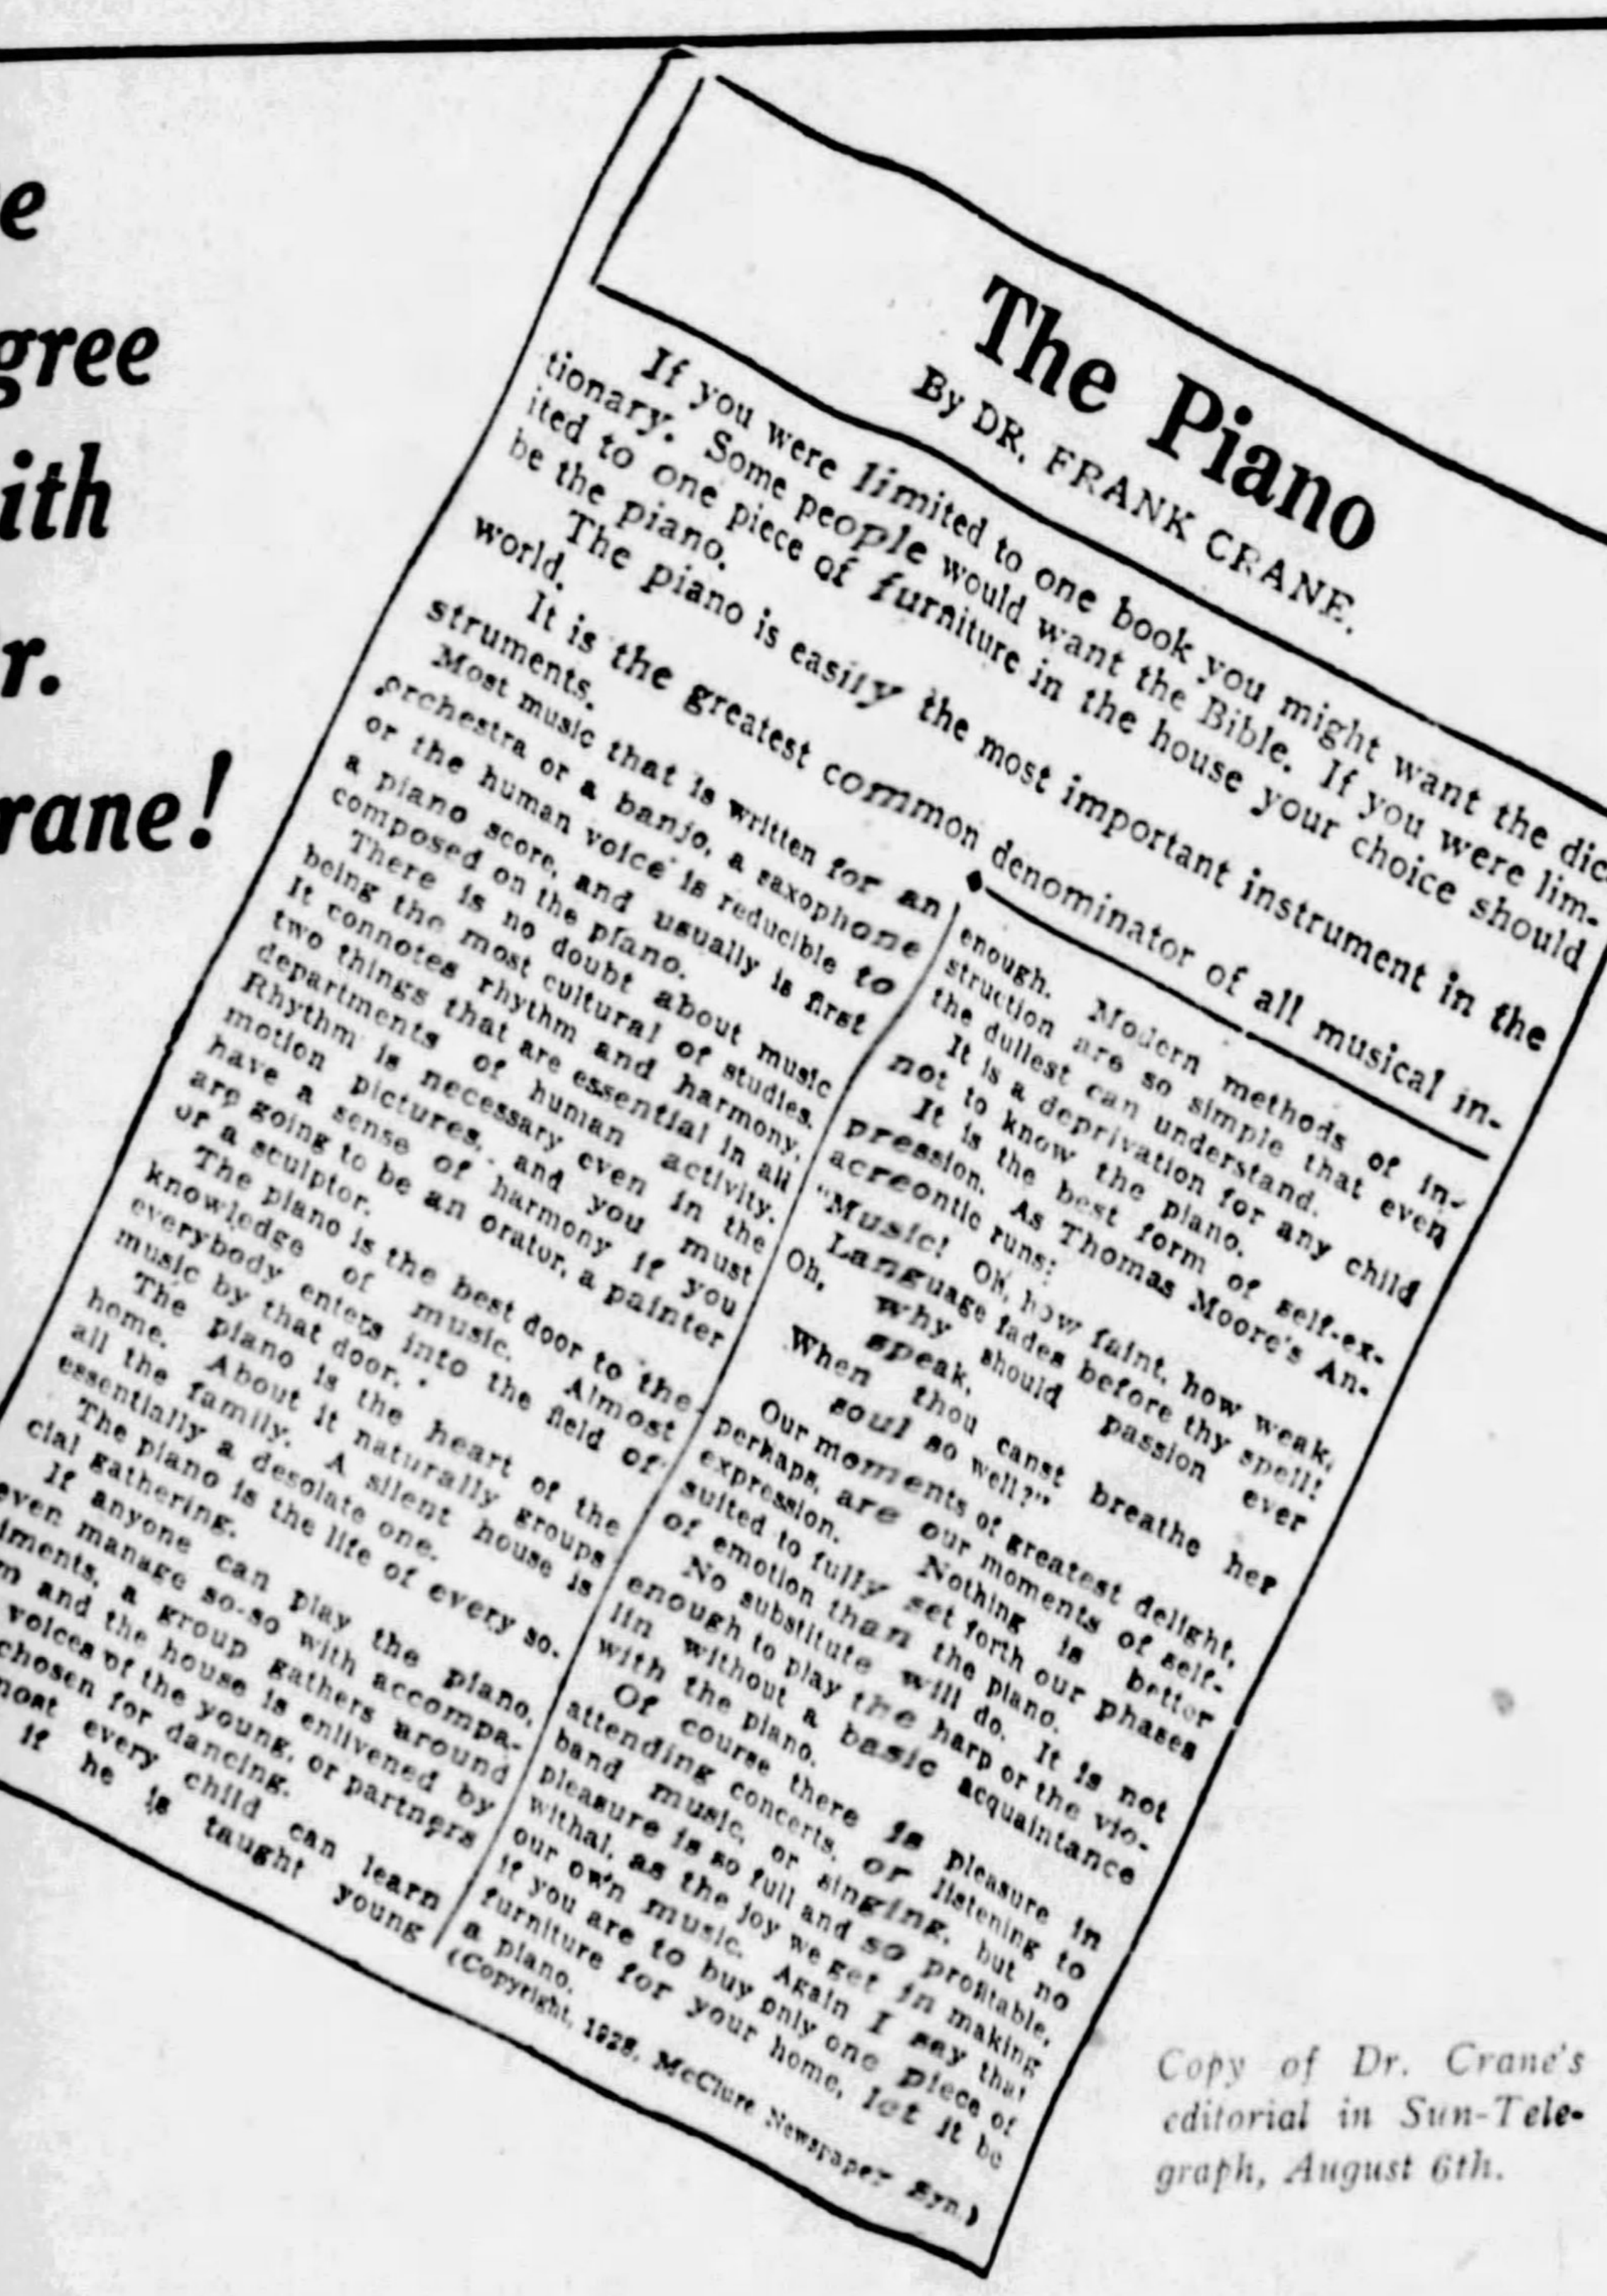
we agree with Dr. Crane!



The Piano

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

If you were limited to one book you might want the dictionary. Some people would want the Bible. If you were limited to one piece of furniture in the house your choice should be the piano.

The piano is easily the most important instrument in the world.

It is the greatest common denominator of all musical instruments.

Most music that is written for an orchestra or a banjo, a saxophone or the human voice is reducible to a piano score, and usually is first composed on the piano.

There is no doubt about music being the most cultural of studies. It connotes rhythm and harmony, two things that are essential in all departments of human activity. Rhythm is necessary even in the motion pictures, and you must have a sense of harmony if you are going to be an orator, a painter or a sculptor.

The piano is the best door to the knowledge of music. Almost everybody enters into the field of music by that door.

The piano is the heart of the home. About it naturally groups all the family. A silent house is essentially a desolate one.

The piano is the life of every social gathering.

If anyone can play the piano, even manage so-so with accompaniments, a group gathers around him and the house is enlivened by the voices of the young, or partners are chosen for dancing.

Almost every child can learn music if he is taught young enough. Modern methods of instruction are so simple that even the dullest can understand.

It is a deprivation for any child not to know the piano.

It is the best form of self-expression. As Thomas Moore's Anacreontic runs:

"Music! Oh, how faint, how weak,
Language fades before thy spell!
Why should passion ever speak,
When thou canst breathe her soul so well?"

Our moments of greatest delight, perhaps, are our moments of self-expression. Nothing is better suited to fully set forth our phases of emotion than the piano.

No substitute will do. It is not enough to play the harp or the violin without a basic acquaintance with the piano.

Of course there is pleasure in attending concerts, or listening to band music, or singing, but no pleasure is so full and so profitable, withal, as the joy we get in making our own music. Again I say that if you are to buy only one piece of furniture for your home, let it be a piano.

This store has consistently emphasized the fact that the piano IS the basic musical instrument. We emphasize, too, the importance of buying a good piano; for example, one from the distinguished makes listed below that this store takes pride in representing:

LEAP SAVES TOTS

AUTOIST STOPS RUNAWAY HORSES

Leaping from an automobile as a runaway team of horses, dragging a heavy asphalt wagon, dashed down Hamilton avenue yesterday, John A. Loper, of 4106 Howley street, stopped the maddened animals as they were about to trample a group of children.

A passenger in an automobile going west in Hamilton avenue, Loper saw the frightened horses dashing from the opposite direction. At Dallas avenue he ordered the driver of the car to pull toward the left curb. He opened the door and spang into the middle of the street. Shouting to pedestrians, "Get out of the way," he seized the bridles of the charging horses and brought them to a stop just in time to save the children.

Loper recognized the horses as belonging to the city. He drove them to the municipal asphalt plant, where he learned that the team had become frightened during the driver's absence.

HOLD SUSPECT IN GEM THEFT

City detectives last night were asked to investigate the disappearance of jewelry valued at $6,500 from the home of Mrs. Catherine Jenkins of 4748 Baum boulevarrd. The sleuths are holding Theodore Jackson, 25, a Negro of 1005 Lincoln avenue, employed by Mrs. Jenkins. The woman told police she missed the jewelry last night and that she suspected Jackson. The missing jewelry consists of a diamond ring valued at $3,500 and another ring and brooch valued at $3,000.

BRIDGE SIGN TO WARN SPEEDERS

To eliminate accidents and warn speeders traveling over Liberty bridge, a warning sign to be illuminated at night, will be erected at the south end of Liberty bridge. County Commissioners ordered the sign placed yesterday. A similar sign will be erected by the city on Mt. Washington roadway, about 150 yards from the entrance to the Liberty tubes. The signs will be lettered "Slow, Traffic Circle."

Good breakfasts mean good days

A good breakfast starts you off to a good day.

And that's just what Heinz Rice Flakes do! Not only are they good because they taste so good. They're good because they do you good.

The reason is that these crispy, crunchy flakes are naturally "laxatized" by the use of the natural roughage of the rice. This imparts to the flakes the qualities of a gentle, natural laxative and is due to a new Heinz process in cereal-making. Thus Heinz Rice Flakes add to the "Joy of Living".

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Sewickley Valley Bud, of Last Year, to Make Professional Stage Bow in This City Next Week

OUR old friend Thespis seems to have made another conquest down Sewickley Valley way, and from a most reliable source I have word that one of last year's debutantes is going to grace the boards of the Pitt Theater next week. There is no news for you, of course, in the fact that a Sewickley girl, Mrs. William J. Griffith, Jr., who uses her maiden name, Brown Mehard, on the stage, has become practically a fixture on the stock company programs this summer. Brown had had a lot of amateur experience before she ever thought of joining the stock company, and consequently she stepped into some quite good roles.

This latest member of the younger society group to answer the call of the stage is Mary Elizabeth McMahon, daughter of the Harry B. McMahons, of "Lombardy," on Corapolis Heights, and she "came out" last November at a tea which her mother gave at her home. She has studied and traveled abroad a great deal, but, of course, the footlights of the professional stage will bring an entirely new experience to her. The play next week is "Lightnin'," and the cast is a large one, necessitating bringing in quite a few additional actors. So Brown brought her friend Mary up from Sewickley for an interview with the manager, and as a result Mary was given the small part of one of the jury members in the trial scene.

Mary has done some work in amateur theatricals, too, and even now she is planning to take part in the Sewickley Cot Club's benefit play in the fall. And since Sewickley isn't nearly so deserted during the summer months as Pittsburgh is, there are a lot of Mary's friends there who are going to come up next week to see this second debut of hers.

ONE of the local visitors at Bedford Springs, I hear, is Mrs. Birney K. McMechen, of the Schenley apartments. And, by the way, Mrs. McMechen was one of the guests at a luncheon and bridge party given not long ago at the Bedford Springs Hotel by Mrs. L. R. Johnston. The guests of honor were Mrs. Joseph Bancroft, who is the wife of the president of the Bedford Springs company, and Mrs. Henry Ellsworth Bemis, of Palm Beach, Fla.

ALSO among the travelers are the John Parker Knables, who live at the Schenley Apartments, too. They have gone to Swampscott, Mass., and will be at the New Ocean House there for the rest of the summer.

NOT everyone is leaving Pittsburgh, although a glance at the many homes closed for the summer might make you believe it. Some visitors are to be here, among them the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Prentiss Hurd and their daughter, who have been in La Gloria, Province of Camaguey, Cuba, for several years. They will shortly come to Edgeworth to visit Mrs. Hurd's sister, Mrs. Frank C. Schroeder, of Edgeworth lane. After September 1 they will go to Yonkers, N. Y., where Mr. Hurd will be connected with Christ Episcopal Church.

JEAN BROWNE SCOTT may have broken her engagement, but there is still going to be a wedding in the family. Elizabeth Alcorn, daughter of the Samuel Stewart Alcorns, of Bryn Mawr, who was to have been one of Jean's two bridesmaids, has selected September 29 as the date for her marriage to James Hiller Hardie, Jean's cousin. Mr. Hardie is a son of the Walter L. Hardies, of Bartlett street, you know, and his sister, Janet, was to have been Jean's other bridesmaid. They will be married in the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. Andrew Mutch.

THE marriage of Miss Edith Marie McBride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. McBride, of Huxley street, Sheraden, and J. Howard Devlin, of South Pacific avenue, was solemnized yesterday morning in Holy Innocents' Catholic Church, by the Rev. D. J. O'Shea. Miss Thelma McBride was her sister's maid of honor and David L. Lawrence was best man. The ushers included Fred C. Devlin and Orville F. Devlin, brothers of the bridegroom. Mr. and Mrs. Devlin have left for a trip to the Great Lakes and Canada, and upon their return they will be at home in Parkers Garden, Mt. Lebanon.

AFTER a two months' trip abroad, Mrs. William Henry Taylor, of Bartlett street, has returned home. Mrs. Taylor had an audience with the Pope while she was in Rome. Her daughter, Becky Jane, will leave on August 17 for Bermuda and will return home the middle of September.

MR. AND MRS. ALEXANDER GARRETT CRAWSHAW, of North Homewood avenue, have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Mrs. Beatrice Crawshaw Cummins, and Gordon C. Walton, of Rochester, N. Y., which will take place Saturday August 18, in the bride's home.

MME. LEONORE GORDON FOY gave a chantante in her home in Shady avenue Tuesday night in honor of Mme. D. G. Kluger, of Warsaw, Poland, well-known musician and painter, who is visiting Dr. Luba Robin Goldsmith, of the Morrowfield apartments. The rooms were decorated to represent an old-fashioned garden, and the program was given by Margaret Davies Davis, coloratura soprano; Wilbur King, bass; Helen V. Irvin, reader; Jack Harrison, of New York, tenor; Elmer Henning, 'cellist; Elsie Corynne McCarthy, reader, and Claire Cupps, dancer, with William S. Henning, accompanist. Mme. Foy sang "The Love of Poland," which was written for her by Saslawsky.

THE annual picnic of the Sequilla Club will be held Saturday at Cabin No. 1 in Riverview Park. The committee in charge includes Albin Kenelly, Harry Davidson, Clarence Sperling, Tenny Miles, George Weber and Mrs. George Weber. The midsummer dance is planned for tomorrow night at Walton's Hall, Stanwix street, with Mrs. Jesse Cornelius in charge of the entertainment. The board of governors of the club was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walker at their home in Mt. Washington on Tuesday night.

THE marriage of Miss Hana Leh Rosenberg, daughter of Mrs. L. Rosenberg, of Forward avenue, and Dr. Ralph H. Flansbaum, son of Louis Flansbaum, of Atwood street, will be solemnized Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Washington Synagogue by the Rev. Robert Grafman. No invitations have been issued, but relatives and friends are invited to attend.

MR. AND MRS. J. FABER HANST and their daughters, Elsie Louise and Barbara Hanst, of the East End, are spending August at the Marlborough-Blenheim in Atlantic City.

MRS. C. C. HAX and Dr. and Mrs. O. C. Gaub are at the Briarcliff Lodge in Westchester county, New York, for an indefinite stay.

CLUB TAKES FLOWERS TO CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

SINCE the season of the Woman's Club of Pittsburgh does not open until October, many of its members will stay out of the city until late in September.

Mrs. Ray S. Judd and her family will leave Saturday by motor for a trip through the Shenandoah Valley. Last year Mrs. Judd was recording secretary.

Mrs. Joseph B. Drake will spend much of the remainder of the month at Atlantic City. Throughout the summer she and her family have been taking week-end trips.

Mrs. E. R. Braun, who was second vice president last year, is in Europe. Another member of the Woman's Club of Pittsburgh spending the summer abroad is Mrs. R. W. Johnston.

A trip to California appeals to Mrs. J. C. Schreiner who was treasurer last season.

A group of women from the club, Mrs. Drake, Mrs. Edwin Rawsthorne, and Mrs. Judd gave garden flowers to the little patients at the Children's Hospital.

The year book of the organization has now been published, and is being distributed to members.

Mrs. S. S. Stingel, a prominent member, has returned from a tour of Ohio, West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania. Later Mrs. Stingel will go to Florida.

WOMEN'S clubs may now be found in nearly every country of the world, even in the northern districts like Alaska. In Alaska nine women's clubs, located in Anchorage, Douglas, Juneau, Kodiak, Seward, Skagway and Wrangell have formed the Alaskan Federation of Women's Clubs.

The outstanding project of the Federation, like that of many of the clubs in the United States, is to establish scholarships and student loan funds for their own young men and women.

THE Rev. John Kocerka, of the Slavonic Congregational Church, will conduct vesper services Sunday evening at 7 o'clock in the Brighton Road Presbyterian Church.

Always a wallflower

until Jane learned to overcome "B.O."

(Body Odor)

THE GIRLS didn't mean to be catty. It was astonishing to see an attractive girl like Jane sitting there all alone—while everybody else was having a gay time.

Before they could change the subject, Jane joined the girls and heard them whisper—"B. O."

An awkward silence! "B. O." Body Odor! And Jane knew they were talking about her.

Since then Jane has become the most popular girl in her set. "B. O." never spoils her charm now, for she learned the easy way to overcome it.

End body odor—

by purifying pores

It's amazing how many people let "B. O." hinder their progress—without suspecting it.

We all have a characteristic odor. Others always notice it. But we ourselves cannot detect its unpleasantness because our sense of smell becomes used to it.

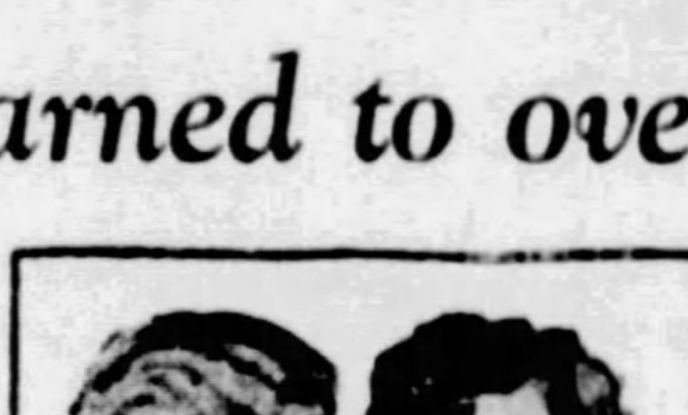
Perspiration is necessary. It's healthful. Even on a cool day, our pores give off as much as a quart of odor-causing waste.

To avoid offending—just wash and bathe often with Lifebuoy—the delightful, purifying toilet soap that millions enjoy. Its bland and abundant antiseptic lather deeply purifies pores—giving bath-to-bath freshness and ending "B. O."

So good for the skin

This same gentle, antiseptic Lifebuoy lather also purifies face pores. Keeps complexions glowingly fresh and clear. Guards health, too—by removing germs.

You'll learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant clean scent, which tells you it purifies, and which vanishes as you rinse. Use Lifebuoy a week and you'll use it for life. Get some today. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.



"Sitting out again! And when I saw Jane come in, I thought she'd be the hit of the party."

"She would be—if it weren't for her one fault—'B. O.'"

Give Your Hair a Chance

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Your hair has a really important role in the scheme of attracting. It can be glowing, it can be dull. It can be alive with high lights or it can be continually stifled and colorless.

See for yourself what a happy influence cleanliness is. I wash my hair once a week with the best shampoo I have been able to find. It cleanses so thoroughly that the hair follicles are free to function as they normally should. This brings out the natural coloring, which is most harmonious and flattering to your complexion.

You can get my Fruity Shampoo at any toilet counter. The price is 60 cents.

"JIGGS' DELIGHT" PLEASES HOST; MANY SEND RECIPES

Well, everybody feels better now. After that meal of corner beef and cabbage yesterday, it is not surprising that people today have that satisfied feeling toward each other and the world in general.

"Jiggs' Delight," served in many homes and in all the leading hotels and restaurants, has put the country in a good humor.

Tons of brisket beef and thousands of heads of cabbage were consumed yesterday throughout the country, according to the estimates of chefs who vied with one another in serving the popular dish.

In Pittsburgh, the interest in Jiggs was so great that in several restaurants the supply was exhausted at the noon luncheon. In that event, the same menu was repeated at the evening dinner.

Letters are being received daily from readers who offer their own recipes for preparing corned beef and cabbage and at the same time express their views of the entertainment they have in watching the careers of Jiggs and Maggie in the comic strip.

George McManus, cartoonist-creator of these popular people of the comic strip, has offered three major prizes for the best recipes, and for other good recipes and interesting letters he will give as a souvenir his autographed photograph. The first prize is a Tiffany sterling silver carving set and platter; the second, a picnic lunch kit, and the third, a crystal glass beverage set. The letters are being sent to Jiggs, in care of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

AIRMAN DROUHIN DIES OF FLIGHT SHIP CRASH

PARIS, Aug. 9.—INS.)—Maurice Drouhin, noted French aviator, died today of injuries received when the tri-motored monoplane "Rainbow," in which he was to attempt a trans-Atlantic flight next week, crashed to the ground at Orly flying field during a trial flight.

Drouhin's mechanic, Lanet, was killed outright in the crash. Two others aboard the plane, Gianoli, an engineer, and Manuel, a radio operator, were injured. Gianoli is said to be in a serious condition.

The crash was viewed by Rene Couzinet, designer of the plane, and Joseph Lebrix, French world flier, who was to have accompanied Drouhin on his trans-Atlantic attempt as navigator.

Couzinet had been aboard the plane on all its previous flights and had stayed on the ground this time "because he wanted to see the plane in the air."

Lebrix missed going up in the plane because he arrived at the flying field late. Both were deeply shocked by the tragedy.

Drouhin once had been engaged as pilot by Charles A. Levine. They became embroiled and Drouhin received 100,000 francs for his contract.

VOLCANO RAZES 6 VILLAGES

LONDON, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—According to reports transmitted by a resident of Timor, nearly the entire island of Paloeweh, in the Dutch East Indies, has been destroyed by the eruption of the Rokatinda volcano on August 4 and 5. Six villages were destroyed by fire. The death toll was believed to be nearly a thousand.

NAPLES, Italy, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—The eruption of Vesuvius which began yesterday continued with less intensity today. The new small cone on the southwest side gave forth a stream of highly liquified lava, which sometimes was sent into the air as much as 40 feet or more. Fire and smoke are much in evidence.

Agitation of seismographs, quite marked yesterday, had entirely ceased this morning.

BYRD PLANE LANDS NEAR GREENSBURG

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—One of the single-motored Fokker monoplanes to be used by Commander Richard E. Byrd on his trip to the Antarctic landed near here yesterday after what was described as a "super-test" preparatory to turning the ship over to Byrd in New York later this week.

The plane, a Fokker Super-Universal with a 425-horse power Wasp motor, has been flown 18,000 miles over 24 states, Mexico and the Canadian border, over mountains and plain, through all kinds of weather and at many different altitudes. The test started on June 24, and was in charge of G. E. Haynes, pilot for the Fokker Company; Edward Hitchman, Jr., co-pilot, and George E. Conklin, mechanic.

Haynes, the pilot, and his companions declared the test was a success in every way.

EARTHQUAKE CONVENTION SUCCESS AS EARTH ROCKS

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—The convention of hte Jesuit Seismologists' Association of America was voted almost a complete success today.

Last year, when it met in Chicago, the earthquake experts were invited to convene here in 1928, and as a special inducement were promised a real earthquake during the meeting. Many of the seismologists never having experienced an earthquake, voted for San Jose.

At 10:35 o'clock last night the Peninsula area from San Francisco to San Jose was rocked gently by an earth tremor which lasted about a minute and a half. The delegates, however, slept through the quake.

Father Henry, assistant director of the observatory at the University of Santa Clara here, was working among his instruments when the shock registered on the seismograph. He rounded up the delegates so they might examine the record immediately as proof that his promise to them had been kept.

No damage from the quake had been reported early today.

Smith at Brennan Funeral

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Gov. Smith has decided to go to Chicago to attend the funeral of George E. Brennan.

It is the intention of the Democratic presidential nominee to leave for the West this evening on the Twentieth Century Limited train, which would put him in Chicago at 9:45 (central time) tomorrow. He plans to return to Albany tomorrow night.

The Governor decided to drop work on his acceptance speech to be present at the funeral of the Illinois Democratic leader, who, in recent years, had been one of Smith's staunch supporters.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—A private service at the home and services at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church have been planned for George E. Brennan, dead political leader. Immediately following the Democratic National Committeeman's death early yesterday the family requested that there be no floral tributes.

Pallbearers have been chosen from among the men with whom Mr. Brennan was closeely affiliated by ties of friendship, politics and business.

Bus Spill Injures Thirty

LA GRANGE, Ind., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Thirty persons were injured, five seriously, when a Greyhound bus, traveling from Chicago to Cleveland, went off the pavement last night six miles west of here and turned over in a ditch.

The driver, badly hurt, said he had been blinded by the bright lights of a passing car. The driver of the passing car stopped, but his name was not obtained.

Doctors and nurses were called from here and many of the injured taken to nearby farm houses. The more seriously injured were brought to La Grange.

PITTSBURGH BUS CRASHES

SOMERST, Pa., Aug. 9.—(AP.)—A bus employe was seriously injured and several passengers slightly hurt when a New York-Pittsburgh bus ran into a bridge 15 miles northeast of here yesterday on the Lincoln highway. The small bridge was jarred from its base and the bus hung over the edge of the bridge, which is at the foot of a steep hill on a curve. Traffic was detoured while the bridge was being placed back on its foundation.

HEAT STRESSES NEED OF ICE FOR BABIES

As this hot weather continues, it seems that a greater number of Pittsburghers are realizing that something must be done to relieve the sufferings of the children in the congested districts of the city, and are electing to give their aid through The Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund.

One contribution sent in today is the sum of $25 given by Pittsburgh Nest No. 1231, Order of Owls, of the East End. The secretary sent in the gift with the hope that it would "be the means of saving just one more precious life."

Another contribution today is from two children who prefer to be known just as "Frances and Denny." They have added $8.58 to the fund, and another anonymous contributor has increased the fund by $5.

YANKS ROUT REBELS IN NICARAGUA

PUERTO CABEZAS, Nicaragua, Aug. 9.—One American Marine was killed and three others seriously wounded in a sharp clash with native bandits on the banks of a little stream 60 miles from Bokay, Capt. E. G. Howard, of Oakland, Cal., in charge of the Marine detachments here, revealed today.

A detachment of 48 Marines, commanded by Capt. M. A. Edson, of Burlington, Vt., was attacked by a large force of bandits while encamped on the banks of the stream, according to Howard. Fierce fighting followed in which 10 of the bandits were killed.

The Marines were greatly outnumbered, but quickly organized their forces and put the bandits to route. News of the encounter came when planes brought the wounded Marines here for medical attention.

Pvt. Myer Stengle, of Hartford, Conn., was killed in action.

The wounded marines are Pvt. Thomas Paine, of Roxbury, Mass.; Pvt. Tussel Schoenberger, of South Charleston, W. Va., and Pvt. Melvin Mosier, of Topeka, Kan. All three are expected to recover.

Capt. Edson sent word that he is now following the bandits. Planes were sent from here to assist him in tracking down the guerillas. It is believed the marauders were remnants of Gen. Sandino's forces.

Maj. Harold Utley, commanding the marines in the eastern area of Nicaraugua, is now at Bokay. Capt. Howard is in charge here during his absence.

Strangler Kills, Robs Widow

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 9.—Strangled to death, presumably by burglars, the body of an aged and reputedly wealthy widow, Mrs. Agnes Klosowski, 69, was found in bed at her home here early today.

The body had been bound with heavy cord and a shopping bag was stuffed in the mouth, police said. Mrs. Stella Volk, a roomer, discovered the murder, she told police, when she returned to the house shortly before 3 o'clock this morning. The house had been ransacked bureau drawers scattered about.

He acts as "court crier," calling Magistrate William J. Soost to the bench when Sergt. Charles Lenkner (left) and Close have all the cases ready. His bark is commanding. Lenkner, oldest Pittsburgh sergeant in point of service, has been on the force 31 years.

MOVIE BROADCASTING HERE TO REVOLUTIONIZE FIELD

When the time comes to broadcast movies into the homes as musical and speaking programs are now given by radio, America will lead the world in the new process, according to Merlin Hall Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, who was in Pittsburgh yesterday to witness the demontration of moving pictures transmitted by radio.

He characterized the experiments of Dr. Frank Conrad at the laboratories of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company as an "interesting development that holds great promise for the future in the fields of electrical transmission of sound and vision."

He declared that at this time no one accurately can speculate on the future of the new development.

"Right now it is but a laboratory experiment that has proved successful in almost every detail, but I do not foresee it as a common thing for the radio receiver for a few years to come," added Aylesworth. "Certainly it will be popular in the future, for the industry is progressing at a rapid rate and must continue to progress."

David Sarnoff, vice-president and general manager of the Radio Corporation of America, said that ability to transmit moving pictures by radio "lends new wings to bring culture, education and entertainment to the people of the world."

POLICE FOIL MAN'S DIVE OFF SMITHFIELD BRIDGE

Elmore Barner, 53, of 711 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, alleged to have taken off his hat and coat on the Smithfield Street Bridge in preparation for a dive into the Monongahela River early today, was arrested by Patrolmen Hugh Lavery and James Fay, passing at the time. He was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct before Magistrate John Orie and ordered held for observation.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

HE GOES in for ensembles in attire, that is, a brown suit will call for a light brown vest, a brown shirt, a brown hat, tan socks and shoes. His necktie, of course, blends nicely, too. He carries four fountain pens and three fancy lead pencils, all arrayed in the top pockets of a double-breasted vest. He wears, for purposes of temporary scrutiny, a pair of nose glasses, which dangle at the end of a wide, black braid.

We have seen him, and noted his attire, for a number of years, and had a nodding acquaintance with him, although never knowing his name. A friend told us about him and said he might have a story. So the other day we had lunch together.

His story: He had gone through a fortune of $100,000 in New York, mainly through the stock market. He decided to come to Pittsburgh to start anew. He selected the business of life insurance. On his first day here he borrowed a half dollar from the barber in the first chair of a shop with which to tip the barber in the second chair who had worked on him. Such was the state of his finances, after having once owned $100,000.

FOR a stranger in a strange town he picked out a business which is not easy even for a home boy with loads of local acquaintances. There was a slow start and some discouragement, but eventually some little success. Today he writes a million dollars' worth of business a year. He leads the company he is connected with. He carries four fountain pens and three lead pencils because once there was no pen in sight when he had a customer ready to sign on the dotted line. In the delay the customer changed his mind and the agent did not land the policy until six months later. He vowed then he would always have a plentiful supply of pens with him. The fountain pens, by the way, match his vest.

To use his name would reduce this to a publicity story. If you observe closely the men who pass you in the street you will recognize the man about whom we write. Look for a mauve shirt or a purple vest.

In Sixth avenue, in a triangle whose apex juts into Grant street and Bigelow boulevard, there is a monument in memory of the victims of the Pittsburgh traffic hiatus. Motorists and pedestrians, looking at the monument, will pause and reflect and resolve to be more careful. The monument brought back to mind a peculiar occurrence in a recent accident in Pittsburgh. It happened no less than two weeks ago and the records will be found in the archives of the Allegheny county coroner's office.

In a street in the South Hills a motorist struck a man, who, subsequently, died. Behind the motorist was another machine, the driver of which car had witnessed the accident. "Here is my card," said the witness to the unhappy motorist, "I will go on the stand and clear you of all blame in this case."

It was not until he got home that the witness discovered, by a telephone call, that the man who had been killed was his uncle.

COMES to this desk a bulletin of the Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church, in which the pastor, The Rev. Dr. Thomas Coakley, writes: "We wish to thank the chimesters of the Calvary Protestant Episcopal Church, across the street, for arranging their chimes so as not to interfere with the preaching schedule of the Sacred Heart Church. Calvary churchmen are good neighbors."

We often wondered what our financial editor did in his spare time and it took a discovery in a book store to offer a hint. In the book stalls is a book entitled, "Boxiana," sketches of modern pugilism from the time of Cribb to the present. The author's name is Pierce Egan. Still, it may be two other fellows as Pierce Egan, our financial editor, son of a one-time sporting editor, gets lots of fun asking sport reporters if Liefield is still with the Pirates or if they think Benny Leonard could lick Jack Dempsey. They counter by asking if he thinks John D. Morgan has faith in the future of the United States Steel Corporation.

Well, we've seen better paragraphs than that one.

Weather Conditions.

Showers and thunderstorms occurred at scattered places east of the Mississippi, during yesterday and last night, but there was little rain west of the Mississippi. The rains repored were light except at Raleigh, N. C., 2.62 inches, and at Tampa, 1.50 inches. Rain occurred over the entire state of Florida, as a result of the hurricane, which crossed the peninsula. It apears to be north of Tampa this morning off the west coast.

High pressure now covers the country west of the Mississippi, attended by generally clear skies, but with rather warm weather, especially over the Plains states. East of the Mississippi the temperature continues above normal.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling everywhere. Stage at Pittsburgh is 11.0 feet; Dam No. 2 8.0; Dam No. 6, 7.8 feet. The dams are up.

FRIEND OF YOURS?

How many of Pittsburgh's "traffic cops" do you know? Can you call by name the chap nearest your home? The fellow you pass halfway to your office in the morning? The one who waves you through downtown streets? The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is introducing them to Pittsburgh. The first, above. Guess his name tomorrow!

YESTERDAY'S "TRAFFIC COP" WAS WILLIAM A. MAYARD, UNMARRIED, 1246 JUNIATA STREET, NORTH SIDE, WHO HAS SPENT SIX OF HIS SEVEN YEARS' TRAFFIC SERVICE AT LIBERTY AVENUE AND GRANT STREET. HE HAS BEEN A PATROLMAN 10 YEARS.

Braddock Swept by Deluge

Braddock borough today is cleaning up tons of mud and debris from streets and cellars and estimating the thousands of dollars damage caused by the half-hour storm late yesterday, the worst in the borough's history. During the height of the storm, firemen rescued several women and children from window ledges where they had taken refuge when a retaining wall broke and let a wall of water sweep through a Corey avenue apartment building.

Although the storm was of short duration the rainfall was extremely heavy. Streets were flooded, traffic was at a standstill and virtually every cellar of buildings in Braddock avenue, Margaretta street, Center street, Sixth street and Corey avenue were flooded. The Braddock National Bank had two and a half feet of water in its basement. Thousands of dollars loss was suffered by business men who had stock in the cellars.

Those rescued from the Heck Apartment at 623 Corey avenue are Mrs. W. L. Hylands and her children, Billy, 6 and June 12; Mrs. Mary Allmerety and her son John, 10; Mrs. Michael Diportie and John Budor, all residing on the first floor of the apartment. A hillside slopes down to the rear of the building and water rushed down to the apartment, forming a large pool in the rear court. When the retaining wall broke the water surged into the first floor, endangering the residents. The firemen who made the rescues are Capt. Michael Sabol, Joseph Bennett and William House.

The residence of Joseph Miklaj at 627 Corey avenue, was almost wrecked when a 30-foot section of the foundation was swept away. The occupants spent the night elsewhere while workmen made temporary supports. Considerable damage also was reported by Loew & Sons department store and the Braddock Furniture Company, both in Braddock avenue.

Sunday Evening Auto Driving Most Perilous

HARRISBURG, Aug. 9.—The most dangerous time for automobile driving in Pennsylvania is between 3 and 6 p. m., Sundays, the State Department of Highways announced today after a study of complete statistics on on the 2,305 accidents which occurred in the state during June.

These accidents took a toll of 67 killed and 1,586 injured, including 41 persons who sustained skull fractures.

Heavy accident tolls also were recorded on Fridays and Saturdays, between the hours of 7 and 10 p. m.

It also was pointed out by the Department report that more than two-thirds of the 3,855 drivers involved in the accidents reported could be classified as "experienced"—having been driving automobiles for more than one year.

WESTMORELAND CREEKS STOCKED WITH TROUT

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 9.—Five thousand young trout, ranging from four to eight inches have been placed in the Hillside, Millwood, Washington, Furnace, Maginnis, Lynn and Powder Mill streams by the new Laurel Hill trout nursery.

Apartment Dwellers Flee Fire

Six families living in the Creston Apartments, 5709 Elmer street, were routed from their beds about 5:30 o'clock this morning when a fire started in the basement of the building. Aroused by the smoke and the noise of the fire engines, occupants hurriedly dressed and made their way into the street.

The apartment of C. S. McCleary, on the first floor, suffered most, the flames eating their way up from the basement and through the floor. McCleary said this morning he could not yet estimate his loss. The cause of the fire is not known. The Creston is a three-story brick.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

SIGNS

By LOUISE P. ARMSTRONG

"AND to see a star fall is a sign of death, Mrs. Winston?" The child's voice sank to an awed whisper and the dust-cloth she had held dropped to the floor.

"Nonsense!" exclaimed Dolly Winston almost bruskly, for her patience was nearly exhausted. "Rub over the desk again, Myra. See, you've left finger-prints! And don't talk any more about signs—they're only foolish fancies people believed in long ago; your Granny had no right to tell you such things."

Myra Clay picked up the forgotten dust-cloth and began rubbing vigorously on the desk as she had been told. Bending over to reach the legs, something dropped from the pocket of her gingham dress and thumped to the floor.

"What's that?" asked Dolly curiously, picking it up and examining it. "Why, it's a rabbit-foot!"

Myra, remembering her former admonition, flushed guiltily. "Granny gave it to me," she said defensively, "to bring luck." She seemed relieved when Dolly laughed and grew bolder. "It'll keep a person safe, too," she added, her dark eyes shining beneath the mop of her black hair, wisps of which were forever obstructing her view. "Can't nothing happen to you, Mrs. Winston, while you carry a rabbit-foot. That's why I ain't afraid, going home late nights!"

"Oh!" Dolly exclaimed, and she turned to hide the guilty look in her eyes. But her conscience assailed her, reproached her, as the afternoon lengthened, so that sometime later she called to Myra, who was in the kitchen peeling potatoes, and said: "I'm going to phone the grocery store, have them send word to your mother that you'll stay here for the night. It'll be too dark by the time you've finished your work, for you to walk back into town alone."

Myra was a recent acquisition in the Winston menage. Jane, Dolly's colored cook and efficient maid-of-all-work, had been called home on account of illness, for an indeterminable stay. Myra Clay, oldest of a family of six, whose widowed mother worked in the tobacco factory, was the best they seemed able to get in Jane's absence.

Tom Winston was half an hour late going home from his law office that night. He kissed Dolly, wearily shook off his coat and said: "I suppose the Nuisance has gone for the night!"

"Hush, Tom!" murmured his wife, her finger to her lips. "She's in the kitchen and might hear you. I had to let her stay overnight. The child's afraid, going that long way alone in the dark."

"She's only pretending to be," exclaimed Tom peevishly.

"She admires you immensely," Dolly said in a conciliatory tone. "Poor little thing—I've seen her watching you at breakfast, running out to see you leave. I believe you're a real hero in her eyes, Tom!"

"Send her off tomorrow, for goodness' sake," he pleaded in a moment when Myra had retired to the kitchen. "She drives me crazy!"

The telephone rang sharply as they finished the meal, and Tom went to answer it. "Sergt. Davis?" Dolly heard him exclaim. "Heavens, that's terrible!—You don't mean it?—Certainly, count on me, Davis! I'll be there as soon as I can drive in."

"What is it, Tom?" Dolly asked anxiously.

Her husband looked at her for a moment in silence, his handsome face grave. "You heard of that poor chap who lost his mind last week? Had to be kept in a straight-jacket for several days, and who's been locked in the jail until the men from the state asylum can come for him? Well, some fool was careless and he's escaped! He's believed hiding in town. I told Davis I'd come and help him and a few of the boys look for him. They don't want too many people to know—it might cause a panic in the town—and serious trouble."

"Oh," cried Dolly," how thankful I am that Myra didn't go home alone!"

"And I'm glad she's here to stay with you while I'm gone," Tom added with unction. "Better not say anything to her about it though—"

He stopped at a sound, and turned to see Myra at the door of the pantry, her little face saffron, terror in her dark eyes.

Tom smiled at her reassuringly, went over and put a hand on her thin, trembling shoulder. "Only a poor, crazy fellow, Myra—we'll find him and lock him up safe. And I'm depending upon you to take good care of Mrs. Winston while I'm gone."

The girl lifted her head, nodded bravely.

Dolly gasped as Tom crossed to the desk and took his revolver out of a drawer. "Surely, it won't be necessary, Tom—"

"The man took the sergeant's gun, Dolly," he told her grimly. "He seems to have a fascination or fire-arms. Lock and bolt up—keep away from the windows!"

"Oh, Tom! You can't go—he might—"

But he stopped her with a lift of his hand. "Can't leave him to the other boys," he said simply.

Myra ran out to the hall and returned with Tom's coat and hat. There was a strange radiance on her little pinched face that astonished them.

Tom was gone, the house locked, shades drawn. Silence everywhere, except for the ticking of the mantl clock, the splutterings of the fire on the hearth.

Once Dolly went to the window with Myra beside her, pulled aside the curtain and looked anxiously into the night. She uttered a low exclamation and sat down in the nearest chair, covering her face with her hands. "Myra," she said in a shaken voice, "I just saw a star fall!"

"That's a foolish saying, Mrs. Winston. Nobody believes in them foolish sayings any more."

"No, Myra, of course not! But suppose—he should shoot Tom down! How could they be so careless as to let him get away? A dangerous madman—you know he tried to kill—"

"Don't think about that, Mrs. Winston! I know he can't harm Mr. Tom!"

"How are you so certain, child?"

"I just know," repeated Myra gravely.

Again silence. The fire spluttering—the clock ticking away indifferently.

Suddenly they both sprang to their feet—they had heard an auto horn!

It was Tom. A moment later he was shouting to them from the door. "All right," he said. "Nobody hurt and the chap's locked up tight this time."

He was safe—he was home! Sitting beside the fire, still in his great coat, Dolly kneeling beside him, clinging to his arm, he told her and the round-eyed Myra how they had cornered the poor fugitive in a blind alley.

Absently, Tom put his hand into the pocket of his coat. "There were no shells in the Sergeant's gun," he said lightly, "so, after all—hello, what's this?" and he drew out a small, furry object.

"Myra's rabbit-foot!" exclaimed Dolly laughing. "To keep you from harm!"

As Myra burst into tears, Dolly's arms were about her.

"You think I'm foolish," she sobbed, "and—and the Sergeant's gun was empty!"

"Just the same, you're a brave sweet girl," said Tom Winston and there was a catch in his voice, a mist in his eyes, as he laid a tender hand on the Nuisance's tangled mop of dark hair.

SKYWARD By Commander Richard E. Byrd

Aviation of Future Will Not Be Subject to Present Dangers

CHAPTER XXXIX.

THE temptation to speculate about the future of flying is very strong. For, likely, when posterity looks back upon this amazing age in which we live, flying will be seen to have done more to promote human welfare than any other human agency.

Aviation has already been much hurt by air enthusiasts whose predictions have not panned out. Others have condemned the art without fair considerations. I try to steer a middle course between these two extremes, though I am confident that flying is going on to heights as yet undreamed.

Airships will, I think, be the freight carriers of the air.

Air transportation is relatively more costly than the automobile as to construction and application. An up-to-date six-passenger plane can now be bought for $12,500, a figure based on production of 50 airplanes. A small two-seater for family use can be purchased for $2,000.

Operation is still expensive. Gasoline consumption of the $12,500 plane, with a 200-horsepower Whirlwind motor, is about 11 gallons per hour and one pint of oil per hour for a speed of a mile and a half a minute.

Real Development

Aviation is fortunately entering the most controversial stage of its brief life. The ranks of designers and builders and pilots are being swelled every day both from the college classroom and from the workshop. As a result, its development is, in the sense noted above, slower than it was 10 years ago; but it is far more real.

Development in aircraft design will, of course, slow up as the limit of their possibilities is approached. I am one of those who think that that limit is a long way off. I believe the 100-hour reliable engine is at hand.

All the long-distance flights have established beyond a doubt the practicability of a multi-engined plane for use over areas where there are no landing places. This gives us another factor of reliability. It requires no flight of imagination to see that the large passenger plane of 1936 will likely have four or five engines (housed in the wing out of air resistance), not all of which will be required to keep their pilots in the air. Engines so housed will probably have to be water cooled.

In the next 10 years I believe that our big trans-oceanic radio companies will organize a complete system of air radio. Ships crossing will periodically fix the positions of planes to which they have been assigned. Powerful radio stations on both sides of the ocean will keep a continual stream of radio emanations pouring out over the dark wastes of the sea like beacons of light now visible near the shore. When this sort of system is in force, a plane need scarcely use her compass at all. She will simply start off in the right direction and depend on those ashore or on the surface of the sea to provide her with course corrections as she flies.

The next problem is one that trans-Atlantic flights last summer made the first great attack upon. This was the problem of knowing weather conditions in advance of getting under way for a long hop.

There will eventually be in operation a perfected system for knowing every hour of the day or night just how the weather is over any spot of the entire globe.

One more difficult air problem that is still unsolved is navigation of the plane. Of course, with perfect weather conditions and a good radio directive system working, the plane doesn't have to be navigated. I am positive that the long-distance plane of the future will be navigated by her officers in much the same way that a ship is navigated at sea. We now have a sun compass for daylight flying in high latitude and reliable airplane magnetic compasses. But neither instrument indicates to the pilot how much his ship is drifting to one or the other side of the course as a result of the wind.

Safeness in Future

We have instruments to tell how high a plane is, and in clear weather how much she is drifting, and approximately how fast she is going through the air and over the ground. But the figures obtained are still somewhat crude. And the longer the flight in bad conditions the worse such errors become.

One of the greatest inventions yet to be made in aviation is an instrument to be used on the plane itself that will give the drift of an airplane caused by the wind when flying in thick fog or above the clouds.

The pilot of tomorrow must be so secure in his navigation that he need not wait for perfect conditions, or depend for his results on unusual skill. He must have instruments of such accuracy and methods of such simplicity that he can achieve the same results as we did near the pole whether the weather be good or not.

Summing up, commercial aviation of the future need not be subject to any of the accidents that have made aviation thought of as dangerous.

There is the likelihood of landing in midocean on some sort of anchored way-station. Such a landing place is not practicable unless fog is entirely conquered.

There is still a feeling against increasing the speed of our planes beyond what we are doing with them today. Terrific speed records of about 300 miles an hour which have been made in the last three years suggest equally terrific accidents. On the other hand, it is quite conceivable that we may soon combine our high altitude exploration with high speed flying. A figure of 500 miles an hour is, I think, in sight.

The great boon for the future of aviation is public sympathy. I do not believe that government subsidies will help it much, if at all, aviation had better stand on its own feet. What we need is private capital and individual enthusiasm.

In closing let me go back for a moment to the stirring days in France that followed our arrival there by air in the America. While sorrowing for their own gallant fliers, Captain Nungesser and Coli, the French were not inclined to be envious of our success but met us with a joyful spirit of celebration.

May it not be that aviation in the future will in much this same way become the world's strongest instrument for peace?

THE END.

HALF WIVES by Winifred Van Duzer

Alan Tells Ione He Loves Her and She Promises To Wait for Him

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Ione Farr, just out of high school, gets a position with Max Weimar's music publishing house in New York. Her chum, Marie Karey, is engaged to Palmer Elliott, a young lawyer, and plans to marry him on a 50-50 basis. She is always holding up as a model Ione's sister Jenepher, who is married, has a small son and also holds a fine position in a smart New York shop. Benz, Weimar's office manager, takes Ione to Tin Pan Alley where she meets the famous song writer, Wolfie Speed, and persuades Antony Ros, a matinee idol, to use Speed's new song after Benz had failed. She goes motoring with Benz, who asks her what marriage has to do with love. Alan Blake, an accompanist for the Weimar concern, who shows intense admiration for Ione, attends a Hallowe'en party at her house and Ione realizes she loves him. Little Timmy gets lost and doctors fear for his life. Jenepher tearfully explains to her father that she is only working so her son can have a better chance in life, but Mr. Farr does not see it that way.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

THEY called her The Vine afterward, good-naturedly, laughing sometimes. And when her antics occasionally disgusted Ione she would shrug the thought of her away.

"Nothing in my young life! Let her act like the very dickens if she wants to. Sort of sorry for her, but she doesn't want to be friends. And she's no more to me than the picture of the girl on the old candy box."

She was to remember that airy insouciance in time to come. She was to wonder then if her life would have taken another road had she had seen Fluff Hartwick in a different light.

If she had given it a thought when she first caught the round eyes on Lanny, claw of hand passing over the curls.

But it was too late then.

CHAPTER XV.

THEY were going on a second pilgrimage to North Mountain.

The rains all were over now; there had been a night of stinging frost. The country looked as if some mad artist had emptied out all his tubes on it and stirred the colors together. Scarlet and gold under the vivid sky; chrysanthemums nodding in the garden like so many bright, fluffy suns caught in the leaves.

Jenepher came when she was dressing and sat in the sunny window. "You like this young Blake, Io?"

"Now, wouldn't you wish to know?"

"You do then. Look—you're 18. I was older when I met Tim, but you've got a better start. You say they like your work? And you've been there four months—"

"What are you getting at, Jen? Spilling a carload of advice on lil' sister? Why for, Mrs. Larabee?"

Jenepher looked down—spoke with a slow intensity. "You say he's just starting in, Io? Only his job—a small salary? I don't want to see you make a mistake. It all looks so rosy beforehand. If it just were meeting the big things together. But day by day—trifles—doing without. Tim and I—"

"Oh—Tim and you! Methinks you're warning me off from matrimony, sis darling. Rest easy. Nobody's asked me, sir, she said. Nor likely to if you wish to know."

"But listen, Io. A girl has so many chances today—a dozen careers. Success, fortune—freedom if she doesn't hamper herself with a lot of bonds. She can go anywhere a man can—achieve as much—if she can be as footloose.

"Trouble is, it takes a few years. Before she gets to a sensible age she's likely to step out and tie herself all up. Wants to throw over her future for the sake of love. Kid love—a flash and it's gone. Nothing left."

Ione was brushing the curls out of her hair; brushing it until it lay in folded wings against her face, all a jetty sheen.

She said, "Someone else told me that. 'Young, foolish love has no rich gifts for beauty,' was what he said. You think that, Jen? And yet it gives itself!

"Supposing everyone believed that way. There'd be no marriage. No families any more. Oh!"

"Don't be silly. Some women haven't the brains for success. They're the logical ones to carry on the race. Or if a woman is more capable than her husband why shouldn't she earn the wage—let him stay home? Reasonable enough!"

"Oh, Jen! As if a girl would want to marry a gentleman housekeeper!" She shook with laughter, but Jenepher kept nodding, holding her point.

"I only wanted you to think a bit before you tie up, Io. No use mistakes made over and over."

"I'll do that little thing. Now—oh, come down and speak to him. I hear Janey trying to feed him again."

The quick, jaunty look when he saw her in the door, hazel spreading his eyes. They walked jubilantly with the mild autumn glory like wine in their veins, saying little, hands catching as they swung along.

"See, Frills—up there—you blame me for dreaming of the Lone Trail?"

They left the path and romped through fields all gold and lilac. Presently they found a sheltered corner where they spread their lunch on the warm beach sand; a corner where scrub pine sent out its spice and dry leaves rustled.

A day to remember—ah, indeed! Little runs up the mountain—arms filled with pine cones. They piled them by the water edge for a fire at twilight.

Then up they must scramble again—up where they might see the sun fall over the horizon in a flaming glory.

They stood close together, breathless, and the wind caught her hair, lifted it, blew its soft fragrance into his face. She turned, laughing—saw the piercing joy in his eyes.

"Oh—"

His arms swept her, held her as if they never would let her go. "Io— sweet Io—I love you so! Glad, sweetheart? Tell me—"

She put her hands up to his neck, raised her lips. Rapture that was like a prayer rushed in and filled her heart.

"Io—" He touched her hair, drawing his fingers down her face. "Tell me, please—I love you."

"Yes, Lanny—yes, I love you."

"Beautifulest—"

They went back to the beach, after a long time, walking on the stars; lighted the pine cones. Red splashed down the waves; against the hills over across the river the moon began to glow like yellow satin.

"And I thought, Lanny—well, there were days you seemed so far away. I thought you didn't like me; that you were bored. You seemed to avoid me."

He was silent—answered finally in a low, driven tone. "I was afraid of this; afraid of loving you. Oh—what have I to offer you—or anyone? Starting in—years before I'm making enough to get married. Didn't intend to love you, Io. You believe that? Glorious, but I wouldn't have asked for it.

"What can we do now? Nothing definite for me—can't ask you to wait and wait. Tie you up, a girl like you." He threw out his hand, kept beating it on the sand.

She laughed and reached to his drawn face. "Why I want to wait for you, Lanny dearest, darlingest. Worth waiting for—indeed! Plenty of time. We're young. So bright you are—two or three years, maybe—"

"No, you don't understand. I want to give you those things; all the best. Have to get somewhere first—oh, this is damnable. If I'd started sooner!"

But she hardly heard him. Sitting there by the pine blaze, cheek against his shoulder, feeling his arms, she was caught in a soft tide of dreams.

"The moon in the water—like a golden road, darlingest, dearest. A long, golden road. Ours will be like that, all sparkle."

He lifted her hat, brushed up her curls, kissed them.

They went back slowly through the white autumn moonlight and when he would have left her at the steps she made him come in.

Janey put Sunday night supper on the table and they sat down, the four of them. Very cozy it was, very intimate. Ione kept looking proudly from Alan to Tom and back to Janey, talking in high glee.

Thinking, all the while, how well he fitted in here! how they liked him, the two she loved.

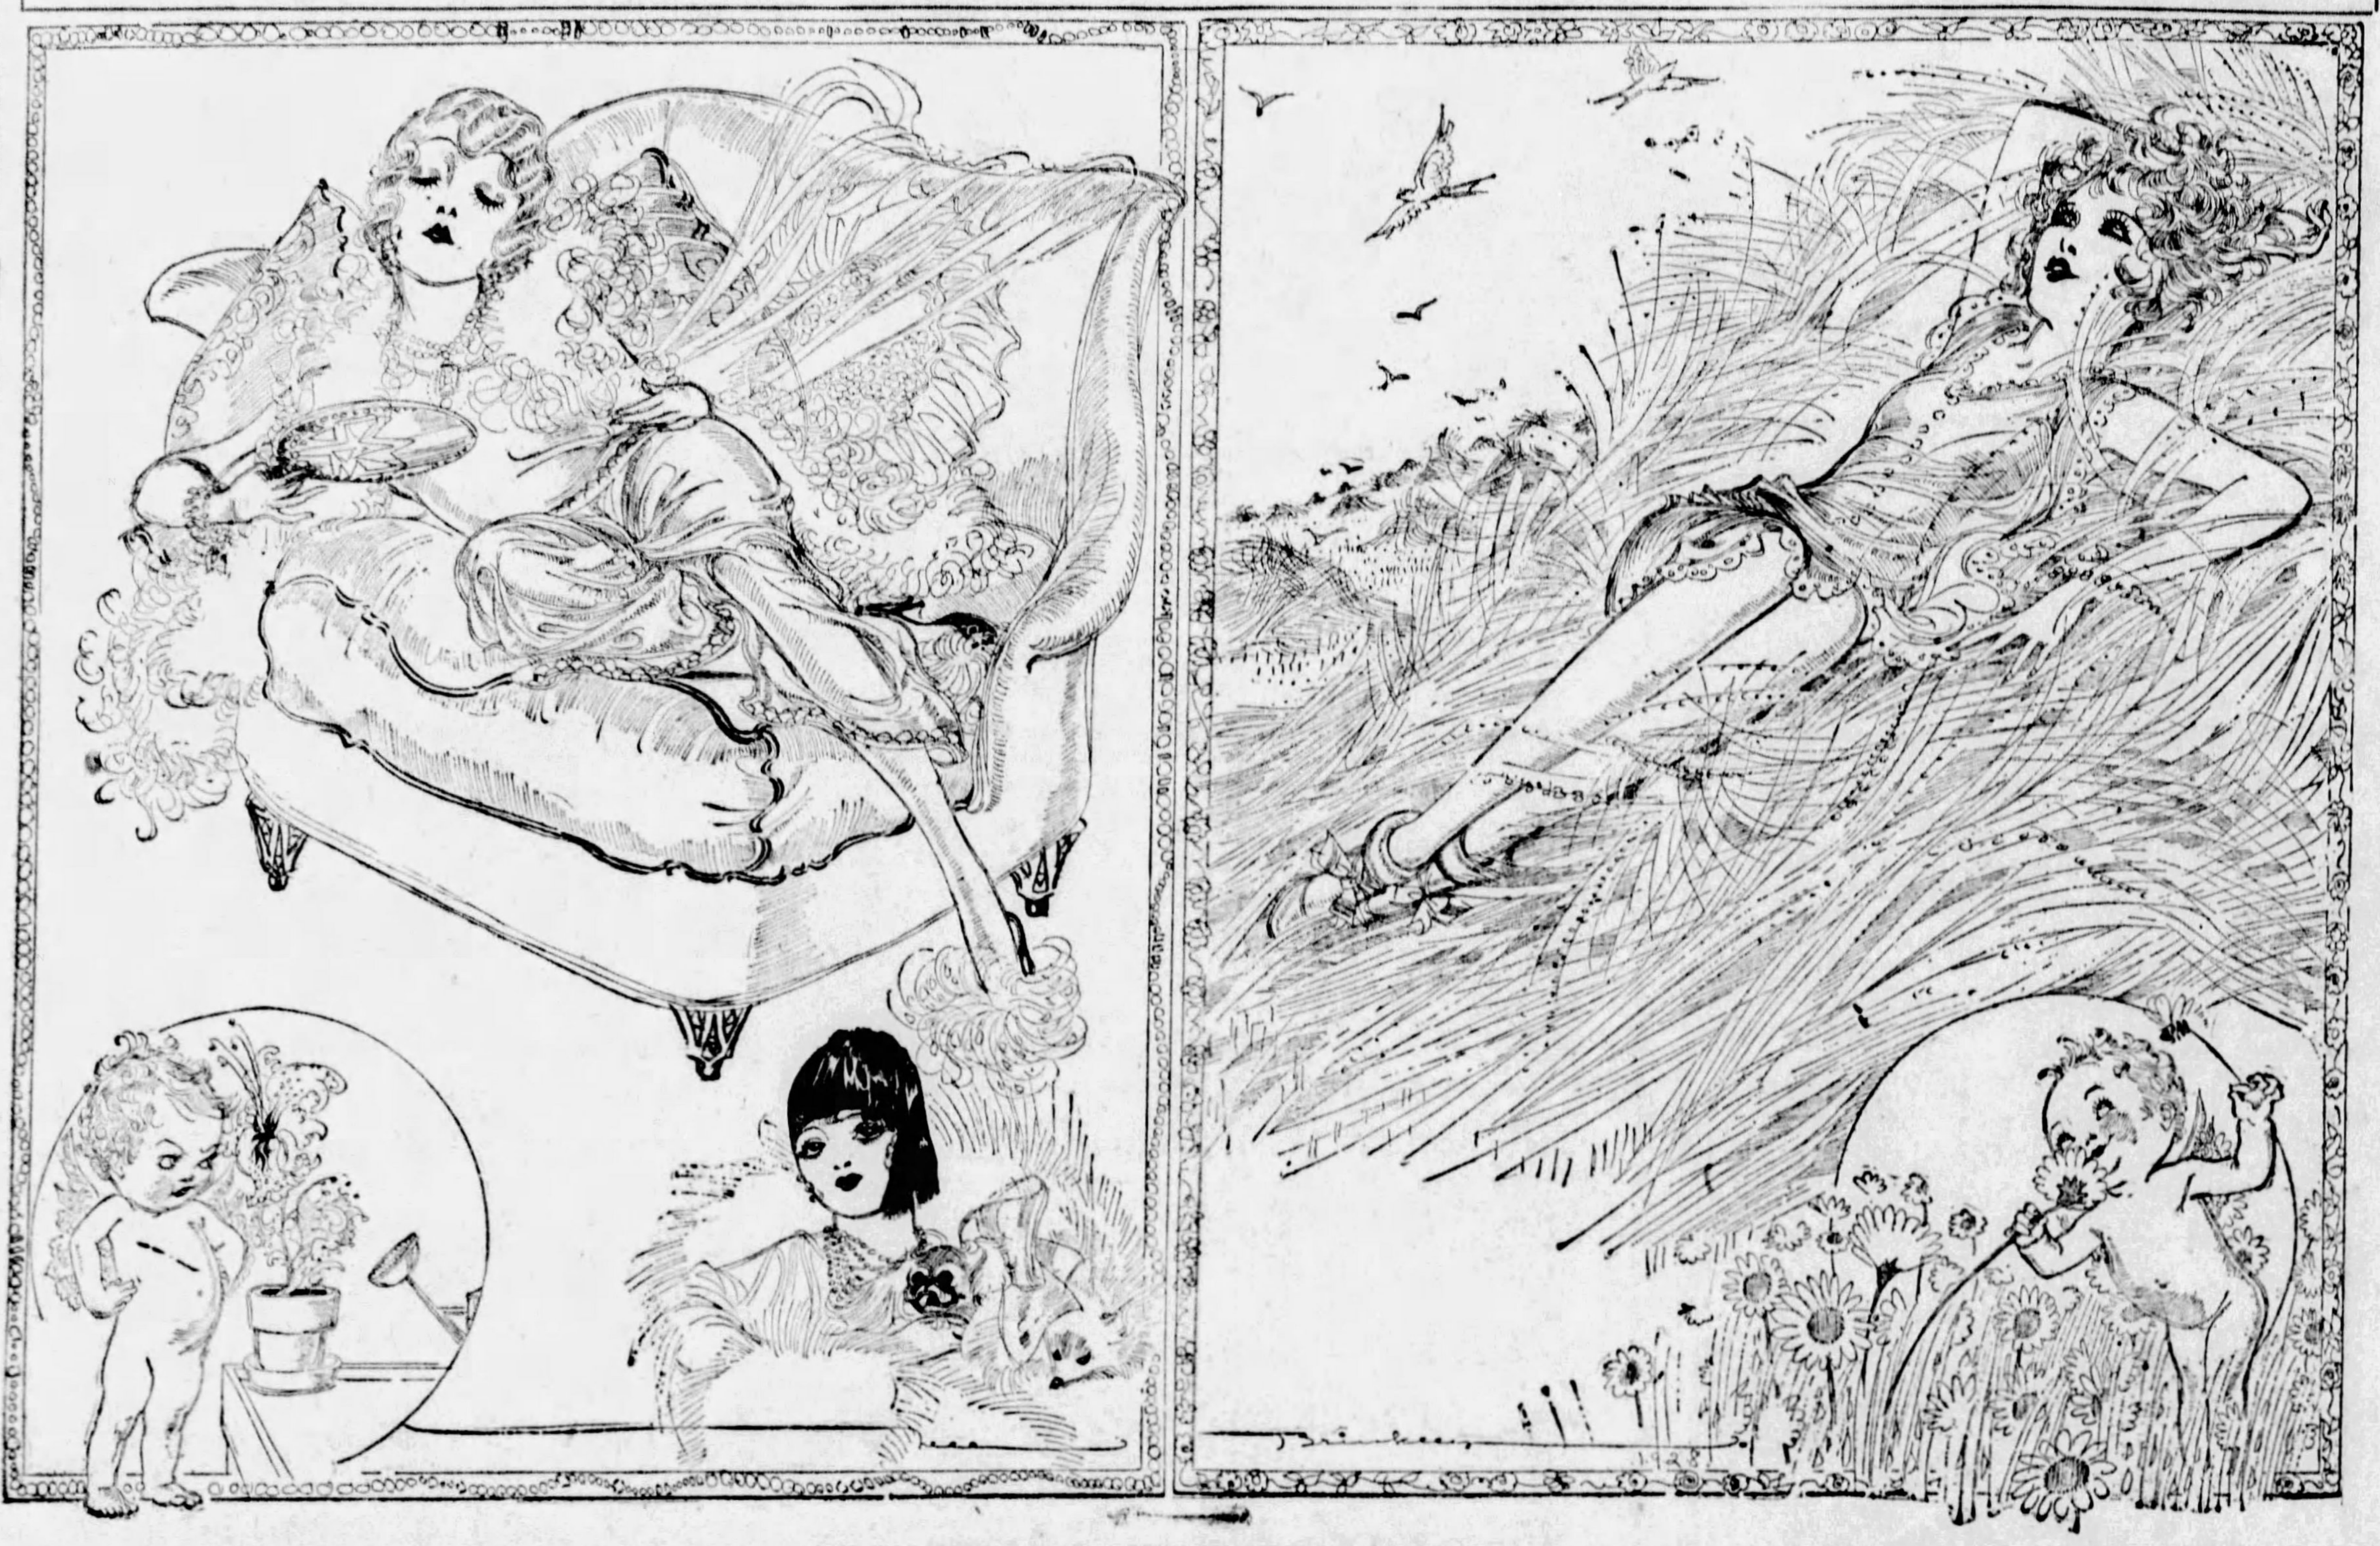
FLOWERS—HOT-HOUSE AND WILD

Drawn by
Nell Brinkley



CUPID wanders through the flowered places of the world and marvels at the variety. There are sturdy kinds that stand in precarious footholds, frail-stemmed hare-bells, constantly thrashed in Alpine winds. "They must be hardy, in that breeze, with those thin little stems," thinks he. Dresden-china girls in the maelstrom of industrial life. There are garden-varieties, semi-cultured, happy-faced, gaily-colored stocks with their faces to the sun, leading a quiet, jolly life. Home girls, living in a little protected round. There are potted, exotic creations, strangely spotted, heavily perfumed, fragile, but strangely tenacious, movingly colored. Delicate-lived girls—lazy souled, to whom HIGH-NOON means nothing but the mail, modern negligee and the mirror to look the pretty countenance over; to whom life means little but the attainment of ease. There are field varieties—fringe-of-the-wildwood-varieties, with faces to the sun, scented as the grape and the wild rose are scented, hardy, sky-kissed, loving rain and sun and wind. The girl who is early abroad, loves life outside of walls, beats it to the country on her vacation, if she owns a chaise-lounge uses it to toss things upon and prefers to hay-pile of perfumed grass if she can get it.

Cupid, by name of Dan, loves them all, even while he puzzles and marvels. Even while he scowls at the hot-house orchid, and grins with delight at the ones that bloom beneath the sun.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THIS MARRIED MAN

PRETTY soon it will take as many ushers to get a man into the church for his wedding as it does pall-bearers to get him out after his funeral.

* * *

After a few years of marriage, it is sort of comforting to see a man's hat hanging on the rack, even though his mind may be miles away, pursuing a golf ball, an idea, or another woman.

* * *

It takes all the edge off a man's enthusiasm to have a woman insist on being the sun of his existence, when all he wanted was a cute little satellite to revolve around him.

HELEN ROWLAND

A man does not feel that he is actually entangled, these days, until the "other woman" raises a row when he spends an occasional evening with his wife.

Most husbands are like a gun—never at hand when you need them or want them; but, somehow, it's a comfort to feel that you've GOT them around the house.

* * *

A mother feels flattered and almost set up, these days, if her daughter's friends will only treat her like a mental and social equal.

"Legs are not immoral," according to the latest legal decision. Alas, no! They have lost all their lure! They are all right to walk on or dance with; but as an eye-charmer, they are no more startling than noses or galoshes.

There are a few ideally happy marriages and a few unhappy ones; but most marriages are merely uncomfortable.

* * *

About the only thing on which some modern couples ever seem to be able to agree, is the "collusion."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, August 10.

AN interesting and lively day is forecast from the predominant lunar operations, as well as from a very intriguing mutual configuration which may have its principal reaction in the realms of the home, the affections or in cultural affiliations. These move along to pleasant and beneficial conditions in spite of small anxieties or delays. There may be an advantageous change or journey and business and employment may prove gratifying.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a lively and prosperous year, with pleasant and probably exciting occurrences in the personal affairs as well as in business. Employment is favored and there may be sudden change, but heed not small worries or delays.

A child born on this day may be clever and versatile and should make a success in several directions. Happiness in personal matters and some singular experiences are foreshown.

For the Lovelorn

Ford

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a young man, 2[illegible] years of age. Am very much in love with a young lady, who is a Catholic, however, her mother has no objections to my keeping company with her. Do you think it is right to have a sweetheart outside of my own religion? This girl occasionally flirts with other fellows, although she does not act serious with any other fellow but me. I am sure she loves me. Please tell me how to prevent a repetition of this, as it is very annoying. Yours respectfully,

FORD.

I see no reason why you shouldn't continue your friendship with this girl, Ford. If telling her how you feel about flirting doesn't stop it, then I am afraid nothing will. Learn to look on it as meaningless. Perhaps she is just friendly and not flirtatious at all. You may be too jealous.

Blue-Eyed Baby

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been reading your advice and think it is wonderful. Here is my problem. I am a girl in my teens and the boy is a few years older. He speaks to me now and then. Shall I show him I love him or not? Would it be all right to speak to him first or let him speak first? I'm a BLUE-EYED BABY.

You should speak to him first, of course. But don't let him think you are too deeply interested in him, my dear.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Noel Veritzen Pleads With Mary Harrison.

THERE was something in Noel Veritzen's voice as he uttered Mary Harrison's name which brought a catch into my throat. The word "Mary" was like a hushed note from his violin, and when he repeated it I wondered how Dicky's lovely young niece would resist the appeal, the passion, the reproach with which the young violinist had invested the word.

Marion and Junior had been swallowed up by the darkness, and I paid tribute to the adroitness and resourcefulness with which Lillian's daughter had executed the delicate commission I had given her. Under the pretense of a race and a competitive climb she had led Mary straight to the meeting with young Veritzen which the girl had heretofore refused, but which I had promised Noel I would arrange. Then, as the violinist came toward the little group, Marion had swerved and dashed back with Junior, according to my instructions, leaving Mary facing Noel.

It was no part of my plan to linger within hearing. Noel may have conjectured that I was somewhere near, but Mary had no inkling of it and I turned toward the ocean, planning to go as far as the edge of the high dune and wait there, watching to see that no intruder interrupted the things which Noel wished to say to Mary.

But I reckoned without the darkness which hid from me hummocks of sea grass and—more troublesome, pieces of wood and iron—the flotsam and jetsam of two centuries or more of coast dwellers. It was the noise made by the racers up the dune when they stumbled over these which had sounded to Noel's ears above the strains of his own music and given him the knowledge that Mary was near. As my foot struck a piece of iron, I halted, fearful lest Mary should hear the resultant sound. Noel was too absorbed in her nearness to know or care where I was standing. But I was sure that if Mary's attention were distracted by any unusual sound, she would snatch any pretext to get away.

So I stood still, an unwilling listener to the interview which Noel had wished. But for several seconds after Noel spoke Mary's name there was absolute silence. Then Mary's voice, choked, protesting.

"Noel! I—I didn't know you were up here; I—I—must go down right away."

I think she turned away and that he caught her arm, for I heard a low but startled exclamation, then a surge of words.

"Noel! Don't hold me! You must not! I have to go right away. You don't know——"

"But I'm going to find out," Noel said, resolutely. "I'm going to know why you're treating me this way."

"What way?" Mary countered, weakly, and I smiled to myself in the darkness.

"You know very well what way," he returned. "For weeks, ever since I came down here we've been such good pals—oh! Mary, there never was a playmate like you!"

"Thank you!" she said, and she uttered the simple phrase with the effect of sweeping him a mocking courtesy. But I would have wagered much that her pulses were throbbing at the tribute.

"And then, all at once, you cut off everything, all our walks and talks and—everything. You're always gone or they say you are when I come to the farmhouse, and then that last time when I begged to see you, your Auntie Madge brought me back the answer that you refused to see me, and when I asked her if you gave any reason"—I caught my breath in a panic, wondering if he meant to tell Mary just what I had replied to his question—"she said that you would give none at all."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Bad Food Causes Infant Ailments.

IT IS safe to say the majority of infant ailments can be traced to bad food. Of first importance, of course, is the quality of milk given the baby. If there is the slightest taint there is trouble.

DR. COPELAND

There must be no half-way measures in this matter. Either the milk is good, or it is not.

An upset stomach is the least of the symptoms which follow the taking of improper food. Fewer and constitutional symptoms will appear, too, if there is serious poisoning of the system.

But it isn't alone chemical poisoning or poisoning with germs, we need fear. These are bad enough, of course, but infected food may carry the eggs of various worms which will hatch and thrive in the intestine.

Of the several types of such worms, three forms are most commonly found in young children. They are known as tapeworm, the roundworm and the threadworm.

There are certain symptoms children sometimes have which we consider as among the chief signs of the presence of worms. This is true, no matter what type of worm may be present.

The first of these signs is picking at the nose. When a young child keeps fussing with the nose you must be suspicious of this disability.

Another common symptom is grinding of the teeth. It is surprising how much noise a sleeping child can make by grating the teeth together.

Itching and smarting and burning at the opening of the bowel are evidences of this form of infection. The child cannot resist the impulse to scratch and rub the parts. These efforts will attract the attention of the parent.

The signs I have mentioned are those found in older children. In infants, long before the age when teeth appear, there are other symptoms, equally suspicious. Loss of appetite, disturbed digestion, tossing in bed and constant restlessness—these are other evidences of worms. Convulsions, too, are not uncommon.

You must bear in mind that the symptoms I have named do not prove the presence of worms. They merely suggest the possibility. Many a mother has been positive her child had worms when the whole trouble was due to wrong feeding.

There is no absolute certainty that the child has worms unless they are found in the stool. Careful inspection will reveal their presence.

Threadworms, or "seatworms," as they are called by some, look like short pieces of white thread. Round worms resemble thick earthworms, five to ten inches long. Tapeworm is familiar to everybody.

When worms or parts of worms are found in the stool, all doubt is removed and your doctor will advise the treatment. He can direct a form of treatment that will relieve the trouble.

Reed Brothers Play 120 Holes At Highland

John Reed, 22, and his brother, Theodore, 17, of Ben Avon, set a golf record for the Highland Country Club, and so far as we know, a record for the district, when they traveled all of 120 holes on the West View Club's layout yesterday. The boys started at 7 o'clock in the morning with only the intention of playing 36 holes, but the fever took them completely—and they finally wound up before an enormous gallery in front of the clubhouse at 8 o'clock that evening, somewhat bedraggled for their effort.

They were shooting excellent golf on an average, winding up with far better scores than they started with. Theodore, the younger, averaged 41 for the 13 nines, while John averaged around 43. The spectacular hole of the grind came on the par 5 ninety-eighth hole, when Theodore scored an eagle 3.

Loughran Fails To Get Title Rank in Pa.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission has declined Tommy Loughran's request that he be recognized in Pennsylvania as the world heavyweight champion.

In reply to a letter from Joseph Smith, Loughran's manager, who wrote in behalf of the light-heavyweight titleholder, the Commission said it was not handing out any titles, and that Loughran must win the heavyweight crown in the ring, if he wants it badly, just as he won the title he now holds.

HUDKINS MAY GET CRACK AT DUNDEE

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—An attempt to bring Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat who failed to lift Mickey Walker's middleweight crown, back to the ranks of the welterweights for a title shot at the champion, Joe Dundee, waited the return to health of Tex Rickard.

The master of Madison Square Garden is ill at his home here and is believed to be suffering from ptomaine poisoning. His condition is not serious.

STATE CHAMPS REACH DISTRICT LEGION FINALS

BALTIMORE, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Williamsport, Pa., and Wilmington, Del., teams will battle today for the baseball championship of Region 10, in the American Legion Junior baseball tournament. They won their place in the regional final yesterday by defeating the Huntington, W. Va., post and the Maryland guard post of Baltimore, respectively, in the elimination games, after the Baltimore outfit had won yesterday from Lincoln post of Washington.

Williamsport got a 9-to-5 victory over Huntington in a game in which timely hitting by the Pennsylvanians made it possible to overcome a five-run lead the West Virginians got in the first inning.

ROLLINGS FARMED

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—R. A. Rollings, a Red Sox infielder, has been sent to the Fort Worth club of the Texas League on option. He had been used mostly as a pinch hitter.

84.73 miles per hour for 24 hours and Auburn used Amoco products all the way!
All records for fully equipped stock cars were smashed to bits by two Auburn 115 Speedsters on July 1st at the Atlantic City Speedway.
Every American stock car record from one hour to twenty-four hours and from 1 mile to 2,000 miles was broken--and AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil were used every inch of the way.
This run was made under the supervision of the American Automobile Association. Once more AMOCO products have assisted in the establishment of a record that has lifted American-made stock cars to new heights of glory!
Wade Morton, who drove one of the record-breaking cars for the Auburn Motor Co., wired:
"AMOCO-GAS used exclusively in this run. AMOCO Motor Oils also used exclusively in this test and at completion of one thousand miles purely as a precautionary measure crank cases in both cars were completely drained and we found the oil apparently in as good condition as when we started. We find the performance of your products up to the usual one hundred per cent."
AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil had to deliver 100 per cent performance to enable these Auburns to set this startling new record--and they did! And to get 100 per cent performance out of your car in its usual daily duties--stick to AMOCO products all the time!

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK SPORTS EDITOR

BRITISH FAVOR NEW GOLF BALL HARDER TO DRIVE—headline.

That reminds me of a story, which I believe I have printed before. It is my favorite golf story. It is so keen that you may not get it the first time, so read closely.

It seems there was a bimbo who went out to a course that was new to him to indulge in a round of his favorite Scotch. His friend warned him that it was a tough course.

"That's the way I like 'em," this bimbo retorted. "The tougher the better. Tough ones are my meat."

Whereupon he teed up on the first hole and took a mighty cut at the little white pellet and missed it entirely. He teed up again and once more missed entirely. Nettled, he took another club out of his bag and tried again. Once more the ball remained on the tee after the club head had swished through the air.

"You're right," the bimbo who liked 'em tough remarked to his friend. "This IS a tough course!"

GOLF is a serious business for Carl F. Kauffmann, the Homestead stenographer, who retained his national public links championship at Philadelphia last week. Kauffmann went to Philly to defend his title with barely enough money to see him through and when he wound up play still in possession of his crown he was so happy he gave his last $25 to his caddie.

Kauffmann told Chilly Doyle, our baseball man, who was in Philadelphia with the Pirates during the tournament, that he paid his caddie $65 in all during the tournament and didn't begrudge him a penny of it, for he was a good worker and earned his pay, which was $2 more than Carl had had advanced to him as expense money. Carl had to pay his own expenses during his 10-day stay in Philadelphia.

Asked why he does not enter the national amateur championship, in view of his marked success in the public links play, Kauffmann replied he couldn't afford to play in the big event.

There are amateurs and amateurs. Somebody ought to move back and give Kauffmann a seat in the front row.

DEFINITE announcement of the engagement of Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion of the world, to Miss Mary Josephine Lauder, heiress to millions, obviously put an end to all speculation regarding the possibility of his return to the ring. Until Dan Cupid entered seriously into the question, I was certain in my own mind that Tunney would return with us some day, but the latest turn of events completely alters the situation. Tunney's social position, through the impending marriage, will be such as to preclude all chance of his engaging in professional boxing again. Which is a manner of saying that my guess as to his intentions was wrong. I may be able to dope him out as a boxer, but seemingly not out of the ring.

AS one looks back over the career of Tunney, he can see now how every move Gene had made in recent years likely was carefully thought out with a view to leading up to the present climax. He has known Miss Lauder for five years, or since she was 16. In that time he has done his best fighting, going up, step by step, to the heavyweight championship and then cleaning up financially. During the same period, he has broadened himself intellectually and socially to fit himself into such select circles, so that, now, instead of the to-be-expected haughty raising of eyebrows at the very idea of a wealthy society girl marrying a "prize-fighter," the match is hailed as the culmination of an ideal romance.

Instead of the brutal prize-fighter type, Tunney has brought himself to the point where he is recognized as anything but that, rather as a self-made, reliant young millionaire and more or less of an intellectual giant. And with it all he is good looking and almost entirely unmarked by his years of fighting in the ring and is greatly admired by the young women of the land, with whom he rates, as a matrimonial "catch," probably along with the Prince of Wales.

SO Irish Meusel is through! Good ol' Irish, who used to hit them for the Giants when the Giants were just that. He's had the tinware attached to him by the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League, along with Third Baseman Jimmy Caveney. When you no longer can make the grade out in the Old Men's League, you're pretty far gone. Yes, sir; pretty far gone.

SINCE the Tunney-Heeney fight, considerable has been written about the sportsmanship of Tunney in stepping back and refraining from following up his advantage when Heeney ran afoul of eye trouble and backed away, thumbing at the painful optic.

It was a fine bit of sportsmanship, and genuine, too. Not like what W. O. McGeehan, veteran sports scribe, thought was a splendid display during the memorable bout between Tommy Gibbons and Georges Carpentier. McGeehan writes of it in this manner in College Humor:

"The Frenchman twisted his

GANGWAY!

Make room for the elephants, as they say at the circus parades. Here they come, the Philadelphia Athletics' White Elephants, busting right through the American League pennant procession on the heels of the wilting Yankees.

HAPPY

Just when it appeared as if his hopes of landing another pennant, after 14 years of watchful waiting, were doomed, the clouds broke for Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Athletics, and his club now has an excellent chance of beating out the wobbly Yankees in the race down the stretch.

ELEPHANTS HAUNT DREAMS OF YANKEE OWNER

"Too much is enough!" are the thoughts of the good Col. Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, as his hired help comes back home today after a disastrous Western trip which saw it dissipate most of the lead of 13½ games it once held. The world champions are due for a severe shaking up on their home field in an effort to force them out of their losing habit.

DEVINE, DALEY WIN

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—John Daley, of Waltham, Mass., American bantamweight, fought his way through the quarter finals in the Olympic championship boxing tournament today, defeating Szeles, of Hungary, by decision.

TRAYNOR WINNER

Traynor, of Ireland, won a decision from Robledo, of Argentina, in the bantamweight semi-finals. It was a slow, dull bout. The Irishman chased the Argentine around the ring in the first and second rounds.

Cavnoli, of Italy, won by decision from Gaona, of Mexico, in the quarter-finals of the flyweight class.

In the welterweight quarter-finals, Landini, Argentina, won from Bloomers, Holland, by decision.

Harry Devine, of Worcester, Mass., the American featherweight representative, also won his quarter-final bout, getting the decision over Vakeva, of Finland.

Daley won all three rounds in his match with the Hungarian. In the first session Daley landed hard rights and lefts to his opponent's head and body and opened a cut above his temple. Szeles pounded Daley's stomach at every opportunity. The round went to the American by a slight margin.

In the second round the Hungarian started boxing carefully, but Daley nailed him with a blow that sent him down for no count. The Hungarian clinched continuously. Just before the ball Daley lifted Szeles off his feet with a left to the solar plexus and it was Daley's round easily.

The Hungarian started after Daley furiously in the third round, but was met by hard rights and lefts to the head. Daley boxed easily, complete master of the situation, and late in the round knocked down his opponent for no count with a left to the jaw.

PERALTA BEATS BOIREAU

Peralta, Argentine bantamweight, punched his way to a decision over Boireau, of France, in the quarter finals of the 120-pound division. Argentina thus landed two men in the semi-finals of this class. Landini is the second survivor.

Peralta fought under the handicap of a cut over one eye, suffered almost at the start of the match. He forced the fighting gamely, however, and started the Frenchman's nose bleeding in the second session. Peralta had a decisive lead on points at the close of the match.

South Americans continued to pile up victories in the bouts, Avendano, another Argentine, winning his quarter-final bout in the lightweight division, from Arrick, of Canada, by decision. Avendano won the second and third rounds decisively after holding Arrick even in the first.

U. S. OARSMEN IN FINAL

SLOTEN, Holland, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—Charles McIlvaine and Paul Costello, American double scullers, beat the Austrians, Losert and Flessl, by two lengths in the semi-finals of the Olympic regatta this morning.

The Americans' time was 7 minutes, 2 2-5 seconds. They will meet Canada in the final tomorrow.

The Swiss four-oared shell with coxwain, beat Poland by three lengths in 7:14 2-5, and entered the finals against Italy.

The Canadian double scullers, who have a bye into the finals, rowed the 2,000-meter course in 7:23 2-5.

These were the only events scheduled today. Finals in all the seven Olympic classes will be rowed tomorrow afternoon.

NOTES of the BOXERS

TONY CANZONERI, featherweight champion, has signed to defend his title against Andre Routis, French challenger, in a 15-round bout in Madison Square Garden September 20. The champion defeated Routis two years ago in their first meeting.

Otto Von Porat, the Norwegian heavyweight, boxes Pierre Charles, the Belgian, at Chicago, tonight.

TOM HEENEY

GENE TUNNEY'S OWN STORY OF HIS FAREWELL RING APPEARANCE—AGAINST TOM HEENEY.

by Gene Tunney

RETIRED HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION.

(COPYRIGHT, 1928, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.)

CHAPTER VI.

THE turning point in my match with Heeney came in the seventh round, when a sharp right hook opened up a cut over the challenger's left eye and temporarily paralyzed the optic nerve.

The punch landed as Heeney stepped into me from the ropes, still falling a victim of the strategem I explained earlier. I had feinted him into rushing by stepping around quickly as if worried and undecided as to what sort of move came next. He rushed in and as he did I hooked my right to the head. It landed above the left eye.

For the moment Tom appeared blinded as blood started to trickle down his cheek. He rubbed the eye with his glove as if there were something in it irritating him, shook his shaggy head and stepped back, unable to think clearly, the pain was so great.

Tom's actions frightened me to the very core. My first thought, as I saw him blink and rub his eye without being able to control the lid, was:

"I've blinded him!"

FEARED FOR TOM'S SIGHT

Through my mind flashed a story I heard not long ago from the lips of Gene Delmont, an oldtime fighter, telling how one man was blinded in the ring by just such a punch. It seemed that then the blow landed just as mine had, squarely on the eyeball and the side of the eye.

This story I heard related how the fighter's eye had pained at the time and his opponent, seeing the trouble he was in, smashed both hands again and again to the damaged optic. The boxer reeled around the ring, took the punishment until the bell rang and then went to his corner.

In between rounds this fighter asked his seconds to open his eye,

SANDLOT BASEBALL

by TOM BIRKS

GREENFIELD fans proved that they will patronize high-grade sandlot baseball by the manner in which they turned out to witness the first game of the Jimmy Smith club in the County League at Born field Tuesday evening. In this battle, Pitcher Carl Stewart flashed what easily was his best form of the season. He had his spitter working to perfection, and, together with Jack Miller, added a punch to Reilly's team. That the new blood injected into the County League should benefit the organization goes without saying.

JACK MILLER is still feared with that war club of his. It seemed suicide in that late part of the game to walk the Bellevue Babe Ruth, but results bore out Barrett's theory, that Jack is better on first base than taking a cut. Barrett is without a doubt the best coach in sandlot circles. His judgment with the score tied and the Smith lead-off men coming up was uncanny.

A NEW club has been formed in the East End section called the Solid East End, playing first-class ball, and wishes to book games with the leading first-class outfits in the district. For games call Franklin 2792-R, or write J. Wandel, 422 Trenton avenue, Wilkinsburg.

A NICE game was flashed at Dean Field when Tommy Carson's Hermes-Grove outfit helped its league standing at the expense of St. Johns, the score being 5 to 2. Sammy Leon pitched a nice game.

BOBBY ALLEBAUGH, the flashy North Side boy, played third for the Dairymen. Bobby is naturally a shortstop and covers plenty of territory. But Briley is playing such a bang-up game that Manager Carson could not make any change. However, the veteran, Dan Shade, has earned a rest and the infield looks good enough to cope with most anything.

DICK GUY'S Greensburg Pennsylvania League champions will be the attraction at Sullivan field on Sunday, opposing the St. Johns City League nine.

This is probably the best card that Manager McGrady has flashed at the strip lot this season. It is going to be the policy until the end of the season to bring only the best clubs for the fans. McGrady is dickering with Hughy Turner of Canonsburg to bring the Gunners to Pittsburgh for the first time this season. Beaver Falls will also be back.

MANAGER AL ZAPPA will take the Thomas aggregation to Olympia Park this evening to meet the Book-Shoe nine. On Saturday evening a good attraction will be brought to Dean field to give the fans a good home game.

VOIGT WINS TITLE

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—George Voigt, of the North Hills club, yesterday was the first amateur to win the Long Island open golf championship at the Salisbury Country Club. His score was 293 for 72 holes. Three strokes behind the former Washington player, Willie Klein, Wheatley Hills pro, took second place with 296.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

THEY'RE back in town, those victorious Pirates—and, believe it or not, the bold Buccos are within two games of third place.

Donie Bush led his athletes into Pittsburgh this morning after the Freebooters had made a clean sweep in Brooklyn, the home of the Dodgers.

A previous clean sweep in Philadelphia means the Pirate have won seven fights in a row and 23 of their last 30 contests. Moreover, they are only one and one-half games from the first division and just five and one-half games from second place. The lead of the first place Redbirds has been cut to 10 games.

Today, folks, our boys have a chance to cut further into the lead of the pace-setters for Bill McKechnie and his team came over from New York, too, during the night. The Cardinals will be here for single games today and tomorrow. Tomorrow's contest is the result of an early postponement.

Carmen Hill will heckle the Redbirds this afternoon, according to Donie Bush. Carmen, of Corry, worked four rounds in Brooklyn day before yesterday, but this task should not interfere with his delivery of today. Jess Haines is due to go to the slab for the visitors.

WIN ROBIN FINALE

The last stand of the Pirates in Brooklyn was Kremer Day, so to speak. Frenchy was in a beautiful stride on the slab and he drove over the winning run of the exciting contest in the eighth round. The score of the final victory of the long jaunt was 4 to 3. Only five games were lost on the fruitful trip, 12 were won.

Kremer smashed in two runs during the hot fight. He singled to left with two out in the second to bring Fred Brickell across. In the eighth he came up with Wright on third,

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

THE Giants deserve a lot of credit for making the National League competition a real race. The Polo Grounders shaved the lead of the Red Birds to four and one-half games.

The Pirate feat of winning 12 out of 17 contests in the East topped the efforts of all sectional rivals, but the accomplishment of the New York team as it took on the four classy teams of the West was even more impressive. The Giants won 13 out of 17.

THE Pirates in the next two days have an excellent chance to help themselves and the other ambitious clubs. The Redbirds will find the Buccos in a fighting mood. The "everything-to-gain-and-nothin-to-lose" mood is upon the Freebooters and that feeling is generally a favorable one. The Redbirds fall heir to all the apprehension that goes with a club that sets the pace.

The Cardinals have this in their favor—they are a great ball club, one that plays smartly, packs a punch and as a rule gets good pitching. So they should remain as favorite for the flag, for the present, at least.

THE return to the lineup of Glenn Wright has been a boon to the Pirates. Glenn is driving in tallies in profusion, and the fleet Brickell, batting in front of Wright when the enemy serves righthanders, is on the bases often to cash in on the well-spanked drives of the spread-eagle shortstop.

Brickell's pleasing play is apt to keep him in the game, especially when the righthanders operate against the Pirates. Fred was as welcome as the paymaster to the Buccos after Pete Scott and Clyde Barnhart went down. The Wichita Whirlwind was considered somewhat doubtful as a fielder, but his defense work actually sparkled.

Uniontown Boy Third

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—George Kojac, of New York, member of the U. S. team, won the 100-meter back stroke swimming championship today in the Olympic water sports. Walter Laufer, of Chicago was second.

The Americans made it 1, 2, 3 as Paul Wyatt, of Uniontown, Pa., finished third. Kojac's time was 1 minute 8 4-5 seconds, a new world record.

ZORILLA UPSETS DOPE

In a sensational upset, Albert Zorilla, of Argentina, won the 400-meter free style championship. Andrew Charlton, of Australia, was second; Arne Borg, of Sweden, third, and the Americans, Clarence Crabbe, Austin Clapp and Ray Ruddy, fourth, fifth and sixth respectively.

Zorilla's time was 5 minutes, 1 3-5 seconds, a new Olympic record. He came up fast in the last half of the race to win as he was third, behind Borg and Charlton, at the halfway mark.

The women's 200-meter breast stroke championship went to Miss Schrader, of Germany, with Marie Baron, of Holland, second.

Miss Schrader won in 3 minutes 12 3-5 seconds. The best the United States could get was a fifth place, won by Gertrude Hoffman, of Kingston, Pa. Behind Miss Schrader and Miss Baron came Miss Muehe, Germany; Miss Jacobson, Denmark; Miss Hoffman, and Miss Hazelius, Sweden.

The United States won the first elimination heat of the 800-meter relay. Japan was second; Sweden, third, and Argentina, fourth and last. The first two teams finishing in each heat qualify for the finals.

The United States, desiring to give George Kojac and Walter Laufer a rest previous to the finals of the 100-meter backstroke, entered a team composed of Austin Clapp, John Weissmuller, Paul Sampson and Young.

The time of the United States team was 9 minutes 38 4-5 seconds, a new Olympic record.

Canada won the second elimination heat in the 800-meter relay in the time of 9 minutes 55 3-5 seconds. Great Britain was second, both qualifying for the finals.

Hungary won the third elimination heat in 9:46 3-5. Spain was second, qualifying with Hungary for the finals.

Germany and Italy had finished second and third, respectively, in the third heat, but were disqualified for faulty relay, the swimmers leaping into the water to relieve their comrades before the latter touched the side of the pool and finished their 200 meters.

Spain's time of 11 minutes 50 3-5 seconds was the worst turned in of any of the 13 teams competing in the three heats, but it qualified for the finals nevertheless.

The United States women's relay team won the first heat of the 400-meter event. Holland was second. Both teams will appear in the finals to be run later this afternoon.

Great Britain won the second and last elimination heat in the 400-meter relay for women. Germany was second and both teams qualified for the finals. The time of the British team was 5 minutes 16 3-5 seconds.

YANK WOMEN WIN

The American women's team captured its first elimination heat, qualifying for the final of the 400-meter relay without trouble and even indulging in what is becoming a rather monotonous water sports feature—breaking an Olympic record. Their mark was 4 minutes 55 3-5 seconds, compared with the previous mark of 4 minutes 58 4-5 seconds, made by the American team in Paris in 1924.

Duquesne amateur boxer, who is about to turn professional. He will visit Jimmy Bronson in New York Saturday for an interview with the idea of going under the latter's management. Billick is the West Penn bantamweight champion and was runner-up in the national championships and Olympic trials this year. He is not yet 20 years old, has been boxing four years and resides in Duquesne. He has been boxing as an amateur for the Willow Club.

PIRATES

Hargreaves on first and one out. The Pirates enjoyed a two-run lead at the time, but one can never tell what a safety tally will accomplish. Kremer sent a long fly to Carey to score the runs—and the foe came in and made two tallies.

Frenchy was in trouble up to his tonsils in the last half of the eighth, but in the crisis he performed a neat bit of surgery. He cut down his brother Gaul—Del Bissonette—on strikes with the tying run on third and just one out.

KREMER IN FORM

Harvey Hendrick opened the eighth with a safe bunt and Scoops Carey whacked a single to right that sent Harvey to the hot corner. Babe Herman blasted a double to left-center to score both of his pals. Herman galloped to third when Rube Bressler bunted. Kremer backed off the rubber, took a hitch in his trousers and fanned Slugger Del. He was invincible in the ninth.

Wright shared the honors of the day with Frenchy, but Wright, in pounding over two tallies in the fifth with two out, had to have the help of Lady Luck. Glenn was "up there" swinging at Big Jim Elliott's twisters. With two strikes he ticked two fouls, both of which fell out of Hank DeBerry's glove. Encouraged by this fortune. He walloped a line hit to left that helped unload the crowded sacks.

which he thought was closed tight, so that he could see to face his opponent again. The seconds stared at him in amazement.

"Why, your eye is wide open," they said.

The boxer had gone blind from that punch and those that rained on his face afterward. He went out and continued the battle. More punches landed on the damaged eye. When the match was over he had won the plaudits of all for his gameness, but his sight was gone forever.

GAVE CHALLENGER CHANCE

Eye specialists told him that if he had quit when that first punch landed his sight probably could have been saved. The succession of blows that followed damaged the optic nerve beyond repair. There was nothing that could be done for him.

I thought of that story and others I had heard of men blinded in the ring, as Tom swayed before me, badly hurt and striving to regain his sight. I was told that someone in Heeney's corner, in the heat of the battle, accused me of sticking my thumb in the challenger's eye accidentally. That was an absolute untruth.

Fear that Tom was hurt caused me to step back and wait for a moment until the brave challenger had regained control of himself. Then I stepped in close and looked at the eye myself as we clinched. It seems that I said something to him, but I can't remember what it was. After a moment or so Heeney signaled himself that he was all right by throwing a right hand punch at my head. I fought him then with everything that I had.

I felt it my duty thereafter, however, in common humanity to an opponent who was fighting one of the cleanest matches in the history of the ring, to be careful of blows to the head. Never once did I attempt to strike the eye that was staring at me like a glass ball or to hit him, for that matter, anywhere that he had been cut about the head.

OPTIC NERVE PARALYZED

I tried only to land in vital spots. Most of my punches were directed under the heart and to the body. What blows I did shoot to Heeney's head landed cleanly upon his jaw. I had no wish to be the cause of a man going blind in the ring, especially in the last match of my career.

At no time during that round did I see Heeney's eye lash curl under, as Tom thought it did, so that the lashes laid back upon the eyeball and irritated him almost to distraction. To my mind that feeling was caused entirely by the paralysis of the optic nerve. To Tom it must things had got under the lashes.

ankle during the encounter. Gibbons seemed touched by the appeal Carpentier made to him and he pulled his punches and Carpentier, who seemed to be easy prey for a knockout, was allowed to stay the limit. I was so moved by this exhibition of humaneness that I wrote considerable about it only to find out later from Manager Eddie Kane that the fighters had been warned before the fight by local authorities that there would be a group of fighters in jail if the fight resulted in a knockout or anything that looked brutal."

JUST another laugh to shorten up the day is that narrative from New York that Tex Rickard is to get the bounce from Madison Square Garden because he lost a hundred and a half grand for his Five Hundred and Ninety-nine Millionaire boy friends in promoting the Tunney-Heeney brawl. The joker is that Texas has a 20-year contract which still has about 17 years to amble making him general manager of the Garden at a salary of $30,000 per annum.

It would cost the Wall street outfit a nifty penny to pay Tex off on that scrap of paper and get rid of him. And Tex's name is worth considerable to the Garden corporation. It is a bigger box office asset than any fighter who could be named. Such trademarks as the label George L. (Tex) Rickard are not very often deposited on the rubbish pile without plenty of deep cogitation, even by millionaires who bicker over the loss of a measly $150,000.

WALLACE BEERY in Blindfold test of leading cigarettes . . . says no brand can "double" for OLD GOLD

WALLACE BEERY . . . Popular Paramount screen star . . . who plays the leading dramatic roles in "Beggars of Life" and "The Tong War."

"You have heard of some actors that can't be 'doubled' in the movies. Well, OLD GOLD is like that. No other brand can 'double' its fine flavor and smoothness—even in the dark. That's why I picked it in the blindfold test. And that's why—from now on—OLD GOLD and I are going to be 'Partners in Crime.'"

Wallace Beery

Why You Can Pick Them . . . Three types of leaves grow on the tobacco plant . . . coarse top-leaves, irritating to the throat . . . withered ground-leaves, without taste or aroma . . . and the heart-leaves, rich in cool and fragrant smoking qualities. Only the golden-ripe heart-leaves are used in OLD GOLDS. That's why they are better.

How the test was made . . .

This test was conducted by the representative of a leading Eastern university and a disinterested witness selected by them. Mr. Beery was asked to smoke each of the four leading brands, while blindfolded, clearing his taste with coffee between smokes. Only one question was asked: " . . . which one do you like best?"

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

Stockholders' Apathy in Voting and Quizzing Nullifies Safeguard—Loree Case Up.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

STOCKHOLDERS' meetings here and in England offer a sharp contrast. In this country it is usual for only half a dozen of the stockholders of a large corporation to attend the meeting.

The voting and approval of the acts of directors are routine affairs in which the stockholders are represented only by proxies placed in the hands of the management. Frequently it is difficult to find enough stockholders sufficiently interested to fill in a proxy and to have it witnessed.

IN ENGLAND such a meeting is usually well attended, and it is far from a mere formality. The officials present an exhaustive report, and the stockholders question them in detail about the company's affairs. The officials are often profoundly embarrassed by hecklers.

IT IS surprising that so few owners of stock in this country take advantage of such an opportunity to hear at first hand what is being done with their property. The president of a corporation is obliged to answer any reasonable question about the business, but the privilege is seldom used.

THIS condition does not entirely represent a lack of interest on the part of the investing public. It is an expression of confidence in the management of most corporations. So long as a business appears to be efficiently conducted, the management should be given a free hand.

The stockholders' voting privilege may be considered as a safeguard against improper conduct on the part of officials. It is like the army and the fire department—forms of protection we would not be without but which we hope never to need.

THERE has been a tendency to take advantage of this apathy on the part of stockholders in some of the recent corporate financing. It has been particularly noticeable in utility capital structures, but examples can also be found among the industrial companies.

STOCKHOLDERS are being deprived of the voting control which they should have for the protection of their investments.

The breaking of common stocks into two classes, one of which has voting rights and one of which has not, takes the voice in the management from stockholders' hands.

The voting shares are often few in number. They place control in the hands of a small group.

Those of the public who buy the non-voting stock have no means of securing fair treatment. They lack the safeguards enjoyed by the preferred stockholders and have no compensating advantages.

WHEN large corporate combinations began to come into existence, 30 years ago, there was fear that such concentrations of power would be abused. Since then many of these fears have proved groundless. This fact has tended to leave the public off its guard where corporate management is concerned.

That the danger still exists has been seen in some of the disclosures of the methods of the power companies. The Teapot Dome scandal furnished a further example.

THE most recent case of ethical laxity in the high places has come to light in the files of the Interstate Commerce Commission as a result of its review of the relations between the Kansas City Southern and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroads.

IN SEPTEMBER, 1924, L. F. Loree, chairman of the board of directors of the Kansas City Southern, appointed a special committee to consider the purchase of stock in railroad companies in the Southwest.

On November 6 Loree purchased for his own account 11,950 shares of Missouri, Kansas and Texas common at $19.68 a share, and on November 7 he bought 2,050 shares at $21.25 a share.

On November 11 his road began to buy Missouri, Kansas and Texas stock for its own account, acquiring 350,000 shares at a cost of $12,000,000, or an average price of $32.

In December Loree sold 4,000 of his shares at $28.06, 2,000 at $32.37, 6,000 at $32.25 and 2,000 at $31.37.

FOR an insider to take advantage of such knowledge is undoubtedly a common practice, but that does not make it a just one. Loree was trading for his own interest against the interest of his trust. It is against such procedure that stockholders need to maintain their club over the head of management.

STOCKS RUN UP BUT ADVANCES FADE OUT

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—(AP.)—High money rates again proved too great an obstacle for speculative operations for the advance in today's stock market. Scores of issues were run up 1 to 8 points on a resumption of pool operations in early trading, but the scarcity of money caused a general selling movement later which cut down or wiped out many of the early gains and sent a number of issues to 4 points below yesterday's final quotations.

Call money renewed at 7 per cent, but despite the attractiveness of the high rate, banks called about $15,000,000 in loans. Time money was quoted at 6¼ per cent, the highest rate since July, 1921, with no great amount available even at that high figure. Rumors of another increase in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rate after the close of the market were freely circulated, but they were without official confirmation.

Amusement shares turned weak on a denial of the many rumors in circulation during the last few days, most of them involving the new talking pictures. Warner Brothers A dropped nearly 4 points, Fox Film 3½, Pathe 2½ and Paramount-Famous-Lasky 1½ below yesterday's final quotations. Coty sold down 4 points. Western Union reacted 3½ and Coca Cola 3.

Early gains in Radio, General Motors, Warren Bros., Consolidated Gas and other high priced specialties were substantially reduced in the afternoon selling movement.

Establishment of a new high record by St. Louis Southwestern at 91¾, or 4¾ points above last night's close, was the only development of interest in the rail group.

Federal Reserve Policy.

There is a discernible beneath the surface increasing irritation both by business and in banking circles with the Federal Reserve policy, says a New York Stock Exchange firm today. "It does not now seem possible that the Federal Reserve can make its policies effective and we expect, in the not distant future, they will make increased purchases of United States Governments and relieve the general situation. We find that loans of some of the large banks that have term loans expiring at the Federal Reserve are being carefully scrutinized and in some cases not renewed. This may go far to explain the present abnormal condition and why money rates firmed up yesterday rather than declining as might have been expected, but there seems to be concerted action on the part of London and Paris to prevent the exportation of capital fearing a weakness in their exchanges and a loss of gold. If the present tendencies toward high rates continue in this country imports of gold to the United States seems certain."

English Bank Rate Unchanged.

The Bank of England discount rate remains unchanged today at 4½ per cent and bankers do not expect an increase in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate at New York this afternoon. Such action would be decidedly unpopular in business circles even though it would hurry the time when gold imports will appear.

Wall Street's New Bank.

Wall Street is interested in the announcement from Washington of the chartering of the new Commercial National Bank and Trust Company of New York, with a record capital of $12,000,000. In some quarters the announcement was regarded as the fulfilment of expectations that a new bank was to be formed by brokers for the purpose of doing business in the "Street" without the difficulties dealers in securities occasionally have encountered in the established banks. The list of directors gave some color to this theory. It included Richard F. Hoyt, of Hayden, Stone & Co.; Robert Lehman, of Lehman Bros.; Andrew J. Miller, of Hallgarten & Co.; Samuel L. Fuller, of Kissell, Kinnicutt & Co.; William B. Scarborough, of Hitt, Farwell & Co., and other members of firms doing an investment and banking business. Names of the officers of the new bank were not disclosed. It was pointed out, however, that as the institution upon receiving a national bank charter automatically becomes a member of the Federal Reserve system and therefore is to be guided by its rulings, any independence it might offer to street brokers necessarily would be somewhat limited. It was said further that plans for organization were in fact well completed when the recent discord between banks and corporations seeking to invest in the call money market arose. From sources close to the organizers of the new bank, it was learned, however, that the bank undoubtedly will be a conservative institution adding further banking facilities to those already available to Wall Street and probably in no way connected with a move to provide an independent "brokers' bank."

Traders Standing Aside.

Price movements have been decidedly puzzling to the market students. This is admitted on all sides. Individual stocks have been brought forward when previous leaders halted their upturns and thus there has been a semblance of confidence at times. However, at the moment there is a tendency in most quarters to stand on the side lines and permit the market to give an indication of its next important movement through its own action. Market has been lacking the follow through on advances which always brings so much confidence to outsiders. There has been evidence of more liquidation and resistance to upturns than in the past. Fact that averages of industrials at least are in what many term the distributive area of late May and early June has been quite a factor, for it has brought profit-taking advices from the most conservative commission houses and from chart readers. These have been followed by increased public liquidation.

Interests behind Pathe Exchange, Inc., say there is no new development behind the gyrations in the company's shares other than a sleeping short interest which got alarmed when the shares started to move upward and the supply was limited. The rise was accompanied by reports that Radio Corporation or Warner Brothers were buying into the company, both of which reports are without foundation.

Stock Market Nervous.

More nervousness was evident in the stock market today than at any time this week. Prices fluctuated over a comparatively narrow range but appearance of the market indicated tht traders were on their toes and ready to dump stocks should anything like a general liquidation wave appears to be getting under way. The Street's timidity was due to several factors among which were a firmer money market, with time loans at the highest since 1921; revision of preliminary figures on Steel's tonnage report to a decrease instead of an increase; the announcement that a brokerage house had admitted inability to meet its obligations, and fears of unfavorable dividend action by General Motors directors late this afternoon. As there had been much talk of a good sized extra on Motors today, the declaration of only the regular quarterly payment would be considered unfavorable. A bright spot in the main picture was American Locomotive's declaration of the regular dividend despite the poor earnings statement issued a few days ago, and another was the strong buying of Columbia Gas which pushed the stock up to a new high. Reports of a pending split and higher dividends affected Columbia.

Expect Tonnage Decrease.

United States Steel's unfilled tonnage statement for July, to be issued Friday, will show a decrease of about 100,000 tons, according to latest estimates. Decline in booking is attributed to two factors—unusually heavy shipments for the month and the hot weather which sent buyers out of town and held up orders. Up to near the end of the month orders and shipments were running at about the same level. The last week of the month usually sees some advance business placed, and it was expected this would cause a gain in tonnage, but this buying failed to appear. Theory that slack in buying of the last week of July was due to weather conditions is supported by the fact that with the cooler weather of the past few days bookings have been quite heavy, well in excess of shipments. At the close of June, United States Steel reported unfilled orders of 3,637,009 tons. A decrease of 100,000 tons would bring orders on the books to around 3,540,000 tons.

COLUMBIA GAS GAINS ON DIVIDEND RUMORS

There was no change in the general tenor of the market in the early session of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Trading continued in small volume and prices showed no important changes from yesterday's closings.

The forenoon session brought out a few trades in the fuel stocks, with Lone Star Gas and Arkansas holding at or near the levels prevailing most of the week. Both issues are somewhat under last week's average, but both are meeting fair support at the slightly lower levels.

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt changed hands at a small fraction under 51, but only a little of the stock appeared to be available around that level. Screw and Bolt earned approximately $5 a share last year, out of which it pays $3 annually in dividends, and unofficial reports are that the present year's operations promise even a better showing.

A sharp upturn in Columbia Gas and Electric in the New York market was reflected in higher prices for the shares here, but the price on the local board did not reach the level attained in New York. Columbia has been under accumulation for some time on reports of successful consolidation of new properties from which favorable results are beginning to show. There are various rumors of a stock split-up and that the dividend will be raised to a $6 basis, but nothing official has been heard in these connections. Present dividend is $5 a year.

Armstrong Cork lost further ground in today's trading, selling down to 55 on a small turnover. This is a new low for the year on the stock.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The raw sugar market was steady and prices were unchanged at 4.11c for spot duty-paid. No sales were reported early today, but an additional sale was confirmed as of late yesterday of 28,700 bags of Porto Rican due the end of this month at 4.11c delivered.

The steadier spot market reports that Europe is inquiring for additional supplies out of the local warehouse stocks had a steadying influence in the raw sugar futures market and promoted considerable covering, with prices generally higher throughout the forenoon session. The market opened unchanged to 2 points higher and at midday was 1 to 2 points net higher.

The refined market was unchanged at 5.55c for fine granulated. Withdrawals on old contracts were satisfactory, but no new business came to light.

Airplane Grows Swiftly But We Are 'Slowpokes'

If you should want to go to Oil City, spend a brief time there in the transaction of business, and come right back to Pittsburgh, you would need to devote no more than an hour and a half of your day to it—providing you made the required arrangements You would have to fly. Perhaps you might have to be favored by exceptional circumstances, but to make the round trip to the upriver city in the time stated is possible. It has been done.

A party of three women and the pilot of an airship made the trip from Pittsburgh to Oil City in 40 minutes. The flying machine was exhibited to a business man in that city, one of the women visited with relatives and then they all returned.

Something similar to that is what many of us will be doing in a few years—how many depends upon ourselves. We are the "slowpokes." The airplane is far ahead of us, and the development is so rapid that we must hustle if we ever wish to catch up. We should get that landing field we voted for as soon as possible. We need it for our own convenience. We need it as a factor in the development of aerial equipment industry.

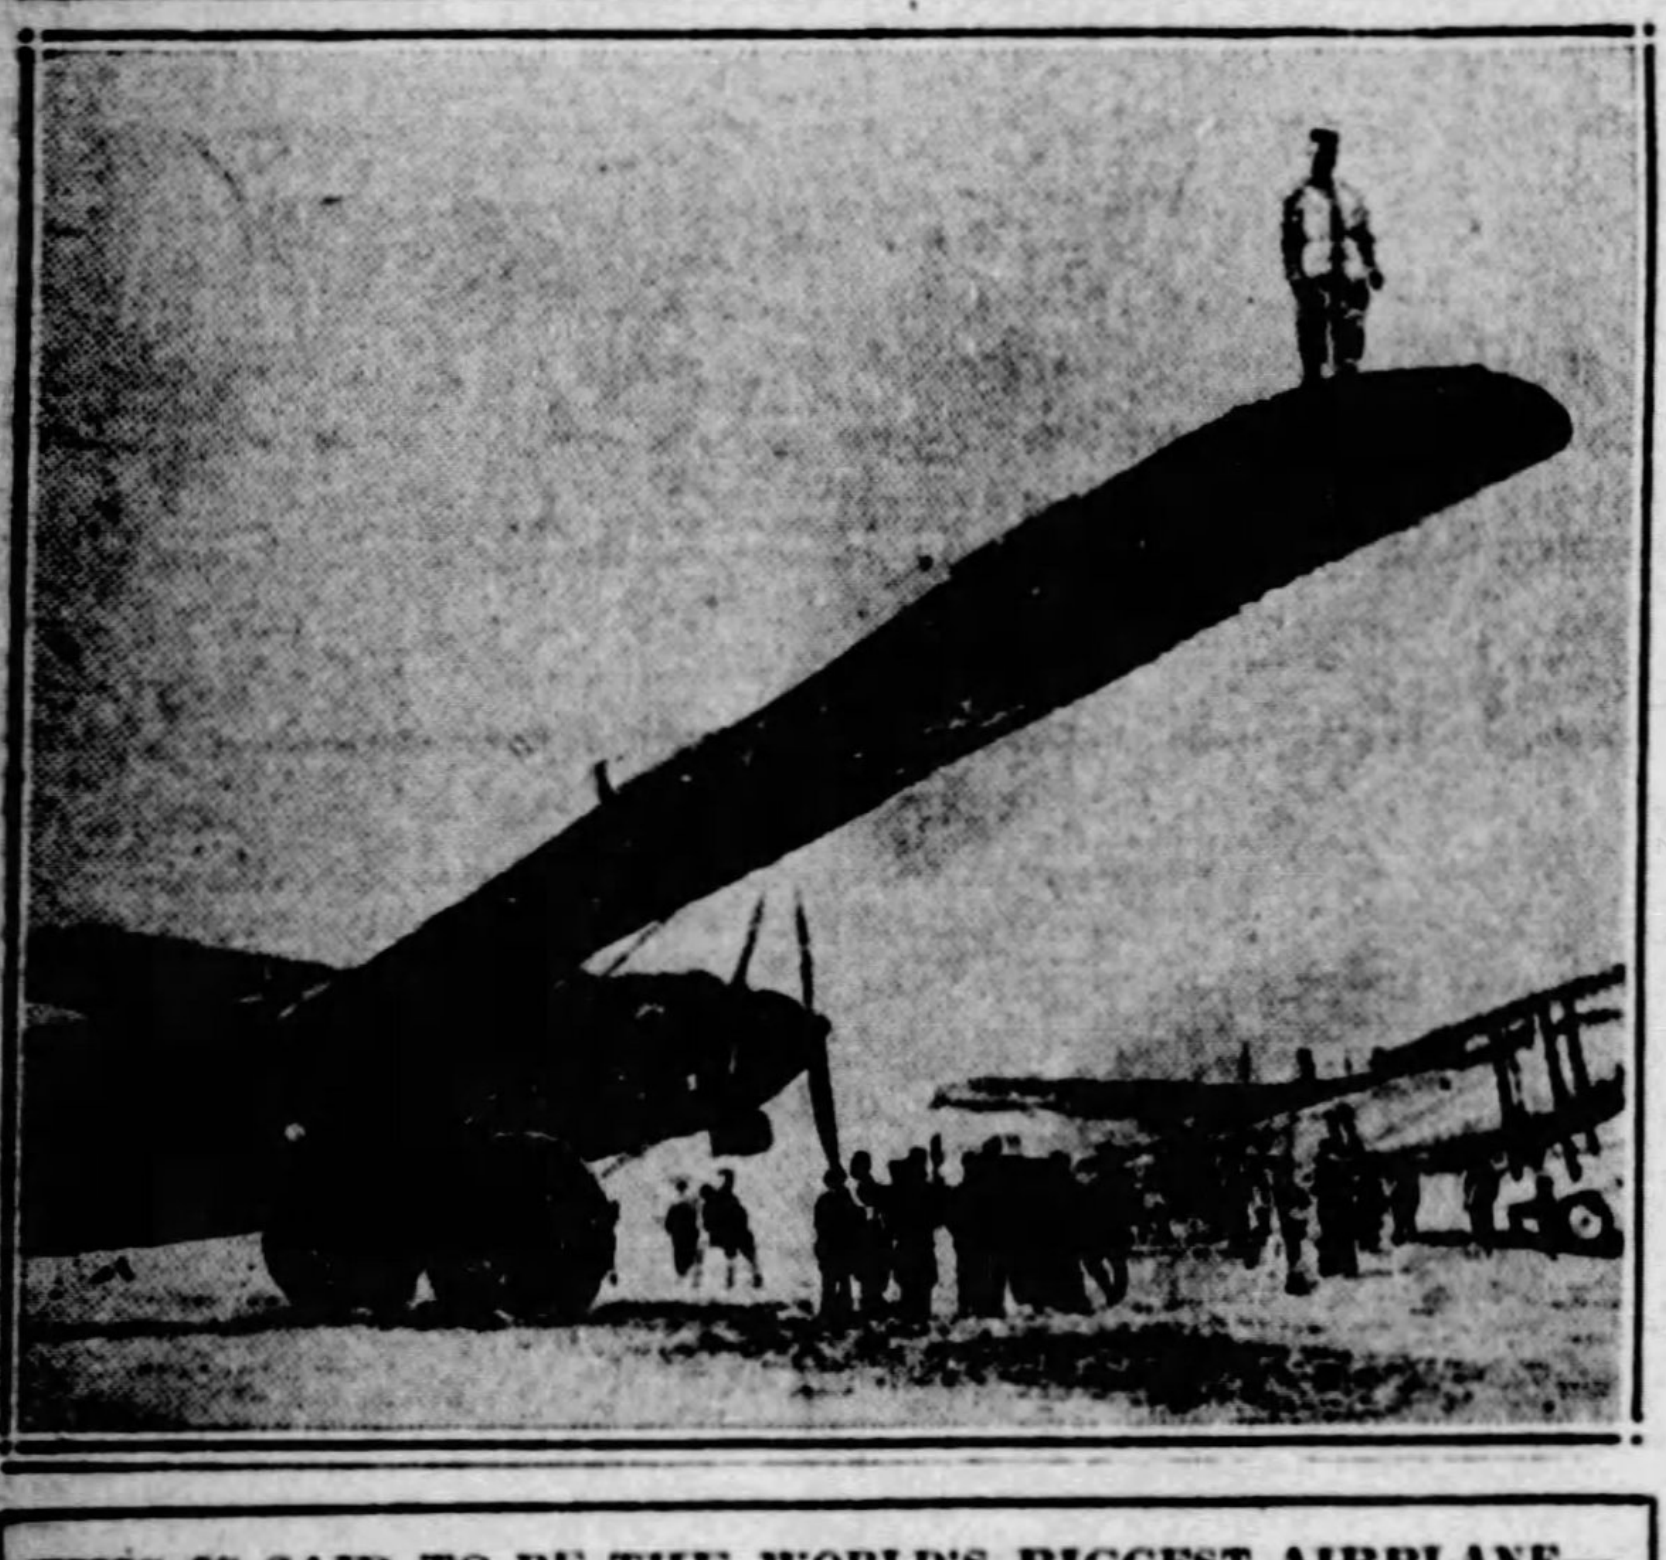
Help Our Boy Scouts By Attending Aid Meet

The Boy Scouts are going to hold a first aid tournament at Tech Campus Saturday. There, if you take the trouble to attend, you will have opportunity to see 35 teams of boys demonstrating just one of the things a good scout is supposed to know about—and does know about if he is a good scout. You could hearten him greatly in his efforts to help you by attending. His motto is one good deed daily. If you are a good scout at heart you can do your good deed for that day by giving him the encouragement of your presence.

The events will be in charge of men familiar with first aid work who will officiate as timers, judges, etc., and they should prove of exceptional interest in a community where first aid work is as important as in the Pittsburgh district. They should prove of interest, too, as an evidence of the development of the character of our youth—our future leaders. What they do is worthy of the highest commendation and we can do ourselves a service by showing them that we have our eyes on them as a public as well as parents.

Britain Builds Them Big

Perhaps We Shall Do It, SOME Day.



THIS IS SAID TO BE THE WORLD'S BIGGEST AIRPLANE—BRITISH, OF COURSE, NOT AMERICAN.

Just to show you that things CAN be done, when a nation has common sense and looks ahead, here is a picture of Britain's "Colossus of the Air," the biggest airplane in the world.

You get an idea of its size by looking at the man standing on the tip of one wing.

This airplane weighs more than 40,000 pounds, unloaded.

King George and Queen Mary went to Hendon the other day to see this giant machine flying around with a couple of hundred other British planes.

Britain has ruled the waves for a long time—the WATER waves—and now she seeks to rule the AIR waves also.

She won't do it, if France can help it.

But THIS country will never interfere. Our specialty is sloppy talk about peace.

Then when war does come, we put $1 a year "patrioteers" to work. They spend a billion dollars for aircraft graft and incompetency, without producing any aircraft that will fly and another billion or so building worthless ships that never go to sea.

And that's OUR EFFICIENCY.

Some day we may get a lesson that will teach us to look ahead, and do some building on our own account

We cannot always forget, WITH SAFETY, that we are nearer to Europe today than Napoleon was to England before Waterloo.

In a short time, with improving aircraft, we shall be only a few hours from Asia.

Whether we like it or not, we shall have to wake up SOME day. If we don't, someone from Europe or Asia will WAKE US UP.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Mosquito Against Mosquito

THE military principle of employing native troops against an enemy, which of late years has been so successfully used in many places to do battle against our insect foes, has had a somewhat novel development in France, where one species of mosquito has been called into action to drive out another, more objectionable, one. The introduced species has the most pleasing quality that could belong to a mosquito, that namely of dislike for human blood. It does not bite man, and has no disposition to his habitations. But, it is a vigorous feeder upon other animals, and appears to be as thorough a monopolist as the English sparrow, so that it drives away the man-biters by seizing upon most of their food supplies; and perhaps also by being for them a very uncomfortable neighbor, for, it is reported, that these mercenaries have freed the town of Pons from the troublesome Culex pipiens, by shouldering them out, and taking their place. The friendly species comes from the Department of Cotes du Nord. As far as known their enlistment is only local at present, but they may be heard from more widely if their local reputation is confirmed by an extended employment of their services.

It has been observed that mosquitoes of particular varieties are apt to restrict their range, each choosing a locality favorable to it, and some becoming known by their special fondness for human blood, while others prefer to feed upon different animals. It is likely that the tastes of a species may be altered by their environment, so that when introduced to drive away by inoffensive competition the less desirable tribes they may finally turn upon their confiding friends and celebrate the acquisition of a better bill of fare.

No doubt the most effective method of warfare against mosquitoes is that of destroying, completely, their breeding places. Any kind of receptable in which water can remain and stagnate—and stagnation comes very quickly—is a potential nursery for larvae. Little ground puddles, stopped-up gutters, lazily flowing brooks, swamps, ponds, rain-water barrels, drains, cisterns, wet places in grass-covered areas, and many concealed pockets of dead water which can be found not only around barns and yards but in and near houses whose inhabitants vainly imagine that they harbor no mosquito cradles—all these are to be looked out and eradicated, if the war against these dangerous pests is to be thoroughly won. The same determined vigilance is necessary in order to get rid of the house, or typhoid fly. The riddance from both of these nuisances can be, and has been, accomplished locally, but usually the efforts of those who effect so desirable a reform are defeated by the carelessness, ignorance and indifference of neighbors.

Means ought to be found for establishing a public organization in every community for the systematic destruction of flies, mosquitoes and other noxious insects. Details as to the means of conducting this unoutlawable warfare, can easily be obtained by writing to the Bureau of Entomology in Washington, which exists for no other purpose than to discover and spread abroad knowledge of that kind. Let those who enjoy the trumpeting of the mosquito and the buzz and tickle and decorative genius of the fly, have private menageries for the safekeeping of their pets.

What We Eat

THE outstanding change in the American diet, during the last generation, is the striking increase in our consumption of fresh fruit and vegetables.

Not only do we eat more of these foods, but rapid refrigerated transportation on the railroads makes them available to us at all seasons of the year.

The Bureau of Railway Economics at Washington has made a study into the origin and distribution of our 18 principal fresh fruits and vegetables, of which more than 900,000 carloads were shipped and received in 1927. Potatoes ranked first with nearly one-fourth of the total; then came grapes, oranges, apples, lettuce, canteloupes, watermelons, onions, cabbage and tomatoes, in the order named.

Of the carload shipments, 31 per cent, nearly one-third, came from California. Florida supplied 10 per cent. Next in order were New York, Virginia, Maine, Washington, Georgia and Texas.

New York was, of course, the largest receiving market, with 22 per cent of the total, about twice the receipts of Chicago, which was followed by Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit and Pittsburgh.

Refrigerated transportation deserves a high place in the list of factors that have made our standard of living the highest in the world.

Like What You Must Do

IF YOU don't enjoy the work in which you make your living, get out of it and find what you do like, says a friend.

However essential to get the work you like, you may have conditions which make it impossible for you to quit the job you detest, you say.

Then what are you going to do?

You have not enough money to start at the bottom and work your way.

You have not the right sort of education to enable you to gain and keep a position such as you wish.

If you are hampered by circumstances, it is unfortunate.

But to the one who has a future to carve it would be well to think twice in selecting a lifework.

If you know the things you can do best, study the future of such talent.

If you can make it possible to earn your living by work that you enjoy, it will not seem work.

Think these things out before you assume responsibilities that bar you from the course you want to take.

The time for experiments is now—when you can by self-denial climb toward achievement.

The man who can't change must school himself to like his work.

Comparisons

COMPARISONS are mighty things
For rapture or for woe,
They lend the passing hours wings
Or make them leaden, slow.

How splendid, then, that we, each one,
Can make life glowing, gay
By choice of wise comparison
Along the daily way!

True, if we only look at those
Who have no wish in vain,
Whose sunlit hours all disclose
What heights men can attain,

Then will our lot seem dark indeed,
But if we wisely turn
To those who in their pressing need
For some small kindness yearn,

Brighter and brighter still will glow
Our pathway, near and far,
For then comparison will show
How doubly blest we are!

Isn't It So?

A man is apt to be suspicious if his wife isn't jealous of him.

Great Passages from the Bible

The Virtuous Woman

(Proverbs 31; 10 to 31)

WHO can find a virtuous woman? for her price is far above rubies.

The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her, so that he shall have no need of spoil.

She will do him good and not evil all the days of her life.

She seeketh wool, and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands.

She is like the merchants' ships; she bringeth her food from afar.

She riseth also while it is yet night, and giveth meat to her household, and a portion to her maidens.

She considereth a field, and buyeth it: with the fruit of her hands she planteth a vineyard.

She girdeth her loins with strength, and strengtheneth her arms.

She perceiveth that her merchandise is good: her candle goeth not out by night.

She layeth her hands to the spindle, and her hands hold the distaff.

She stretcheth out her hand to the poor; yea, she reacheth forth her hands to the needy.

She is not afraid of the snow for her household: for all her household are clothed with scarlet.

She maketh herself coverings of tapestry; her clothing is silk and purple.

Her husband is known in the gates, when he sitteth among the elders of the land.

She maketh fine linen, and selleth it; and delivereth girdles unto the merchant.

Strength and honour are her clothing; and she shall rejoice in time to come.

She openeth her mouth with wisdom; and in her tongue is the law of kindness.

She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness.

Her children arise up, and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her.

Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all.

Favour is deceitful, and beauty is vain: but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised.

Give her of the fruit of her hands; and let her own works praise her in the gates.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

AS a matter of fact of course men don't talk about their wives to each other, only to compliment them. But in the jokes a guy is always telling his troubles with his wife. And this is a joke.

"Well," he says, "whenever we have a little tiff at our house, my wife gets historical."

"I reckon you mean hysterical," says the other one, speaking out of turn.

"Nope, I mean what I say. She tells me everything I done that ain't right ever since before she first met me."

Good Reason

THE old gentleman had once been a good cricketer, and even now took a lively interest in the game. Passing along one of the streets of slumland one day, and finding a game in progress, he could not resist watching it.

Soon he became aware of certain discrepancies in the umpire's ruling, and he questioned that official about the matter.

"I see," he said, "that your batsman has been bowled, caught and stumped, but he does not go out. Why is that?"

"Oh, 'im?" was the umpire's reply. "'E stays in as long as 'e likes!"

"Why is that? Is he the owner of the bat, or is he a bully?"

"Neither, sir," said the boy; "but 'is father's a policeman—that's why!"

And then the old gentleman understood.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Sophistication is supposed to reach its pinkest bloom in New York. Perhaps it does, but metropolitan sophistry is confined almost solely to amusing unessentials. The bachelor who is master of the frostiest cocktail is labeled a sophisticate.

Likewise the precisionist who insists upon a certain temperature for his bath. Or the fellow who would be desolated without brandy in his post-prandial coffee. What is so often rated sophistication is nothing more than affectation—a pose.

People go to the theater an hour late and rudely distrub the play. They puff cigarets in elevators and hotel and theater foyers. Men pay fabulous sums for ringside tables.

And these flourishes come under the head of worldly nonchalance. In reality they are glorified small town smart alecisms. The cracker barrel comic in front of the general store is blood brother to the cavorting master of ceremonies in the Broadway night club.

Most hinterland antagonism toward New York is based on the city-slicker complex. It does not seem to realize that in the majority of instances the city slicker is an ex-apple knocker in urban settings. The real New York is little removed from the hick hamlet.

On account of its mammoth size, the accumulative wickedness gives it the super-saturated proportions of a modern Babylon. And somehow the metropolis has always been able to dramatize itself and take on a role of great glamor. But that is acting.

When one pierces the shiny armor, there is much of the stiff-necked New England village about the city. I know a man who resides in a Broadway hotel who will not turn on the radio on Sunday. And thousands of New York women look upon flappers who smoke like the Mauretania docking, with disgust.

Downtown New Yorkers little realize the bustling progress that has sprung up in the past few years on the upper tip of Manhattan island. A short distance from Spuyten Duyvil around Broadway and One Hundred and Eighty-first street is a community as lively almost as that around Harlem's One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. The section is ramparted with enormous apartment houses with Pullman car names and uniformed door flunkies. There are theaters, cafes, movies and even night clubs. Smart specialty shops reflect the Fifth avenue modes, and coming down town to shop is no longer so necessary.

There are enterprising city salesmen in New York who cover their territory in the manner of salesmen covering a state. To be early on the job they go from hotel to hotel in various districts. Week-ends are spent at home.

A business man at lunch yesterday told of calling his executives into conference and announcing his plan for a year's vacation. All agreed with enthusiasm he should take the rest. Indeed, there was too much enthusiasm, and over night he decided to remain on the job.

To me his attitude was unjust. Employers like to prattle about the desire for employes who are not "yessers." But the fate of the majority of those who oppose the boss is a dreary hunt for a job. So the wise ones "yes."

I once wrote a critical letter to the publisher on a newspaper on which I was employed. The effort was to show how his journal might be improved. It developed the letter was the first intimation he had I was working for him, and he immediately fixed that up. The next day I wasn't.

Live Dangerously

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Nietzsche tells us, "Live dangerously. Build your home on the side of a volcano."

There are two kinds of people. The ideal of one kind is peace, quiet and a home with geraniums in the front yard.

There are those who idealize a peaceful existence and there are those who are never happy except in engaging in adventure.

Many people want thrills. Some people are born explorers and pioneers, and some seek settled and civilized communities.

Amelia Earhart, who some time ago flew across the Atlantic, was never happy unless expressing herself in adventure.

Few know the joys of courage except the courageous. Their ambition is to die in "the doubtful ridges of the battle."

Miss Earhart was a settlement worker, but hardly could endure settling.

She thus describes her outlook on life:

"Courage is the price that life exexacts for granting peace.
The soul that knows it not,
Knows no release from little things:
Knows not the livid loneliness of fear.
Nor mountain heights where bitter joy can hear,
The sound of wings.
How can life grant us boon of living, compensate,
For dull gray ugliness and pregnant hate,
Unless we dare
The soul's dominion? Each time we make a choice we pay,
With courage to behold resistless day,
And count it fair."

There are those who think women properly should occupy a secluded place in society. But women have been rapidly coming to the front. Recent exploits of women have done much to give the holders of old-fashioned ideas occasion for thought.

Women are in business, stores and offices, women have invaded the professions and now a woman has flown across the Atlantic.

Curiously enough her exploit was founded upon strict scientific calculations. The motor was carefully inspected and prepared. Every device for rendering flying safe was adopted. The most expert pilot and mechanician were employed.

Mr. Elmer, a former naval aviation officer, was in charge of the preparations and he fitted the plane with the last word in flying, navigation and radio equipment in preparation for the flight. The plane was built at the famous Folker plant in Holland. Pontoons were fitted to it to make it a seaplane, and it carried instruments arranged to the best advantage.

Mr. Elmer said, "I think the Friendship was the safest and best equipped airplane ever to attempt an ocean flight."

All of which goes to show that an important part of luck is not only courage but proper preparation.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

IT WAS a woman who suggested to "Big Tim" Murphy, the Chicago racketeer, who recently went to his last reward—if you call a shot in the dark a reward—that he get educated. She said he certainly would do better if he did study a little English and history.

"She told me," said Tim, "that it was a shame that a smart guy like me didn't know how to talk. She got some educators together at luncheon. Nobody had enough money to pay for the lunch but me.

"I figured a lot of folks had college education and no jack, so I laid off education."

And his own smart methods netted him a $10,000 silver casket and a six-foot plot of earth, before his time.

He thought it was more important to be able to buy an umbrella than to know enough to come in out of the rain—to use his words.

A girl whose mother wished a husband into her life, a man the girl didn't love, but who could keep her in style to which her mother thought she would become accustomed, killed herself.

A bad bargain, but a good lesson to mothers.

The opening of Earl Carroll's "Vanities" recalls Joyce Hawley, the girl of the now famous champagne bath. After the trouble started over Mr. Carroll's party, someone asked Joyce's mother what she thought of it. She said:

"What difference does it make what she takes a bath in?"

It didn't occur to [illegible] that the difference was where.

Joyce's mother said she asked her daughter if she wasn't going to give the family tickets to the show, when she played Chicago, so they could see her.

"I should blow 10 bucks for the family to see me," Joyce answered. "Take a good look at me at home."

A business woman, too.

Seeing America

SOMEWHERE on its way to the other shore a novel caravan is moving. Consisting of five motor cars, one a "bus diner," it left Rye, N. Y., July 8, with 22 members of the Rye Y. M. C. A. aboard, each with camping kit and $125.

In eight weeks these gypsying tourists will see the more notable sights of scenic America, learn the vastness of our continent, test the charms of California, visit Mexico, have a bully time and return browned, broadened and refreshed.
